Majority of Google phones may soon be India-assembled

Currently, the phones are made in Vietnam and China

SURAJEET DAS GUPTA New Delhi, 14 August

n a major push for local manufacturing, Google has started assembling the Pixel 8 Lin India through its vendor, Wowtek Technology India. Wowtek, a subsidiary of Bharat FIH and part of Hon Hai Technology Group (Foxconn), operates a factory in Tamil Nadu. Senior officials from the Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology (Meity) have indicated that Google plans to shift the majority of its mobile device assembly, including Pixel, to India within three years.

At present, Pixel phones are manufactured in Vietnam and China. Google began assembling Pixel phones in China in 2016 and moved part of the production to Vietnam in 2019 due to rising US-China tensions. Google launched the Pixel 9 on Tuesday.

A senior Meity official revealed, "Initially, a limited number of phones will be assembled, but as production stabilises, the plan is to assemble most of their new phones in India within three years. This strategy mirrors Apple's approach, which has shifted a sizeable portion of iPhone assembly to India."

Bharat FIH is eligible for the productionlinked incentive (PLI) scheme for mobile devices but has yet to claim the 4-6 per cent incentive due to unmet production value and investment targets. One of its largest original equipment manufacturers, Xiaomi, has reduced its partnership with Bharat FIH and opted for other players, including Dixon Technologies (India). In a related development, Foxconn has decided to double its capacity in India to accommodate the increased assembly of iPhones and its new contract with Google. Foxconn has com-

Foxconn Chairman Young Liu, who is visiting India, met Prime Minister Narendra Modi and is expected to meet with senior Meity officials to discuss expansion plans.

In October 2023, Google announced its intention to assemble Pixel phones in India and began scouting for vendors. While Bharat FIH was selected for assembling non-Apple devices, Google has also finalised a deal with Dixon (which is also eligible for the PLI scheme).

Despite being a minor player in the global mobile market — with a 0.25 per cent share in the first quarter of 2024 compared to Apple's 17 per cent — Google's entry into Indian assembly could boost its presence. In India, Google's market share was just 0.25 per cent in 2023, though this was double the previous year's figure.

'Not looking to bring in strategic investor'

Metropolis Healthcare Executive Chairperson and Whole-time Director AMEERA SHAH talks about her plans for network expansion, and focus on business-to-consumer segment as well as expansion of footprint in smaller towns of India. In a video interview with Sohini Das, Shah outlines her strategy for international business, and also talks about why she got in a new CEO. Edited excerpts:

AMEERA SHAH

& Whole-time

Executive Chairperson

Director, Metropolis

How have the test mix and price hikes helped improve margins in Q1FY25? The first structural lever is volume - patient and test volumes. We are doing more than industry numbers in terms of volume growth -7 per cent patient volume and 10 per cent test volume. Also, we have clocked a 6 per cent increase in average revenue per patient, which is a combination of both price hikes (2.5 per cent) and change in product mix. People are moving up the ladder when it comes to tests, and are going for more specialty tests. We have also managed to curtail costs.

You have got a professional CEO and your role has changed too. Are promoters taking a backseat? The company has become big enough at a market-cap of ₹10,000-

11,000 crore, and employing 6,000 people. We need to have a separation of roles between governance and strategy, and someone who is running the day-to-day business. I am available fulltime to focus on governance, strategy, talent and culture, and the CEO is able to concentrate on executing the business plan and running the business. I am doing it when I am 44. I have the vision to say that I am not so stuck in my own ego and am doing what is right for the business.

And usually, you see promoters hold on to control and not want to let go, etc. But my theory is that the combination of a really strong promoter and strong professionals actually makes the best quality team. And with that idea we've done it.

Can you elaborate on your network expansion plans?

Currently we have 4,200 centres and we are adding approximately 500 centres per year. At present, we are in 650 towns, and from here we will go to a thousand towns in India next year. We don't have a set number on the number of centres we want to have by next year. In the last four-five vears, we have added around 79 labs, and we will end this year with 90 labs. Most of these new labs are in Tier-II, Tier-III and Tier-IV cities and towns. We've been investing about ₹60-70 crore per year in capex.

Any plans to bring in a strategic investor to Metropolis? As a listed company, no question of bringing in an investor right now. We have got enough internal accruals, and we are able to do acquisitions on our own. If we need money tomorrow, we can always go to public and do a QIP.

Are you still looking to acquire assets in the Northern and Eastern partsofIndia?

Not just in North and East, but we are open to acquisitions across the country. Our business is not about regions, but about cities. If there is a good acquisition in that local market where we are not strong, we would certainly consider it.

ning the day-to-day business. I am available fulltime to focus on governance, strategy, talent and culture, and the CEO is able to concentrate on executing the business plan and running the business. I am doing it when I am 44. I have the vision to say that I am not so stuck in my own ego and am doing what is right for the business. And usually, you see promoters hold on to control and not want to let go, etc. But my theory is that the combination of a really strong promoter and strong professionals actually makes the best quality team. And with that idea we've done it.

Can you elaborate on your network expansion plans?

Currently we have 4,200 centres and we are adding approximately 500 centres per year. At present, we are in 650 towns, and from here we will go to a thousand towns in India next year. We don't have a set number on the number of centres we want to have by next year. In the last four-five vears, we have added around 79 labs, and we will end this year with 90 labs. Most of these new labs are in Tier-II, Tier-III and Tier-IV cities and towns. We've been investing about ₹60-70 crore per year in capex.

Any plans to bring in a strategic investor to Metropolis?

As a listed company, no question of bringing in an investor right now. We have got enough internal accruals, and we are able to do acquisitions on our own. If we need money tomorrow, we can always go to public and do a QIP.

Are you still looking to acquire assets in the Northern and Eastern partsofIndia?

Not just in North and East, but we are open to acquisitions across the country. Our business is not about regions, but about cities. If there is a good acquisition in that local market where we are not strong, we would certainly consider it.
