JPMorgan may include India bonds in 2024

TANIA CHEN & RONOJOY MAZUMDAR August 17

JPMORGAN CHASE & Co will likely include India's sovereign bonds on its indexes next year as investment hurdles get resolved, one of Europe's biggest asset managers said.

"According to our meeting with the index provider, India is keen on that inclusion even though it may not appear so to the outside," Sabrina Jacobs, a senior client portfolio manager for EM fixed income at Pictet Asset Management, said in an interview. "We are looking at mid-2024 as a start for the inclusion and then a phase in."

India has in recent years come close to opening its $1trillion government debt market to more global funds before pulling back from meeting the requirements for index inclusions. It's the world's last big emerging market that hasn't joined others like China on the international gauges.

Morgan Stanley estimated India's inclusion into two out of three global bond indexes, to a few commercial projects. Vishal Tulsyan, MD and CEO, MOAlts, said the realty industry would require ₹2.5 trillion for land acquisition but banks, NBFCs and HFCs are not allowed to lend to avoid the creation of asset bubbles. So, there was a strong demand from developers for this funding. Land deals worth up to ₹1 trillion are being traded in the Indian real estate market with developers getting into joint ventures or joint development with land owners.

However, developers are not comfortable with this arrangement and are looking for alternatives, Tulsyan said.

They had committed to put in 10% of their own funds with the rest coming from existing investors, HNIs and institutions.
