Abstract

In Lexington, Virginia, lie the mortal remains of a legend, General Stonewall Jackson. General Jackson earned his nickname at the First Battle of Manassas. This was during the American Civil War, the the American Civil War, the Confederate soldiers were hard pressed. General Gerard Barnard Bee was desperately trying to rally his troops to withstand the Federal attack General Bee rode up to inform forces were being beaten back. Jackson replied, "Sir we shall give them the bayonet! General Bee immediately rallied the remnants of his is Jackson standing like a stone wall. Let us determine to di here and we will conquer!" His men followed him routing the Yankees. They won because of Jackson's strong words and from then on General Jackson." instrumental in the Confederate victories at Second Manasses, Antietem and Chancellorsville and many say that at the rate $h e$ was winning the Confederates could have won the war. But it was not to be. At the young age of thirty nine while riding at night he was shot accidentally night he was shot accidentally by the bullets of his own men and died.
