Ant Group's stalled IPO seen slashing its value by $140 billion

BLOOMBERG
November 9

CHINA'S MOVE TO halt Ant Group's massive stock debut could reduce the fintech giant's value by as much as $140 billion, according to analysts' revised estimates.

New regulations that could force Ant to raise more capital to back lending and seek national licenses to operate across the country may reduce the firm's valuation by about half, according to estimates from Morningstar and other firms. The regulatory details are preliminary and could be subject to change.

If Ant's $280 billion pre-IPO valuation is halved, it would essentially mean the company is worth less than what it was two years ago when it raised money from some of the world's largest funds including Warburg Pincus, Silver Lake Management and Tenasek Holdings.

The reduced valuation also means potentially lower fees for investment banks like China International Capital Corp that were counting on a windfall from Ant's record-setting IPO. And it gives billionaire Jack Ma's firm less heft to carry out acquisitions as it looks to expand beyond its Chinese base and take the fight domestically to Tencent Holdings. In a drastic turn of events, China put the brakes last week on Ant's $35 billion share sale just days before the fintech juggernaut was due to go public in Shanghai and Hong Kong.
