LUNCH WITH BS > ASHOK WADHWA | GROUP CEO, AMBIT

Money moves

Veteran financier Wadhwa talks to Pavan Lall about mistakes and opportunities hen it comes to Mumbai's hen it comes to Mumbai's money men, Ashok Wadhwa needs little introduction. The accountant-turned-investment banker is best known for his bordering-on-brash style and the creation of Ambit Securities, style and the creation of Almon which provides capital and advisory services ranging from business loans to investment banking, asset management, institutional equities and more. Wadhwa's is a classic tale of a small-

Wadhwa's is a classic tale of a small-town boy turning up in a big city to play in the big leagues — and making a mark. Today, Ambit employs 800 people and its lending business has 55 branches with franchises in Mumbai, Delhi, Bengaluru, Singapore and New York, Its assets under advisory stand at $40,000 crore and assets under manascenet at 218,000 crore.

under management at ₹18,000 crore.

We are meeting at San:Qi at the Four Seasons. As he pulls in a silver Porsche SUV, dressed in a navy blue two-piece suit and business shirt minus the tie. Wadhwa looks the way he did when I first met him about a decade ago — a result of regular workouts, swimming and moderate eating. "It's all about a disciplined schedule— no matter what. I'm in bed by 11 pm and am not really as social as many imagine metobe," he says.

Originally from Kanpur, Wadhwa moved to Mumbai as a child, went to school at Don Bosco (Ravi Shastri was classmate and neighbour) and then school at Don Bosco (Ran's nessm was a classmate and neighbour) and then studied commerce at the University of Mumbai. He wanted an overseas education but that was out of the means of his father, who was a modest textile businessman. So he stayed on in India and became a chartered accountant. Thereafter, he chanced upon a recruitment ad by global accounting firm, Arthur Andersen. They were looking for a 58-year-old specialist, I was all of 21, The says. He applied nonetheless, "got locky, landed the job, and spent the next 15 years heading their arbusiness." He went on to become Arthur Andersen's managing partner in Mumbai. partner in Mumbai.

partner in Mumbai.
We pause to place the orders, and Wadhwa knows exactly what he wants:
"Two pieces of salmon sushi, a small bowl
of jasmine rice, and a half-order of kung paochicken." Topt for a chicken wonton soup, steamed broccoli with asparagus and sparkling water.

Wadhwa shares that he is conservative about his diet, watching what he eats and also makes it a point to have lunch every Sunday with his 88-year-old mother who ass/mass-a is joan. Instead interver who still cooks from time to time. Arthur Andresen brought much success. Perhaps an overdose of success makes one all tilled arrogant. So, I can't say that during my latter years at Andersen's 1, was not a little arrogant. The admiss. That, he adds, has changed quite a bit. Lunch is here and he reaches out for a piece of sushi, while I tackle my soup. In 1997, Andersen wanted him to shift to Hong Kong but his priority was India, so he moved out and with a few friends, so he moved out and with a few firends. The pat ax and advisory services firm called RSM(for Ratan S Mama & Co). At that time, New York-based private equity firm. RSM (for Ratan S Mama & Co.). At that time, New York-based private equity firm Warburg Pincus reached out and said it was looking to do something in India "and whether we would be willing to set up a boutique investment bank". Thus was born Ambit (in 1998), initially identifying transactions for Warburg Pincus. The initial capital to set up Ambit came.

The initial capital to set up Ambit came from financier Deepak Parekh. He gave Wadhwa Z crore with which he leased the office space, "and that's how Ambit in its old avatar as Ambit RSM was bom".

In 2007. Wadhwa wanted to focus on building an investment bank, so he exited the RSM business, and in April, Ambit took on its current avatar. "The only other full-service investment bank then was Edelweiss, run by Rashesh Shah and Venlaxt (Ramaswamy), both of whom I admired; they served as early motivation." In due course, Wadhwa added other business untils (equities, asset management), roping in professionals like Andrew Holland. The company had an independent board from the get-go.

