Heavy rains lash Kerala, red alertissued for Ernakulam, Idukki, Thrissurby IMD

PATHANAMTHITTA/IDUKKI, NOV 14 /--/ With heavy rains lashing various parts of the state since Saturday night, the India Meteorological Department (IMD) today declared a red alert in central Kerala districts of Ernakulam, Idukki and Thrissur for the day.

Chief minister Pinarayi Vijayan, in a Facebook post, asked everyone to be extra vigilant in view of the risk of landslides and other hazards due to the unseasonal rainfall. Authorities and the public need to be extra vigilant in the event of heavy rains in Kerala as part of the westerly winds, he said. He said that people living in landslide and flood-prone areas will have to relocate to safer places or nearby relief camps as there is a possibility of widespread rains in the coming hours. The cleanliness of the camps, availability of food and a screening system for diseases should be ensured, he said.

Later, in a press release, the chief minister said that in a meeting of district collectors and officials it has been decided to limit the number of pilgrims to Lord Ayyappa temple at Sabarimala in the next three to four days due to the heavy rains. The ritualistic bathing in the river Pampa will not be allowed as its levels were dangerously high, spot booking will be stopped for the time and changing dates of those who booked through virtual queue system will also be considered to control the flow of pilgrims, the release

The chief minister, in the release, also said that the Kakki dam has been opened. The heavy rains led to water level in various dams in the state rising to the red alert mark, prompting the government to open one of the shutters of Cheruthoni dam of Idukki reservoir in the afternoon. Shutter number 3 of Cheruthoni dam was raised by 40 centimetres at 2 PM after the water level in the reservoir reached 2398.94 feet, close to the red alert mark of 2399.03 feet. Earlier in the day, due to the heavy rains, water level in various places along the Periyarriver was seen to be rising, the state government said. The heavy rains in undated roads in several parts of southern Kerala, which also saw landslides in some parts. Adding to this, the Tamil Nadu government today morning announced that the water level in the Mullaperiyar dam reached 140 feet, indicating the likelihood of its shutters being also opened if the water continues to rise.

As a result, people living on both sides of the Periyarriver should be extra vigilant as the shutters of the dam could be opened in the next 24 hours if water level rises further and there was a possibility that excess water would overflow, the Idukki district administration said earlier in the day.

At 3 PM, the water level in Mullaperiyar was 140.10 feet and as per the Supreme Court directions, Tamil Nadu can retain water in the reservoir up to the 142 feet mark. The district administration of Pathanamthitta, which too received heavy rainfall, during the day has advised extreme caution, especially by those living close to river banks or landslideprone areas.It advised moving people in landslide and flood-prone areas to relief camps.

Visuals on news channels showed submerged roads in various parts of Pathanamthitta and Kollam districts, where an orange alert has been issued. Incessant rains caused minor landslides and disruption of train services in some parts of Kerala on Saturday, prompting authorities to sound extreme caution in hilly areas, river sides and tour-

The IMD on Saturday had predicted extremely heavy rains in Thiruvananthapuram, while very heavy rainfall was forecast for Kollam, Pathanamthitta, Alappuzha, Kottayam and Idukki districts. Thunderstorms coupled with lightning are also very likely to occur at one or two places in the state till November 16, according to the IMD.A red alert indicates heavy to extremely heavy rains of over 20 cm in 24 hours, while orange alert denotes very heavy rains from 6 cm to 20 cm of rains. A yellow alert means heavy rainfall between 6 to 11 cm. (PTI)

No point raising Pegasus; Oppn should not link Parliament session with polls: Naqvi

NEW DELHI, NOV 14 /--/ With the Congress set to raise the Pegasus snooping allegations in Parliament again, Union minister Mukhtar Abbas Naqvi today said what is the point of disrupting the House over issues that are "not based on facts", and also asserted that the Opposition should avoid linking the upcoming Wintersession with assembly polls.

