Sad, tragic story of corruption

V.V.S.Manian

Richard Kimble: [as they are walking out of the banquet hall] you changed the samples, didn't you, huh? You switched the samples after Lenz died! After Lenz died, you were the only one who had access. You switched the samples and the pathology reports" From "The Fugitive," a 1993 film.

I saw the movie "Fugitive" at least three times. The film hero Harrison Ford did a wonderful job as Richard Kimble. The film exposes how disastrous it is to switch samples in a hospital. A somewhat similar incident happened in Pune, where very unethical, criminal and corrupt doctors, Dr Ajay Taware and Dr.Shrihari Harno of the Sassoon Hospital have been arrested for allegedly changing the blood samples of the minor boy in connection with the Porche crash case, Pune.

This case has drawn international attention. It is a waste of time to pursue a legal course, which will take a long time. Both the doctors should be stripped of their medical degrees, and the hospital where they worked should be fined heavily. A television channel very nicely said on Monday, that the three shocking incidents that happened in Rajkot, Pune, and Delhi are a clear reflection that there is no law applicable to the rich, powerful, and politically connected. We have been bragging all the time that we are a digital economy, good governance, and corruption-free. This is more a joke rather than the truth.

All three tragedies in Pune, Gujarat, and Delhi indicate the lesson loudly and clearly. Corruption has not been eliminated, despite Modi's promises in the last eight years. Look out, Gujarat; it is a clear case of negligence by the authorities in the BJP government.

In Delhi, Kejriwal got to power by condemning corruption, and now he is up to his neck in corruption. Seven infants were killed in a massive fire at the Baby Care New Born Hospital, East Delhi's Vivek Vihar. The fire is suspected to have been caused by a short circuit.

The Delhi hospital tragedy squarely falls on the health ministry. In the Delhi tragedy, the government did not know that the hospital license had expired. In the digital era, everything is accounted for. Why were the Delhi authorities unaware about this? The hospital has been operating without a license and does not have fire extinguishers or an emergency exit. Above all, the hospital was run by unqualified doctors who had no clue how to handle emergency pregnancy, prenatal, and postnatal cases.

The second case was the Rajkot game zone fire, which killed over 67 people and around 9 children. The state government is run by the BJP and is corrupt-free, transparent, and efficient under double-engine management. It is Modi's home state. Here, the game zone was running and minting money for three years without any approval. This is not possible without political clout and bribery. No wonder the Gujarat High Court took to task the system and the government

The Gujarat High Court said, 'We do not trust the government and the system. What was the RMC doing when the game zone was running for three years without any approval?' Not only this, but the court also questioned the commissioner. The High Court said that we no longer trust the machinery of the government; such incidents happen despite the court's directives. You didn't know about this game zone for 18 months? If the RMC commissioner goes to the inauguration, what happens to the court's directives?

The government has taken the usual style of suspending a few officers just to appease angry people and escape wide publicity. The PM announces compensation of Rs 2 lakh for the kin of the deceased. Why did PM Modi not rush immediately to console the families of the victims in his home state?

The Gujarat government is alleged to be notorious for corruption and inaction, which can be substantiated by case studies. The Gujarat government has not taken any concrete action in the Vadodara Harni boat scandal and in the Botad-Ahmadabad lynching incident. We will leave it at this, congratulating the double engine, Sarkar, for steaming ahead with one scandal or the other.

The third incident is the one involving a 17-year-old boy, the son of a prominent and influential realtor, Vishal S. Agarwal, who, after drinking in two bars, gets drunk and speeds in his unregistered Porsche car and kills two young IT professionals. The incident has received wide publicity and public outrage. The worst thing that has happened in this case is the role of doctors, who proved to be absolute criminals and corrupt after they tried to suppress the evidence by switching samples of blood. Both deserve to be stripped of their degrees and sent to jail. The samples from the drunken boy were also sent to another hospital which confirmed alcohol in his blood.

This is a straight and watertight case, and the public and the media are showing keen interest in how the three - the boy, Vishal S. Agarwal and Surendra Kumar Agarwal (the grandfather and father of the boy) are tried and punished, perhaps after months or years.

All three incidents visibly show how deeply corruption is ingrained in our system. If anyone stands on a platform and says corruption is marginalized and eliminated, he is just another fool fooling people. Somewhere I read how simple, honest, and forthright Lal Bhadur Sastri was as a PM.

In today's world, citizens are slowly losing trust in government machinery and elected representatives. Most of them are rotten apples in one basket. Unfortunately, you have to pick one and eat it. That is our fate.
