Flexibility is key to retaining top talent, finds study

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, August 30

WHILE RETURN-TO-OFFICE policies are still up for debate, an increasing amount of evidence indicates that employers that require full-time office attendance may be jeopardising the productivity and loyalty of their staff. Although many businesses are pushing for a return to a physical presence, a study found that keeping top talent may depend on the flexibility of work arrangements.

A recent study by Stanford economist Nick Bloom and his team at WFH Research, published in Nature, sheds light on the significant benefits of hybrid work models. The research, conducted over two years with more than 1,600 employees at Trip.com, one of the world's largest online travel agencies, found that employees working from home for two days a week experienced higher job satisfaction and were 33% less likely to quit than those required to work in the office full-time.

The findings resonate strongly with trends in India, where hybrid work is rapidly becoming the norm. According to a recent survey by the Association of the Profession Institute (API), 44% of Indian organisations have embraced hybrid work models, while only 10% have adopted fully remote setups. The report highlights that Indian companies increasingly support evolving work practices, with 54% providing coaching and mentoring to facilitate the transition, and 58% offering training—figures surpassing global averages.

The advantages of hybrid work are not just theoretical. Companies that offer flexibility are seeing tangible benefits, particularly in retaining a diverse workforce.

Employees who face long commutes, those with caregiving responsibilities, and women, in particular, are more likely to stay with a company that offers hybrid options. "For many, the cost of commuting and the inability to live close to work are significant barriers," noted a chief HR manager at a Noida-based IT firm. "By reducing attrition by a third, we are saving a lot in recruitment and training costs while keeping our talent pool intact."

The trend is particularly evident among Millennials and Gen Z, who are reshaping the workforce with their digital fluency and desire for work-life balance. These generations are not content with traditional career paths; they are blending roles as employees, entrepreneurs, and creators, using digital tools to carve out multifaceted careers.

■ Commuting cost, inability to live close to workplace are significant barriers for many, noted an HR manager

Their preference for flexibility driving the adoption of hybrid work models, which, far from diminishing their commitment, actually enhances their productivity and innovation.

"Millennials and Gen Z, who are sometimes described as opinionated, have a wealth of knowledge because of their access to data and internet connectedness. This knowledge saturation makes individuals well-informed and confident in their opinions," said an expert and professor at the Institute of Science & Technology. Moreover, companies that resist these changes may find themselves at a competitive disadvantage.

As the war for talent intensifies, organisations that insist on rigid office policies may struggle to attract and retain top talent, particularly in industries where remote work is feasible and even preferable.

As the workforce continues to evolve, it is clear that flexibility will play a crucial role in shaping the future of work.

NITIN SHARMA
Chandigarh, August 30

TWO SHOOTERS on the podium for gold and bronze in the women's 10 metre air rifle and a silver in the men's 10m air pistol capped a glorious afternoon for Indians shooting on the second day of the Paralympics.

Avani Lekhara, 27, became the first Indian to take back-to-back Paralympic gold medals and in the process erased her own Paralympic record with an amazing 249.7. Thirty-seven-year-old Mona Agarwal, a mother of two, won the bronze to make a special afternoon at the Jai Shri Chhatra Shooting Centre. A couple of hours later, Manish Narwal won a silver in the men's 10m air pistol, his second straight medal in the Paralympics, the first a gold in the men's 50m pistol (SH1) in Tokyo. After a slow start, Manish, 27, recovered to finish with a score of 234.9.

The trio had had to battle the odds to reach the pinnacle of their sport. Avani was paralysed after a car accident when she was 11. A medical treatment error by doctors at the time of his birth resulted in nerve damage, which hampered the movement of the right arm. Nearly two years ago, Manish lost his elder brother who was involved in a road accident. For six months he didn't shoot as he was depressed.

Mona contracted polio as a child, which affected both her legs. Her husband says that she was wanted for being a girl child and because of polio. On Friday, Avani, Mona and Manish wore broad smiles as they wore medals around their necks and posed for the cameras.

"I am happy to win a medal for my country. I am thankful to my coaches and my parents," Avani said after winning the gold.

