At 2.7 million, mobile user additions in July highest in over a year

JATIN GROVER
New Delhi, September 27

THE TOTAL MOBILE user additions in July at 2.7 million were the highest in last 13 months in the country, according to data by the Telecom Regulatory Authority of India (Trai).

The growth in subscriber base was contributed by telecom operators Jio and Airtel. An overall net increase in subscriber base suggests a rise in mobile penetration in the country and that telecom companies can prepare for next leg of tariff hikes, according to analysts.

The total mobile subscriber base was at 1.146 billion as of July end.

Among the telcos, Reliance Jio's subscriber additions were also the highest in last one year, while Airtel's subscriber additions were highest in last six months.

Jio added 3.9 million mobile subscribers, taking its total base to 442.5 million, whereas Airtel added 1.52 million subscribers, and its mobile user base as of July end was at 375.24 million.

In the wireline segment too, Jio continues to lead. The operator, for the first time, crossed 10 million wireline subscribers in July, Trai data showed.

Both Airtel and Jio are also gaining subscribers as Vodafone Idea continues to lose subscribers for the 28th straight month in July.

Trai data suggests that for the first time, Vodafone Idea's market share fell below 20%.

In July, the company lost 1.3 million subscribers, taking its total base to 228.3 million.

State-owned BSNL lost wireless subscribers for the 19th straight month. In July, the company lost 1.4 million wireless subscribers, taking its total base to 98.1 million.

While for BSNL, the subscriber loss is due to absence of 4G services, for Vodafone

WIRELESS SUBSCRIBERS IN JULY

	1.146 bn	20%	10 mn
Wireless subscribers*
Reliance Jio	442.5	Change in net subscribers* ▲ 3.9	Market share (%) 38.6
Bharti Airtel	375.24	▲ 1.5	32.74
Vodafone Idea	228.3	▼ 1.3	19.92
BSNL	98.1	▼ 1.4	8.57

Idea the absence of funding as well as 5G services, weak spends on the network is leading to subscriber loss, according to analysts.

As of July-end, Reliance Jio has a wireless subscribers' market share of 38.60%, up from 38.35% in June.

In comparison, Bharti Airtel's market share rose to 32.74% from 32.68% in June, whereas Vodafone Idea's share fell to 19.92% from 20.08% in the wireless subscribers' segment.

As per the TRAI data, barring Punjab, Kolkata, and Andhra Pradesh, all other service areas have shown growth in their wireless subscribers during July. In urban areas, the overall mobile subscriber rose to 628.55 million from 626.07, whereas the rural subscriber base rose to 517.69 million from 517.51 million.

Of the total 1.146 billion subscribers, 1.046 billion or 91.29% were active, according to the peak visitor location register, which shows the number of active subscribers, including those roaming on a mobile operator's network.

The total active subscriber base during the month rose by 3.6 million.

While for Airtel, all its subscribers were active during the month, whereas Jio's active subscribers base was at 415.94 million, with an addition of 1.4 million active subscribers during the month.

Vodafone Idea and BSNL continue to lose active subscribers by 413,345 and 364,300, respectively, during the month.

Vodafone Idea's total active subscriber base was at 202.3 million, while that of BSNL was at 51.6 million. With regard to the 4G subscriber base, both Jio and Airtel added 6.8 million subscribers, whereas Vodafone Idea lost 0.6 million subscribers in July.

4G subscriber additions for Airtel and Jio came on the back of the shift in the subscriber base from 2G as well as loss of subscribers by Vodafone Idea, according to analysts.

Since Jio's network is completely on 4G from the start, its 4G subscriber addition is the same as that of total additions. Airtel added 2.9 million 4G subscribers, taking its total 4G subscribers to 244.41 million.

Vodafone Idea's 4G subscriber base was at 124.27 million as of July-end.

Airtel's wireline subscriber base at the end of July was at 7.6 million, whereas BSNL's subscriber base in the segment was at 6.4 million. During the month, BSNL lost 41,779 users in the wireline segment, whereas Airtel added 150,311 users.

Asian Games: Indian shooters on target, MBBS dropout strikes gold

MIHIR VASAVDA
Hangzhou, September 27

DEEP IN THE cramped, dimly-lit bowels of the sprawling Fuyang Yinhu Sports Complex, Sift Kaur Samra, 22, leans on a pillar, clutches her gold and silver medals, and talks about career choices -- a past in medicine, present in sport, and a future, she hopes, in civil services.

