helped millions of young aspirants get into the country's best institutions. In 2019, AESL had partnered private equity (PE) firm Blackstone to create India's largest digitally enabled, omnichannel test prep company.

In late 2019, PE firm Blackstone picked up 37.5 per cent stake in Aakash, valuing the company at $500 million. Now both Aakash founders and Blackstone will also become shareholders in Byju's, said sources. "Rather than fighting it out on a battleground, we felt we should join forces and engineering entrance exams, school and board exams, KVPY, NTSE, Olympiads, and other foundation-level exams. The institute clocks an annual turnover of about ₹1,200 crore, according to sources.

The transaction will help Byju's scale up its core business of tapping the K-12 education space, where it is witnessing 100 per cent growth. It will also help it to tap the test prep space as the 'pure online model' will take many years for students to adopt.

Byju's, which is backed by investors such as Qatar Investment Authority, General Atlantic, Tiger will have four business models — which include its core model, Aakash, WhiteHat Jr, and Osmo — doing at least $200 million in revenue. "That's a lot of levers for growth," said Raveendran, expecting to cross a revenue significantly higher than $1 billion by next year.
