Nifty Pharma leads High on EILiLiy deals

Since April, the index has surged 15% against 1.7% gain in Nifty50

DEEPAK KORGANIKAR
Mumbai, 10 May

The Nifty Pharma index hit an all-time high of 14,228, after rising 35 per cent intraday on the National Stock Exchange (NSE) on Monday, led by a strong rally in stocks like Torrent Pharma, Alkem Laboratories, Cadila Healthcare, Aurobindo Pharma, Dr Reddy's Laboratories, Sun Pharmaceutical Industries, and Divi's Labs. The Pharma index outperformed its previous high of 14,020.70, touched in intraday trade on April 7, 2015.

normalise thereafter. "We are also concerned that a surging Covid will discourage patients from delaying doctor visits which may impact overall FY22 growth," the report said.

In April 2021, Glenmark Pharmaceuticals (181 per cent YoY), Cipla (73.5 per cent), and Alkem Laboratories (63.7 per cent) delivered robust growth. Torrent Pharma, Sun Pharma, Lupin, and Alembic Pharmaceuticals also showed better traction, albeit slower than the industry in April 2021.

Among individual stocks, Sun Pharma hit a four-year high of ₹702.50, up 3.3 per cent on the NSE in intraday trade on Monday. The stock was trading at its highest level since April 2017. Shares of Cadila, Aurobindo, Divi's, and Lupin also hit their 52-week highs during the day.

The Street reacted positively to the announcements by Cipla, Lupin, and Sun Pharma about their tie-up with US drug major Eli Lilly. The Dividend yield funds: Quality portfolio is key Restrictive mandate can result in these schemes missing out on good opportunities

After giving negative returns (category average -7.9 per cent in 2018 and meagre returns (3.6 per cent) in 2019), the dividend yield category has bounced back.

In one-year category, average return currently stands at 66.6 per cent. Before committing money to these funds based on past returns, investors need to understand their nature and potential risks.

Where do they invest? Dividend yield of stocks these funds pick must be higher than a threshold level. "We look for good current dividend yield, earnings growth, and free cash flow generation," says Swati Kulkarni, executive vice-president and fund manager, UTI Asset Management.

Kulkarni has been managing the ₹2,618.46 crore UTI Dividend Yield Fund since 2005. She believes companies that have good earnings growth prospects can keep raising their dividends. Currently, she selects stocks whose dividend yield is higher than 1.3 per cent. At any given point, more than 70 per cent of her fund's portfolio is in high dividend yield stocks.

STRONG RETURNS OVER PAST YEAR (%)

dividend yield of the stocks we invest in will be more than that of the Nifty 50. In addition, these companies should have catalysts that can drive re-rating over 12-18 months," says Rahul Singh, chief investment officer-equities, Tata Mutual Fund.

Sound fundamentals These funds invest in high-quality companies. The portfolios of these schemes generally consist of well-established companies with robust balance sheets," says Chintan Haria, head-product and strategy, ICICI Prudential Mutual Fund.

Over a 10-year period, dividend yield funds have given a compound annual category average return of 11.1 per cent. "This universe gives an opportunity to invest in stable growth companies with value picks. This combination has worked well in the past and could continue to do so, given that the value theme is gaining prominence," says Singh. Over the past 14 years, he says, the Nifty Dividend Opportunities 50 Index has given a compound annual return that was 2 percentage points higher than the Nifty 50.

Dividend yield funds invest in companies with stable earnings streams and profit pools. "The corollary to this is that these funds tend to be less volatile," says Prateek Mehta, co-founder and chief business officer, Scripbox. Add Singh: "Historically, the Nifty Dividend Opportunities 50 Index has performed better than the Nifty 50 when the market corrects." Haria says dividend yield funds tend to be attractive in a low interest-rate environment.

Restrictive mandate These funds have a more restrictive mandate than, say, flexi-cap funds. "In some years, enough stocks may not be available that meet the two criteria - a high dividend yield and good free cash flow. That can cause underperformance vis-à-vis funds with more relaxed mandates," says Kulkarni.

Many stocks in sectors like pharma or banking do not pay out high dividend yields and can't be a part of these funds. Kulkarni says that stock selection based on sound fundamentals, however, enables these funds to perform over the long term.

Be prepared for periods of underperformance. "When a rally is driven completely by the growth theme, this category could underperform," says Singh. The average return of this category has been negative in 2011, 2013, 2015, and 2018.

Despite the recent run-up, investors could garner good returns from these funds if they have a seven-year horizon and take the systematic investment plan route. Of the 20 per cent of the equity portfolio that should be invested in value-oriented funds, 5-10 per cent may be allocated to dividend yield funds (as subset of the value category).

Sebi plans new framework on client collateral

The rules are aimed at identifying each client's collateral and ensuring it is utilised towards the margin of that client only.

"In the past, there have been instances of misuse of client collateral. In such a scenario, not only confidence of investors in market integrity is shaken, but it also brings disrepute to the entire ecosystem of trading," Sebi said in a discussion paper inviting public comments.

The new framework aims at tackling the issue of misappropriation and misuse of client funds by brokers and also to shield the clients in an event the broker defaults. Sebi has proposed a new reporting mechanism which will provide visibility of client-wise collateral at all levels such as the trading member, clearing member and the clearing corporation.
