Budget's Twin Targets: Higher Capex, Lower Fiscal Deficit

RAMNATH KRISHNAN
GROUP CEO, ICRA

With the budget just a week away as preciations are running high. Several eshallenges abound owing to slowing to slowing to eloosit to every and the need to continue on the fiscal consolidation path.

The budget has the timemviable task of having to address these issues similarancously. A balance is sought to be which the Budget Estimates (BE) for FY24 are likely to acknowledge.

Given this sobering feature, lower subsidies hold the key to striking requisite balance between enhancing productive spending and fiscal consolidation. We believe that a sharp fall in food anoffertiliser subsidies in PY24 relative to FY25 will afford the government breething room on the spending side. This will ald a double digit growth in capex spending, taking the budgeted amount to about 33.59.0 trillion from ments like roads, rallways, urban in-frastructure, and power.

Within the stepped up capex we artic-pate that government would focus on the Gati Shakti and National Infras-ructure Pipeline (NP) targets. Fur-ther, dedicated allocations for specified large infrastructure projects such as High-speed Roil, Jal deevan Mission,

Bharat Mala, Sagar Mala, Smart Ci ties, and Inland Waterways develop ment could help expedite these pro ment count neip experime treese pre-grammes.

Additionally incremental allocations towards NaiBFID and the NiIF would help them to ramp up their lending in-westment to such programmes in addi-tion, the government may continue a provide a path to affordable and routial housing. It could also consider increas-ing the allocation for an expanded PLI scheme to support the domestic manu-facturings ector as welfas generate em-ployment, to build on the nascent suc-cess seen solve.