Avani is not done yet. Her gold on Friday will give her a confidence boost ahead of the 50m rifle 3-position event, where she also favoured for a medal. She had won a bronze in this event in the previous edition of the Games in Tokyo.

Gallbladder surgery

Closer to the Paralympics, Avani had to make a major decision—whether to opt for surgery for gallbladder stones. She was in pain but continued to train with an eye on glory at the Paralympics. But as months passed, the pain started to affect her training. The surgery was also called because the pain could become unbearable closer to the Paralympics and could jeopardise her chances of defending her gold.

"Gallbladder stones had been troubling her since 2023. It so affected her training as the recurring pain around the stomach would affect her ability to train for as long as she usually would. Avani wanted to get her back to the Paris Paralympics. So we decided to get the gallbladder removed in March this year. It took her some time to recover. But at the end of the tough year, she has achieved a historic feat," Praveen Kumar Lekhara, Avani's father, told I.E.

At the Tokyo Paralympics, the then 19-year-old shooter had won many medals than her at a single Paralympics—gold in women's 10m air rifle (SH1) and bronze in 50m 3P event.

The last time Avani won medals than her at a single Paralympics was track and field star Jyoti Singh Bedi—three at the 1984 Games. Avani's coach Chandra Shekar recalls how challenging it was for her to get back to shooting after a period of rest-post-surgery.

"Post the surgery this year, she was advised to rest for two months and when she restarted her weakened muscles were the main challenge. So we returned to the basics for some days. Once she regained her strength, she was back to Paris," recalls coach Shekar.

It was a fateful day in 2011, when he set her on course to become a shooter. The family were involved in a car accident on the Jai Shri Chhatra highway. Avani, 11 years old back then, suffered spinal cord injuries and became paralyzed from the waist below.

"Post the accident, Avani would spend more than 90 days at SMS hospital in Jaipur and then at the Indian Spinal Injury Centre in Delhi. It took her close to three years to regain some strength," her father recalled. Three years after the accident, she started shooting at the Jagatpura Shooting Range.

At first, she trained with a rented air rifle. In 2015, Manish started shooting at the 10x Academy in Ballabgarh where coach Rakesh Singh took him under his wings. Manish took the sport at the insistence of his father Dilbagh Singh.

"Minutes after his birth, a mistake by doctors resulted in nerve damage. He was very young to understand what happened to him. But he was a very happy child. He would play with other children and also observe closely whatever sports they played. We never discussed that he is a person with a disability and that's the attitude he has grown up with," his father Dilbagh said.

He started shooting with a right-hand grip pistol using his left hand. "We did not have a left-hand grip pistol. So for more than a year, he would shoot using his left hand but with the right-hand grip pistol. It was tough but then he adjusted that and would shoot good scores," coach Rakesh said.

However, there was a major setback in December 2022 when Manish lost his elder brother Manjeet in a road accident. Manish was practising at the shooting range when Manjeet's car and a water tanker collided. The two brothers were close and Manish missed his dad.

"From November 1, 2022, to today, Manish has remembered his brother every single day for these 668 days. It took Manish six months to pick up the gun again. Manish's Paralympic medal is for Manjeet. Manjeet would be cheering from the heavens," Dilbagh said.

Manish is from a family of shooters. Younger brother Shiva is a 2023 Hangzhou Asian Games mixed team gold medalist, while sister Shikha has also followed in their footsteps.

US Open: Dutchman stuns Alcaraz

FORMER CHAMPION CARLOS Alcaraz's Grand Slam winning streak came to a screeching halt at the US Open on Thursday as the Spanish third seed was thumped 6-1 7-5 6-4 by unseeded Dutchman Botman de Zauschulup in the second round.

An off-colour Alcaraz never recovered from a shaky start and made unforced errors throughout at a stunned Arthur Ashe Stadium as the inspired Van de Zandschulup snapped the French Open and Wimbledon champion's 15-match winning run at the majors. It was the Paris Olympics silver medalist's earliest exit at a Grand Slam since Wimbledon in 2021.

"I don't know what to say right now. First of all, I think he played great," Alcaraz said. "He didn't make a lot of unforced errors. I thought he was a little bit confused at the beginning. I didn't know how to manage that." —REUTERS
