Kya Hum Ek Dusre Ko Jaante Hai

We in our daily lives come across so many couples in our friend circle or relatives or ourselves who after spending so many years together with our partners are still unaware of so many things. It will be so nice if your partner knows your best buddy from school, or as a matter of fact your favourite subject and teacher from college, the secret plans made in summer vacations with cousins.

It will make so much difference in strengthening the bond of friendship in a relationship.

Mujhe Kuch Kehna Hai

The most common complaint of a husband is that his wife speaks non-stop and wife complains, my husband has no time to listen to me. In reality all those conversations are useless as we don't say what we actually want to say. So many things are unsaid in a relationship and so many meaningless things are said for the sake of saying.

Realistic Expectations in Relationship

In marriage we often assume unrealistic expectations from our partner. Wife's often go to an extreme of not letting their husband have friends after marriage on the other hand husband demands from their wife to take their permission before meeting her parents. It's ridiculous to have unfair expectations from each other, rather have realistic expectations

Being showered with Love, Affection and Care

In realistic expectations partner instead of saying I Love You in words, shows through care by taking care of needs of each other. When a wife prepared the favourite dish of her husband or wears the dress of her husband's favourite colour, she is trying to show her love more than words. Similarly when a husband plans birthday party for his wife or makes special tea in the morning, it's his way of showing love and care.

Trust, Honesty & Respect in Relationships

The three strong pillars in any relationship is trust, honesty and respect, if anyone is broken the foundation of relationship is shaken.

Quality time together (Humara Waqt)

In marriage the most neglected is spouse, we give so much importance to others in our relationship that we forget to nurture the most important thing, by spending quality time with each other.

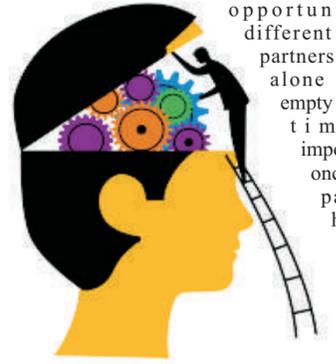

Morning walks, evening tea, movie outings, or long vacations are necessary to keep the bond strong.

Parenting and Empty Nest

We often see that as soon couples become parents, their role as father and mother dominates the role as husband and wife. So it's very important to balance the role as parent and be a role model to our children.

When children grow up and leave for higher education and better career opportunities in different cities, partners are left alone in their empty nest. This time it's important that once again as partners, husband and wife needs to bond together with changing needs

Let's cherish this beautiful relationship with new perspective

Fundamental Duties :

A Study of Citizens' Sensitivity

KOTA. India has the youngest population in the world, with 64% of its citizens being of working age. Young people have the power to shape the nation's future, change the status quo, and choose the direction of their beloved nation. But the real question is if the youth of the nation adore it and call it their "Beloved Nation." The Preamble's ideology emphasises that citizens should have both the Fundamental Rights provided in Part III of the Constitution and the Fundamental Duties outlined in Part IV of the Constitution toward the country.

Duties for citizens of India, according to article 51-A,

1. To uphold the constitution and to respect his principles and institutions, as well as
2. To love and uphold the lofty principles that motivated the nation's fight for independence.
3. To maintain and safeguard India's sovereignty, unity, and integrity.
4. To defend the country and participate in national service when called upon.
5. To foster concord and a spirit of fraternal
6. To value and maintain the country's diverse culture's rich legacy.
7. To care for and safeguard the natural

- environment, which includes forests, lakes, rivers, and wildlife, as well as to have compassion for all living things.
8. To foster a scientific mindset, humanism, and an inquiry and reforming spirit.
9. To protect public property and to abstain from violence.
10. To strive for excellence in all realms of individual and collective activity so that the nation continues to soar to new heights of success and endeavor.

A survey is an attempt to find out the objectives of individual's awareness and sensitivity to or emotional attachment to national signs and symbols of Fundamental Duties in the present era. The survey was done on 18 to 50 & above years old people from the Rajasthan state during May 2022. The study finds that today's population, especially young people, have a reasonable understanding of fundamental duties as well as a sensitivity to or emotional attachment to national signs and symbols.

When a trigger happens and the stimulus is shown, individuals experience a strong sense of love and belonging for the country and its signs and symbols.
