FROM AI DELAY, FALLING CHINA SALES TO HUAWEI'S NEW PHONE Apple faces tri-fold challenge

New iPhone 16 fails to excite, Mate XT priced too high

REUTERS
Beijing, September 10

APPLE'S NEW IPHONE 16 failed to excite investors with long-expected AI features still in test mode even as an industry-first tri-fold phone from Huawei raised the stakes in a battle to dominate the global smartphone market.

Apple's shares fell 1% in pre-market trading on Tuesday, a day after the US tech giant unveiled its new iPhones that sport hardware-level integration for applications based on artificial intelligence but with limited changes to the external design. The phones will use AI features dubbed Apple Intelligence to improve Siri as well as enhance the camera.

These AI features will arrive on iPhones in beta next month. The company did not say when it would move beyond test.

Meanwhile, Huawei showed off its new Mate XT, which users can fold three ways. The device has already received more than 4 million pre-orders, for which no deposit is required. It boasts an AI assistant with text summary, translation and editing functions, as well as AI-boosted image editing functions. But with a price tag that starts at $2,800 — more than twice the starting price of the comparable iPhone 16 Pro Max — and limited production, it may become more of a symbol of Huawei's tech prowess than a major sales driver, analysts said.

"Production constraints and the high price point mean the new phone will likely not have a huge impact in terms of shipments," said Will Wong, senior researcher at consultancy IDC.

"But it's telling the consumers that it's still the tech leader and the potential challenge it brings to Apple may be far beyond just market share."

Both phones go on sale on September 20.

Huawei's launch, which follows a series of successful smartphone debuts, underscores its ability to navigate US sanctions and solidifies its position against Apple in China, where some consumers criticised the new iPhone 16 for its lack of AI features in the country.

Apple has yet to announce an AI partner in China to power the 16s and Apple Intelligence, the company's AI software, will only be available in Chinese languages next year. "What's the point of buying it if you can't use AI?" wrote one user on Weibo. Another commented: "Without AI as the biggest selling point, it should be half price."

While Apple for years enjoyed strong demand in China, where launches once sparked a frenzy, sales have dwindled and its ranking has now dropped from third to sixth place.

Lanka's big step forward with England Test win?

Oval victory could be era-defining or another false dawn

SANDIP G
New Delhi, September 10

PATHUM NISSANKA MARCHING towards his hundred and a memorable Test victory in England. Sri Lanka would remember the England tour of 2024 even if they had lost the series, even if they had self-combusted in moments that could have yielded them a brighter outcome, even if the fear of a familiar false dawn stalks every moment of glory.

Stand-in coach and all-time great Sanath Jayasuriya rolled back the memories to the era-defining Test victory at the same venue, the Oval, 26 years away. "We won a lot of respect after winning that match. Earlier, we used to play one-off Tests. After this, teams began to invite us for a three-Test series," he said. The latest Test win, he asserts, was tougher than the 1998 one. "The conditions were difficult this time, the pitch was green and the ball was moving around, it was difficult to bat," he said.

A trigger-happy batsman in his heyday, he is more prudent with his words. He is, without a doubt, well acquainted with the dizzy fluctuations of fortunes in Sri Lanka cricket, of wasted potential and unfulfilled promises.

There are several walking embodiments of strayed gifts. At the stroke of the previous decade, Angelo Mathews was primed to conquer world cricket with his pristine stroke-making, lively seam bowling and a winsome smile that endeared him to even his bitter adversaries. He shook the world with a thunderous 160 in a famous and series-clinching win at Leeds, months before England hammered India. But a decade later after he was adjudged the Wisden player of the year, his career slumped, chiefly due to injuries, burden of

HYSTERICAL HIGHS, CRUSHING LOWS

2014 LEEDS

With the stalwarts phasing out, the 100-run win ushered in hope that the transition would be smooth. It didn't exactly pan out the way they hoped

Lost a series at home against South Africa, defeated Pakistan and then lost series to New Zealand (away), India (home) and Pakistan (home)

2019 GQBERHA

One of the greatest Test series wins raised optimism about Lanka's resurgence

But it was not to be, as they waited for two more years to register their next series win

2022 ASIA CUP

Shock defeat in the opening game against Afghanistan, fought back to win the next five games and clinch the trophy

Barely managed to qualify for T20 World Cup, losing in the qualifiers captaincy, self-doubts and the general directionless nature of Sri Lankan cricket this century. He chisels out useful performances, an odd spell of incisive dibbly doblers or a vintage assault of fours, but never conquered the peaks. A Test batting average of 45.15 suggests diligence, not greatness.

Similarly, Kusal Perera, a Sanath Jayasuriya clone, could never build on his Durban knock. Thirteen more Test innings of nominal yield, he became a one-knock wonder, a proverbial shooting star, his last outing in the longest version coming in 2021. There are others too, like Roshen Silva, architect of a thrilling draw in Kotla, or Dinesh Chandimal of the Galle heist against Ravi Ashwin and Co.

But Perera is perhaps most symbolic of the fits and flashes nature of Sri Lankan cricket. In the last decade, Sri Lanka produced what no other Asian side could; win a Test series in England and South Africa. They nearly pulled off a heist in New Zealand too, where no Asian team has won a Test in 15 years. Yet, for a team predisposed to be competitive in all conditions, they have not cracked the consistency code. It could be that the crisis their country had been riding in the past few years had derailed them in sports too; the chaos in cricket administration could have disillusioned them; the frequent shuffling of the coaching pack might have disturbed them; recession might have forced some of their most talented cricketers into seeking the riches of the franchise leagues.

The paradox of Sri Lankan cricket is that just when you give up on them, they conjure something magnificent to reinstate hope and joy.

IT, realty fuel hiring surge in Aug

SUBSTANTIAL GAINS IN the IT and real estate sectors drove a robust 15% y-o-y annual growth in hiring. A steady growth seen with hiring up 8% over the past six months, according to a report by foundit Insights Tracker. The IT sector remains a powerhouse, with a remarkable 23% increase in annual hiring, with global capability centres driving much of this demand, making up 62% of IT jobs. The real estate and construction & engineering sectors also saw impressive growth, with hiring rising by 32% and 31% annually, respectively.

Tier-2 cities are quickly becoming hiring hotspots. Coimbatore saw a 4% m-o-m rise, establishing itself as a growing tech hub alongside established tech hubs like Bengaluru, which recorded a 5% m-o-m and 14% y-o-y increase in IT hiring.