The deputy leader of RajyaSabha said the government is ready to discuss and debate all issues on the basis of the decision of the chair LokSabha and RajyaSabha.In an interview with news agency PTI, Naqvi also took a dig at the Congress over disruptions in previous parliamentary sessions, saying that in the last seven years, Prime Minister NarendraModi has established that "democracy deliv-"dynasty and disturbs". Asked about the Opposition unity during the last session of Parliament, he said the BJP and Prime Minister Modi believe that there should be a "mazboot (strong)" not "majboor (helpless)" Opposition, but unfortunately in their scramble to lead the Opposition, the influence of such parties is getting diminished."They should unite on issues. Last time they united just to disrupt," he said. The Cabinet Committee on Parliament Affairs has recommended that the Winter session of Parliament be held from November 29 to December 23, according to sources. Asked about the Congress' assertion that it will raise the Pegasus snooping allegations in Parliament again, Naqvi said what they have decided is not important, whatever is decided with unanimity, the government will stand by

"Till when will they drag their stories and tales about spying. There is no point of raising it. These are issues that are not based on facts or logic. So, if you want to disrupt the House over illogical issues, it is up to you," the Minority Affairs Minister said. Hitting out at the Congress, Naqvi said, "We were ready to discuss price rise last time, we also fixed the time. Pegasus has been discussed many times and they have been exposed every

The Supreme Court has given its verdict and also other agencies have made their stand clear but the problem with the Congress is that it is "the James Bond of spying", the minister said. When in Opposition, the Congress creates a "hullabaloo" over spying and when in power it spreads a "web of surveillance", alleged. The Congress' history is such that they have even spied on their own home minister and finance minister, he claimed. "So, all this is fake and fabricated but despite that whatever the chair decides, will be discussed," he added.

Last month, after the Supreme Court order appointing a three-member panel of cyber experts to probe the Pegasus snooping allegations, former Congress chief Rahul Gandhi had asserted at a press conference that the party will raise the issue again and will try to have a debate in Parliament. Naqvi stressed that the government maintains a constant line of communication open with the Opposition for the smooth functioning of the House. Asserting that in the previous sessions the Opposition has been found linking the Parliament session with assembly polls, he said if this continues justice will not be done to parliamentary responsibilities."What we have seen traditionally is that Opposition raises issues, there is an all-party meeting and there is a business advisory committee meeting on it to decide, but unfortunately even last time, Parliament session happened close to assembly polls and this time also it is closer to 4-5 assembly polls. If we see the session by linking it to polls we will not be able to do justice to our parliamentary duties," he said.

Naqvi hoped that the discussions would take place on all important issues and the upcoming Winter session would be productive. He alleged that till now it has been seen that the Opposition sees parliamentary sessions by linking it with polls. "Problem is that they do not have support on the ground and that is why they create a furore inside the House," he said, hitting out at the Opposition. Asked about the farmers' protests and the announcement that they would march to Parliament during the Winter session, Naqvi said the government was always open to dialogue and had never put a "no talks" board for the farmers."We appeal to (farmer leaders) to listen, till when will you keep getting exploited. The political parties that are exploiting you are not for your or for farmers welfare," he said.

Naqvi said that in the name of farmers, some people for their own benefit have "hijacked this agitation".He said there were three main farmers' issues, which have been "resolved". "The government has talked about the guarantee of MSP a 1,000 times, both inside and outside Parliament. Then there was the issue of protection of 'Mandis'. 'Mandis' were, are and will remain protected and are flourishing. And, finally the protection of the farmers' land has been guaranteed in the farm laws. These issues have been resolved," Naqvi said.

"Some people want to create confusion, spread fear and misinformation. The government has played its role both inside and outside Parliament (on the farmers' issues)," he added.

The Delhi Traffic Police has intensified its crackdown against pollution violators and those still plying old vehicles with deployment of teams at 170 locations across the city, officials said today. The crackdown has been undertaken to execute the city government's Winter Action Plan against rising air pollution. Delhi chief minister Arvind Kejriwal on Saturday in a meeting had announced emergency measures to deal with the pollution crisis the city is currently facing. The meeting was attended by senior traffic officials among other departments' officials.

In the meeting, the CM directed all concerned departments, including traffic, to strictly enforce guidelines issued to curb pollution."We are already working on the winter action plan in our bid to curb pollution. Since October especially, our priorities have been to prosecute vehicles causing pollution related violations, a senior Delhi Traffic Police officer said.
