Offices need masculine energy, says Zuckerberg

● Meta CEO says its good to celebrate aggression more

BLOOMBERG
January 11

MARK ZUCKERBERG LAMENTED the rise of “culturally neutered” companies that have sought to distance themselves from “masculine energy,” adding that it’s good if a culture “celebrates the aggression a bit more.”

“Masculine energy I think is good, and obviously society has plenty of that, but I think that corporate culture was really trying to get away from it,” Zuckerberg said during a nearly three-hour-long conversation with podcaster Joe Rogan. “It’s like you want feminine energy, you want masculine energy,” Zuckerberg said during the episode of The Joe Rogan Experience. “I think that that’s all good. But I do think the corporate culture sort of had swung toward being this somewhat more neutered thing,” he added, before discussing his passions for mixed martial arts and hunting invasive pigs in Hawaii.

Zuckerberg, who launched his career by rating the attractiveness of women at Harvard, added that he grew up with 3 sisters and has 3 daughters, and wants women to succeed in corporations.

“If you’re a woman going into a company, it probably feels like it’s too masculine. There isn’t enough of the energy that you may naturally have,” he told Rogan. “You want women to be able to succeed and have companies that can unlock all the value from having great people no matter what their background or gender.”

The podcast episode was released just days after Meta loosened its content moderation policies for Instagram and Facebook to allow more leniency for users criticising immigrants, transgender and nonbinary people, or making exclusionary statements based on someone’s sex or gender. On Tuesday, Meta also announced the end of third-party fact-checking in the US, and on Friday, the company said it was halting many of its internal training and hiring efforts aimed at making its workforce more diverse.

The episode marked Zuckerberg’s second appearance on the podcast.

Apple defies anti-diversity plans

APPLE INC DISCLOSED a 18% pay increase for CEO Tim Cook ahead of its annual meeting, while saying it opposed a shareholder measure calling for an end to its diversity programmes.

Apple’s diversity, equity and inclusion efforts urged the company to consider abolishing the programme because it may discriminate against employees and draw lawsuits. Apple said the proposal was an inappropriate attempt to restrict its business operations and that it already assesses legal and regulatory risks.

Amazon puts end to inclusion programmes

BLOOMBERG
January 11

AMAZON.COM INC IS halting some of its diversity and inclusion programmes, a move that coincides with activist pressure on US companies to abandon efforts to build a more diverse workforce.

In a memo, Candi Castleberry, a senior HR executive, said last month that Amazon was “winding down outdated programmes and materials” as part of a review of hundreds of initiatives, including ones that had completed their work. The team expected to complete the consolidation by the end of 2024.

“Rather than have individual groups build programmes, we are focusing on programmes with proven outcomes and we also aim to foster a more truly inclusive culture,” wrote Castleberry, Amazon’s VP of Inclusive Experiences and Technology.

An Amazon spokesperson declined to share details. The company continues to operate affinity groups, employee-led organisations formed to hear worker concerns and advocate for women, Black workers and military veterans.

Amazon is the second largest private US employer, behind Walmart Inc.

Big tech CEOs to attend Trump’s inauguration

BLOOMBERG
January 11

SEVERAL PROMINENT TECH leaders are planning to attend Donald Trump’s inauguration this month, the latest sign that the industry is trying to bolster its relationship with the president-elect ahead of his return to the White House.

OpenAI chief executive officer Sam Altman plans to go to the swearing-in ceremony on January 20, said a company spokesperson. Meta Platforms Inc CEO Mark Zuckerberg also plans to go to the event, according to a person familiar with the matter, who spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss private information. A spokesperson for Meta declined to comment.

Uber Technologies Inc CEO Dara Khosrowshahi will be at some of the surrounding festivities, according to the company. Uber also plans to host an inauguration party in Washington with Elon Musk’s X and The Free Press, a media company.

Coinbase Global Inc CEO Brian Armstrong has been invited to events around the inaugural including a presidential dinner, the company said.

The prospect of a second Trump term has raised a new set of uncertainties for the rapidly evolving AI market and the wider tech industry. During his first term, Trump clashed with Silicon

OpenAI CEO Sam Altman and Uber CEO Dara Khosrowshahi

Valley on issues such as immigration and online content moderation. He has also previously directed his rare executives such as Zuckerberg and Amazon.com Inc founder Jeff Bezos.

