Sengar's Writ Runs Large, No Tears for Rape Victim

Arman Sharma

A court order that allows a rape victim to sue her rapist for damages is a landmark judgment. It is a step towards justice for the victim and a warning to the rapist. The court has held that the victim can sue the rapist for damages under the law of tort. This is a significant step as it allows the victim to seek compensation for the physical and mental trauma she has suffered. The court has also held that the victim can sue the rapist for damages under the law of tort. This is a significant step as it allows the victim to seek compensation for the physical and mental trauma she has suffered.

The MLAs did not hold their own trial. In 2017, his brother Atul Sengar was an IPS officer. Ram Lal Verma then added all superior officers of police of Uttar Pradesh to the list of defendants. The case is pending in court. Verma took a plea in court, filed an application under Right to Information Act to know who the case was for missing each token that the entire case diary had gone missing from the records.

Sengar holds three guns but the licence of none has been cancelled in the past one year while the victim's family and her lawyer could not get a gun licence despite repeated pleas. In this part of the state, even luck seems to suit Sengar's way. In 2016, for instance, when the district panchayat elections were held and Sengar then a Samawadi Party MLA, he put up his wife Sangita Singh as an independent candidate as the SP refused to give her the party ticket. Sangita and the SP candidate finished with the same number of votes, again was flipped and Sangita won the chair. Sengar later ditched the SP to join the BJP and won as MLA again in 2017.

THE FALLING OUT
 Tales of the closeness and then a bitter rivalry between Sengar and the victim's family are folklore in Makhi. Locals speak of how the victim's grand father was once a Sengar family loyal and her uncle was virtually Sengar's right-hand man in criminal activities till about 15 years ago, when the MLA's brother Atul accused both the victim's father and uncle of a murderous assault. While the father was acquitted, the uncle went missing, shifted base to Delhi and it was only a non-bailable warrant issued by the court last year in discovery that led to the police trial by arrest him from Delhi. A quick trial saw him being sentenced to 10 years in jail last month. The verdict was criticised in Makhi village where locals said it was not deserved. For "pleading insanity and Vaidhanki".

Things came to a head for even the two families in 2015. This was when, in the 2015 assembly elections, Atul Sengar put up his wife Archana Singh as a candidate while the rape victim's mother decided to contest too, according to locals. This became an issue of prestige with the Sengar family holding control over the post of gram panchayat for nearly 30 years, with Sengar himself being the first gram panchayat holder for nearly 10 years. "Under pressure, the victim's mother withdrew her nomination and Archana won. But the defeat had been cast for a showdown," said a villager, who did not wish to be identified.

THE RAPE CASE
 On June 11, 2017 the victim went missing and her mother lodged a first information report on charges of rape and kidnapping against four people of the village - Awadhesh Singh, Shubham and latter's mother Shashi Singh and sister. They are said to be close to Sengar. She was allegedly raped in a car, at Shubham's house and later sold for Rs 60,000 to a person in Agra. UP Police recovered her on June 20 from Auriyia district and her parents brought her home from a Child Welfare Society to Delhi on June 30 in a frightened and tormented mental state. She then told her family that Shashi had taken her to Sengar's house in Makhi earlier on June 4, when the MLA too raped her. On August 17, 2017, the victim gave an application saying so but UP Police did not lodge any FIR till

A FAMILY DESTROYED
 Between the claims and counter-claims, a few in Makhi do sympathise with the victim's family but are afraid to do so publicly. "It may have been a family of criminals and history-shooters but the family has been wiped out. There has to be an end to law. There is no one left to even pursue the matter in court. Something is amiss here... this so-called accident too," said a person, speaking on condition of anonymity.