Six months ago, the rifle shooter found herself at a crossroads after winning her first senior international medal. Until then, Samra was an MBBS student, preparing to be a doctor. But a bronze medal at the World Cup in Bhopal gave rise to lofty sporting ambitions.

"Soon after, I dropped out of MBBS," she says. The decision to abandon a career in medicine and pursue sport -- unconventional in most Indian households -- was a call taken by her parents. And Samra went along, with full conviction.

On Wednesday, their leap of faith bore rewards.

Samra won an individual gold in the 50m Rifle 3-position event -- dubbed as the Test match of shooting for its punishing nature, length of match and unique challenges -- and set a world record to her name with a tally of 469.6 in the final. She also teamed up with Ashi Chouksey, who also won an individual bronze, and Manini Kaushik for a team silver.

"Having the India flag (fly) in China is a great experience," she says. "It's very emotional."

Samra's dominant display from start to finish stood out on a day when India dominated the pistol, rifle and shotgun ranges, winning seven medals in total, including two gold, two silver and three bronze medals.

Sift Kaur Samra after winning the gold medal in the women's 50m rifle 3 positions event in Hangzhou on Wednesday.

Earlier, the 25m pistol team of Manu Bhaker, Esha Singh and Rhythm Sangwan won the team gold, which was followed up with Esha showing nerves of steel in a tense individual final, where she won a silver medal.

Across the road at the shotgun range, Anand Jeet Naruka, Angad Vir Bajwa and Gurjot Khangura won the team bronze in skeet shooting, before Naruka played the "best match" of his life to win an individual silver.

The medal rush at the shooting ranges took India's overall tally to 22, with 5 gold, 7 silver and 10 bronze, placing sixth on the medals' table. More than half of India's medals -- 12 -- are from shooting, a sport that has been in the dumps after an Olympic-size disaster in Tokyo.

In the bigger picture, the team medals -- which aren't handed at the Olympics -- may not mean much. But Pierre Beauchamp, Indian shooting's high-performance director, said it was an indication of "depth" in each discipline.

"We are building a template for the Olympic Games," says Beauchamp. "We have depth in all of the domains and you see it here. Team medals by themselves are one thing. But when you get team medals and individual medals, that's key."

In this context, Samra's gold assumes high significance. Her day began by teaming up with Chouksey and Kaushik to win the silver. The trio began shooting around the same time, roughly five years ago, but their initiation to the sport was different.

Chouksey started shooting only so that she could skip the NCC lessons; Kaushik learnt the sport by aiming at balloons on the terrace of her house; while Samra picked up the sport because of her cousin, also a shotgun shooter.

Of the three, Samra has looked unflappable this year.

On a hot streak, having also won an Olympic quota recently, Samra woke up Wednesday morning with a "burning desire" to win India's elusive individual gold in shooting. "That was missing and I wanted to be the first one to win an individual gold at these Games," she says. "So I was just preparing for that."

The 3-position event tests an athlete's ability in kneeling, prone and standing positions. With two Chinese shooters in the fray for a medal, Samra needed a strong beginning, because very rarely at these Games have the home country's shooter let a lead slip.

"I knew if we could get into the lead first, we would be able to build on it," she says. "I am strong in standing position, so I focussed on getting the kneeling (part) right."

Her start was wobbly, but after five shots, Samra looked at the screen in front of her and realised she was still with the rest of the pack. Not willing to take the match to the final few shots, she let it rip. And by the time the prone position ended -- after 10 shots -- Samra had built a healthy 3-point lead over her closest opponent, China's Zhang Qiongyue.

She continued to shoot with a surgeon's precision in the final segment of the match, also her most favoured, consistently getting closer to the bulls-eye while others in the field struggled to get anywhere close.

She ended with nearly seven points more than the second-placed Chinese, a kind of dominance not seen by an Indian shooter at these Games so far. It would have been an India gold and silver, but Chouksey endured a heartbreak on the final shot, where a poor 8.9 saw her concede the second position to Zhang Qiongyue.

The team silver, and the overall medal rush, however, more than made up for that disappointment.
