Now if you go and put a 75% weight on the higher number and a 25% weight on the lower number, you will get a higher number but that is not reflective of the fundamentals which are actually happening. It is the sampling which is actually delivering it to you. So, this entire conversation that we've had basically that the unemployment rate has increased, is in my opinion misinformed.

Do you think it is a good idea for government not to release data?

As an economist, I would say that data is something which is important. If you look at the elasticity of jobs to growth, that has been coming down significantly, not only in India but all over the world. Because of technology, growth has been happening by basically enhancements in productivity and by replacing labour with capital. As a result, job creation has not been happening. The overall unemployment rate or hidden unemployment (rate) etc is not informative. You have to open the hood and start looking at which are those sectors which are creating jobs and which are the sectors which are losing jobs because of the technological changes. To be able to do that you have to have data. That is something which I would actually (say) doing it more periodically is a good thing.

There is a trend of PM Kisan and NYAY by Congress. Are you worried for the economy in terms of productivity, competitiveness and fiscal pressure?

Overall, if you look historically, in India we have focused a lot on production because of the effect of amines etc. As a result, now we have our food production growing at more than 3.5% and population growing at about 1% or so. So, you have basically surplus and economics 101 tells you that therefore food prices will go down.

So, the big thing that we need to be doing in general for our agriculture sector is we need to be focusing on the marketing aspect. If you look at agriculture, we financial economist think about risk and return. The risk that in the agriculture sector is just humongous.

At ₹1.14L cr, April GST Collection Highest in a Month

New Delhi: India collected nearly ₹1.14 lakh crore in goods and services tax (GST) in April, the highest amount in a month since the rollout of the single tax in July 2017.

"Total gross GST revenue collected in April 2019 is ₹1,13,865 crore of which central GST (CGST) is ₹21,163 crore, state GST (SGST) is ₹28,801 crore, integrated GST is ₹54,733 crore and cess is ₹9,168 crore," a finance ministry statement said on Wednesday.

GST revenue in April was 16% higher than the monthly average collection of ₹98,114 crore in 2018-19.

Tax experts said the increase in collection pointed to stabilisation of GST revenue. "The steep increase in collection despite rate reductions during the past year indicates that GST revenues are now on the stabilisation curve," said MS Mani, partner, Deloitte India.

If the trend continues, then the GST target for 2019-20 would be within easy reach. The go-

- Compensation cess ₹1.01 lakh cr
- IGST balance pegged at ₹50,000 cr

vernment's finances had come under pressure last fiscal as GST revenue fell below target. For 2019-20, the government proposes to collect ₹610 lakh crore from CGST and ₹1.01 lakh crore as compensation cess. The IGST balance has been pegged at ₹50,000 crore. The CGST collection for 2018-19 was ₹4.25 lakh crore while compensation cess was over ₹97,000 crore.
