10 US balloons flew in our airspace: China

AP BEIJING

China on Monday said more than 10 US high-altitude balloons have flown in its airspace during the past year without its permission...

Without the approval of Chinese authorities...

The Chinese allegation comes after the US shot down a suspected Chinese spy balloon that had crossed from Alaska to South Carolina...

Foreign Ministry spokesman Wang Wenbin gave no details about the alleged US balloons, how they had been dealt with or whether they had government or military links...

It is also common for US balloons to illegally enter the airspace of other countries, Wang said in a daily briefing...

sharp decline in relations over Taiwan, trade, human rights and threatening Chinese actions in the disputed South China Sea.

Also on Monday, the Philippines accused a Chinese coast guard ship of targeting a Philippine coast guard vessel with a military-grade laser and temporarily blinding some of its crew in the South China Sea, calling it a "blatant violation of Manila's sovereign rights."

Wang said a Philippine coast guard vessel had trespassed into Chinese waters without permission on February 6 and that Chinese coast guard vessels responded "professionally and with restraint."

China claims virtually all of its strategic waterway and has been steadily beefing up its maritime forces and island outposts.

China and the Philippines are maintaining communication through diplomatic channels in this regard, Wang said. China's Defense Ministry did not immediately respond to a question about the incident.

US denies Beijing's accusation

AFP WASHINGTON

The White House on Monday denied Beijing's accusation that the United States has been sending balloons over China to conduct surveillance, as tensions about espionage rise between the two superpowers.

"Any claim that the US government operates surveillance balloons over the PRC is false," the National Security Council spokeswoman Adrienne Watson said on Twitter.

It is China that has a high-altitude surveillance balloon program for intelligence collection, that it has used to violate the sovereignty of the US and over 40 countries across 5 continents.

The State Department responded with a similar rejection, and called Beijing's accusation "the latest example of China scrambling to do damage control." It has repeatedly and wrongly claimed the surveillance balloon it sent over the United States was a weather balloon and to this day has failed to offer any credible explanations.

Haley faces 'high-wire act' in 2024 bid against Trump

AP CHARLESTON (US)

Now have navigated the turbulent politics of the Trump era like Nikki Haley.

In early 2016, the then-South Carolina governor said she was "embarrassed" by candidate Donald Trump and decided to support Clinton.

And shortly after Trump left the White House, Haley, whose resume by then included an ambassadorship to the United Nations, vowed not to step in the way if he ran for the 2024 Republican presidential nomination.

Yet on Wednesday, she is poised to become the first major Republican candidate to enter the race against him.

It's going to be quite the high-wire act, said veteran Republican strategist Terry Sullivan. "She says she's always been an underdog. She will be again."

The 51-year-old Haley may be the first to take on Trump, but a half-dozen or more high-profile Republicans are expected to join the GOP's 2024 presidential nomination contest over the coming months.

Likely rivals include Sen. Tim Scott, a fellow South Carolina elected official in a state where Trump has already locked up endorsements from the governor and his senior senator, Lindsey Graham.

Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis and former Vice President Mike Pence could also be formidable foes should they run, as widely expected. Indeed, on the eve of this week's announcement, there is broad agreement that Haley — the only Republican woman of color expected in the 2024 contest, a politician who loves to remind people that she has never lost an election — is about to be tested as never before.

Trump has stepped up his attacks on Haley in recent weeks. But allies describe the former governor, who is the daughter of Indian immigrants, as a savvy executive uniquely positioned to lead a new generation of Republicans. They understand that the fight ahead could get ugly.

"She took the bull by the horns and said, 'That doesn't matter to me. I'm going to run,'" I. Smith. "She did that when she ran for governor, and that's what you're going to see when she runs for president."

After their genitals were cut, some women search for healing

AP CAIRO

She remembers it all: How female relatives held her down when she was 11, legs spread and genitals exposed. The fear that stifled her body. The stranger in black holding the scissors. And the pain.

Like so many others, the 34-year-old Egyptian woman has lived with the psychological and physical repercussions of that day, when she was subjected to a practice many activists call "mutilation."

For N.S., who asked to be identified only by her initials to discuss the sensitive topic, the trauma continuing into adulthood was accompanied by a desire to reclaim control over her health and body.

"I had a feeling of being incomplete and that I will never feel happy because of this," she said. "It's a horrible feeling."

A global target aiming to eradicate the deeply entrenched practice by 2030, and protect the next generations of girls, though campaigners acknowledge the difficulties in achieving that. The United Nations has designated an International Day of Zero Tolerance for Female Genital Mutilation, or FGM, observed every February 6.

Meanwhile, some women living with the consequences have embarked on deeply personal journeys to heal. They search for answers, sometimes scouring the Internet, amid treatment gaps in many countries, or shame and possible related sexual complications.

Prevalent in parts of Africa, the Middle East and Asia, cutting has been performed in communities of different cultures and faiths. It can be viewed as a rite of passage or linked to beliefs about chastity or femininity and cleanliness, and is fuelled from generation-to-generation by social pressure.

France: Its troops misrepresented in Wakanda Forever

AP PARIS

France's defence minister has denounced the way he says French soldiers deployed in Africa appear to be depicted in the Marvel Studios superhero film "Black Panther: Wakanda Forever" as "false and misleading."

Minister Sebastien Lecornu "strongly condemned" the similarity of a fictional group of villainous mercenaries with French armed forces members, in a tweet published Sunday about the film that came out in November in France and the US.

Tens of thousands of Israelis — hoisting flags, blowing on horns and chanting "democracy" and "no to dictatorship" — protested outside the parliament building Monday as Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's government formally launched a contentious plan to overhaul the country's legal system.

It was the largest protest outside the Knesset in years and reflected the deep divisions over the plan. The proposed changes have triggered weeks of mass demonstrations, drawn cries of protests from influential business leaders and former military men and even prompted a statement of concern from President Yoel Rabin.

Despite a plea from the nation's figurehead president to put the legislation on hold, Netanyahu's allies approved a series of legislative changes during a stormy committee meeting Tuesday. The vote now sends the legislation to the full parliament for a series of votes — an opening salvo in a battle expected to stretch on for weeks.

"They hear our cry. They hear the strong voice of truth," opposition leader Yair Lapid said from the stage outside parliament. "They hear it and they're afraid."

Netanyahu and his supporters say the proposed changes are needed to rein in a judiciary that was too much power. But his critics say they destroy Israeli democracy. They also say that Netanyahu, who is on trial for a series of corruption charges, has a conflict of interest.