In recent weeks, Meta and Amazon pledged to donate $1 million to Trump’s inauguration fund. Zuckerberg and Bezos have also dined with Trump.

Zuckerberg has been pivoting his stable of social networking apps to become more Trump-friendly, including eliminating outside fact-checking and loosening the rules around what people can say on the service.

Altman, meanwhile, personally donated $1 million to Trump’s inauguration fund after having previously given money to President Joe Biden’s 2024 reelection campaign.

“I think AGI will probably get developed during this president’s term, and getting that right seems really important,” Altman told Bloomberg Businessweek in a recent interview, referring to a hypothetical, advanced form of AI. “Supporting the inauguration, I think that’s a relatively small thing. I don’t view that as a big decision either way. But I do think we all should wish for the president’s success.”

Trump’s party pledged in its platform to undo Biden’s executive order on AI, saying that it “imposes radical left wing ideas” on the field. With Trump’s win, Musk has also gained new found influence in Washington.

● LA FIRES CONTINUE UNABATED

A helicopter drops water on the Palisades fire behind a home in Los Angeles. After five days of urban wildfires and despite the destruction and emotional rollercoaster being lived by LA residents, the fires are far from over. In large swaths of greater LA, there is only rubble where houses, buildings and other structures once sat. Rows of cars are burnt so badly that all have been turned to ash colour, their windows gone

Italy’s steelmaker gets offer from Jindal

BLOOMBERG
January 11

ITALY’S LARGEST STEELMAKER, formerly known as Ilva, has received 10 purchase offers, according to its administrators.

The Acciaierie d’Italia steelworks has been under state-led administration after struggling to sustain production amid rising energy costs and weak demand. Three of the offers, one from a consortium of Azeri Baku Steel Company CJSC and the Azerbaijan Investment Company OJSC; another from Bedrock Industries Management; and the third from India’s Jindal Steel International, are for the entirety of the business, the administrators said. The rest were for parts of the assets.

The administrators said they would take the “appropriate time” to examine all offers, paying close attention to protection of jobs and climate.

I would have beaten Trump, says Biden

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
Washington, January 11

OUTGOING US PRESIDENT Joe Biden said that he would have defeated Donald Trump in the November general elections.

On being asked whether he regretted his decision to not run for re-election, Biden said, “I don’t think so. I think I would have beaten Trump, could have beaten Trump and I think that Kamala (Harris) could have beaten Trump, would have beaten Trump.”

“It wasn’t about — I thought it was important to unify the (Democratic) party and when the party was worried about whether or not I was going to be able to move even though I thought I could win again,” he said. “It was the greatest honour of my life to be president of the United States but I didn’t want to be the one who caused a party that wasn’t unified to lose an election,” Biden said. Biden, 82, decided to withdraw from the US Presidential race against Trump after his disastrous performance at the presidential debate in Atlanta in June.

Following a lot of criticism from his own party leaders, Biden decided to withdraw from the race mid-way and endorsed his running mate Vice President Kamala Harris to be the Democratic Party’s presidential candidate.

Harris lost the election to Trump. The general elections resulted in a clean sweep for the Republican Party, which not only recaptured the White House, maintained its majority in the House of Representatives but also got a majority in the Senate.

US sanctions unlawful, says Russian atomic energy agency

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
Washington, January 11

RUSSIA’S STATE ATOMIC Energy Corporation Rosatom has said the Biden administration’s sanctions against it were “unlawful” and being seen as a form of unfair competition from unfriendly countries.

“Sanctions targeting Rosatom’s management are regarded as unfounded and unlawful. Today, Rosatom is a global leader in the export of nuclear energy technologies, so the sanctions are seen as a form of unfair competition from unfriendly states. For nearly three years, we have operated under growing sanctions pressure, adapting successfully and remaining prepared for any scenario. Rosatom continues to meet all its commitments to partners in full,” Rosatom said.

Joe Biden announced that the US is expanding sanctions against Russia’s energy sector, unveiling a new effort to inflict pain on Moscow for its war in Ukraine.
