Chopra strikes gold

Not the biggest or bulkiest of throwers, he relied on speed to generate power in his throws. Second in the starting list for the final, the Indian laid down the gauntlet in a tough field with a massive throw of 82.52 m.

"That was our strategy," his coach Klaus Bartomeus said. "We wanted to put pressure on the rest of the field straightaway and the only way we could do that was by throwing big."

It was one of those rare days when everything aligned perfectly for Chopra. He looked calm and relaxed, had a sip of an energy drink just before his turn came and announced his intentions. With the second throw, he went farther, recording 87.58 m.

Chopra being way ahead of the field was not the biggest surprise. He had done that during the qualifying round as well but with the weather a lot cooler and equally humid on Saturday, it was expected others, including the sport's current biggest star Johannes Vetter, would raise his game.

Vetter was the outright favourite to win gold, having recorded throws of 90-plus metres in this event. He had been having troubles with his technique and had complained about the track being slippery. Vetter didn't look comfortable during the final as well, struggling to get a proper grip on the surface and slipping multiple times. After a first attempt of 82.52 m, he turned over in his next throw and slipped in his next throw. His third throw, like the second, was also a foul.

With the world's best javelin thrower in the last 1.2 metres out of the fray, others struggled to come close to Chopra's effort. The next best throw, by Czech Republic's Jakub Valdich, was almost a metre short and the bronze medal winner, Vitezslav Vesely was a good 2.14 m behind the Indian.

"The plan was just to go after my personal best. I knew if I matched that, I would finish on the podium," Chopra said.

He did finish on the podium, on the top spot. When he was presented the medal, Chopra stood firmly, planted his back and put it around his neck. And as the national anthem played out in this gigantic stadium, he beamed up. The only time in the night he seemed overawed.

"It feels unbelievable. It is the first time India has won a gold in athletics, so I feel very good. We have just one gold here in other sports, the 23-year-old said after winning. "This is our first Olympic medal for a very long time, and athletics is the first sport where we have gold, so it's a proud moment for me and my country." Asked if he was surprised to win gold which also featured German great Johannes Vetter, he said, "In the qualification round I threw very well. I knew I could do better in the final. (But) I didn't know it would be gold but I am very happy."

Applauding his effort, President Kovind described it as an "unprecedented" achievement which will prove to be an inspiration for the youth of the country. Congratulating Chopra, Prime Minister Modi said his performance will be remembered for ages. Welcoming him to the club, Bhandra wrote: "Welcome to the club, much more needed! Extraordinary proud. I am delighted for you!" —WITH PTI

9.75 crore farmers to get over ₹1,50,000 cr

The current payment to be transferred Monday is for August-November period. States first upload farmers' data in the public finance management system, a platform that identifies bank details and authenticates Aadhaar details of beneficiaries, and then returns the data to states for physical signatures.

"The support will aid farmers partially meet the expenses on fertilisers and pesticides in ongoing kharif sowing season that will complete by end of next month," said an agriculture ministry official. Prime Minister Narendra Modi will interact with farmer beneficiaries during the evening of benefit transfer and will also address the nation.

After winning state assembly poll for third consecutive term, chief minister Mamata Banerjee agreed to join PM-Kisan scheme as West Bengal was the only state that resisted implementation. It has transferred seven lakh farmers in the state received the benefit for the first time in May, getting together two instalments totalling ₹4,000 each, as many as 28.5 lakh farmers are expected to receive the benefit Monday as registration has increased substantially in past three months.

Home buyers now look beyond metros

Data analysed from financial presentations of the top seven listed real estate companies showed that they were getting up to launch around 92.5 MSP of residential space within the next one-two years. Apart from the top seven cities, they are also zeroing in on major tier-II and -III towns. At least 70-75% (₹4.75-69.40 MSP) of this supply may be launched in FY22, it added.

An analysis of numbers from previous financial years indicates a steady annual growth in launches. Despite Covid-19 in FY21, the total new launches by the top seven listed players rose 11% to around 28.3 MSP in FY20 to about 31.37 MSP in FY21.

The consultancy analysed data from Brigade Enterprises, Godrej Properties, Kotte-Patil, Mahindra Lifespaces Developers, Prestige Estates Projects, Paravankara and Sobha.

The current expansion pipeline clearly indicates that strong, listed developers will continue to dominate the new residential supply and accelerate their market share gain, Anandakrishnan said.

Robust housing sales by the top seven listed players in previous financial years have proved to be a huge confidence booster. Data indicated that these firms cumulatively sold around 3.261 MSP of housing in FY21 despite the pandemic. 7% growth over FY20, when about 30.45 MSP area was sold, Anandakrishnan said.

"Covid has driven a lot of latent demand into tier-II and -III cities. This demand is driven by improved economic growth, infrastructural developments, lower cost of living and more attractive real estate prices in these cities. However, it is the new work from home (WFH) dynamic that is also boosting demand most strongly in their favour as they continue to attract migrant professionals," Puri explained.

"The days when these cities' residential supply was dominated by local players will soon be over as the demand is being projected by leading developers, such as their expansion into such cities is a given, he emphasised. Among the major markets, Bengaluru is the most preferred, followed by Hyderabad, Mumbai Metropolitan Region (MMR) and Chennai as part of the five-listed developers' expansion plans, Anandakrishnan said.

Kochi, Coimbatore, GIFT city, Hosur, Thrissur and Trivandrum appear prominently in the expansion plan of these players into tier-II and -III cities, it added.

Hyundai leads where it matters most: SUV sales

The Korean automaker has been riding high on diesel model sales and features on the dashboard it offers to customers, as also the increasing usage of personal mobility after the pandemic.

Post the pandemic, an increasing number of people are travelling with their families in personal vehicles even for long distances and especially for vacations, Garg said. "Earlier if you had to go on a self-drive holiday, you were limited to 200-300 km, and beyond that it was via trains or flight—now that has increased to over 500 km. People increasingly prefer cars loaded with features—because they are spending a longer time in the car—and with a diesel engine, especially in the midsize SUV space and above."

This, in part, explains why the automaker's focus on diesel after BS6 has been paying off well—the time when Maruti Suzuki exited the diesel space. Garg said there are certain markets where diesel outlets petrol in cars that cost above ₹10 lakh (Maruti Suzuki doesn't have too many models in that price range). "While about 60% of all-India Creta sales are of diesel variants, in Punjab it's 68%, in Madhya Pradesh 67%, in Andhra Pradesh 66%, in Uttarakhand 65%, and in Uttar Pradesh it is 63%," he said.

The more expensive the car, the higher is the diesel engine sales percentage. For example, in Hyundai's Palisade, the top model in the SUV segment with a new product early next year, and that may further increase its SUV sales, he said.

73% and Uttar Pradesh 67%, Garg said.

"What has helped is that we are able to offer the diesel option at a marginally higher price than the petrol, for example, in the Alcazar, the price difference between petrol and diesel models is in the range of ₹15,000-25,000, even after BS6. So, our focus on diesel has been paying off."

Going forward, analysts said Hyundai will be able to maintain the lead in UVs at least in the calendar year, but post that Maruti Suzuki could bounce back. Gaurav Vangal, associate director, IHS Markit, told FE that in CY22 both the automakers could be competing neck and neck in UVs. "Maruti Suzuki is expected to launch the new Vitara Brezza early next year and an all-new seven-seater SUV after that, which will give a new momentum to its UV sales. At the same time, Hyundai is expected to get into the SUV segment with a new product early next year, and that may further increase its UV sales," he said.