Andrew Holland. The company had an independent board from the get-go. Key deals followed and have included the United Brewniers transaction with Scottish & Newcastle, Viacom in India including their first joint venture with Raghav Bahl, Patril / Apas-iGate transaction, the Centurion Bank of Punjah-HDPC and the Brookfield-Beliance like Invested as Reliance. Jio tower deal.

We dig into the main course, and share
the chicken and broccoli, both of which are better than they have ever been at the Four Seasons.

Four Seasons.
What makes a good investment banker a great one?
Three things, says Wadirwa, 61:
Thirde things, says Wadirwa, 61:
Taluiding trust. To build trust in my business, you have to put your interest behind your client's stall times, but that doesn't mean you should not be prepared to tell a client when they are wrong. And, the ability to listen and not be judgmental Inspiration for him has come from other business leaders. "Deepalt Parekh, Uday Kotak, Aditya Puri from my business environment— these are people business environment— these are people."

business environment — these are people I have always admired." Internationally, his favourite has been Jeff Immelt of General Electric who, despite the ups and some downs, built a world-class company

General Electric who, despite the ups and some downs. built a world-class company and lived by values.

Success, finousty, also comes at the cost of mistakes, Wadrwa says. The example he gives is of investing in PE Imm Ambit Pragma. That been very successful in launching the India Value Pund (Thrue North) at the time. I was one of the co-founders but that was not alicence for me to start a second private equity fund. Clearly, allocating any capital was a wrong decision on my part. The admits. "We also set upan asset reconstruction company (ARCI), not realising that the success of an ARCI is really dependent upon the depth of your pocket, and it is a capital-intensive business, people with limited capital really should not be spending and wasting their time. "The good thing, he says, is they withdrew quickly from those businesses.

Where does he see the big opportunities." "The private wealth business is a huge opportunity given the number of new millionaires being born." he says. "For the first time. I have successful Indian entrepreneurs saying, "Investing all my money in my business is not the best way for gown my wealth." Also, with most global banks having withdrawn from India, the timing, he says, "is perfect".

WTO members to iron out differences | Exports rise 30.7% in April to over $40 billion around fishing sops before ministerial

Week-long discussions to look at 'special and differential treatment' for developing nations, fuel subsidies, labour issues

AMITI SEN

WTO members will hold week-long intensive negotiations starting May 16 aimed at resolving "remaining issuse" for a global deal to curb harmful fishing subsidies,
many of them crucial for sustainability of Indian fishing
community, ahead of the 12th
Ministerial Conference
(MC2) next month.

The outstanding issues to be resolved include special and differential treatment for developing countries being and differential treatment for developing countries being advocated by India, treatment of non-specific fuel subsidies, and transparency require-ments for forced labour, a Geneva-based trade official pointed out. tinue subsidy programmes for its fishers, many of them pointed out.

There is no doubt that a worldwide deal is within reach—never has it been this close and we must not miss this opportunity. Ultimately, we should not be negotiating against each other but against the unrelenting depletion of global fish stocks so vital for livelihoods foods.

The longer we wait, the more the fish lose, the more we all lose," chair of the Fisheries negoti-ations, Ambassador Santiago Wills of Colombia, said in a video message announcing that the "Fish Week" at the WTO will take place on May

Fighting for concessions India has been fighting to se-cure concessions under spe-cial & differential treatment dispensation for developing countries so that it can con-

for its fishers, many of them artisanal.

Both the Centre and State governments in India provide subsidies to fishers through various programmes for pur-chasing essentials such as boats and fishing nets and also give fuel subsidies.

"India wants the right to give subsidies to develop its fisheries resources to con-tinue for some time to come. It had proposed that develop-ing countries that are not en-

ing countries that are not engaged in distant water fishing

New Delhi has also been opposing attempts to exclude non-specific fuel subsidies, which can be mostly afforded by rich nations, from reduction commitments should be exempt from over-fishing subsidy prohibitions for 25 years. The idea is that the onus on developed na-tions, who have over-ex-ploited the environment including water resources, should be much more than on developing nations for rec-tifying the situation," another source said.

India's argument New Delhi has also been op-posing attempts to exclude non-specific fuel subsidies, which can be mostly afforded by rich nations, from reduction commitments. Develop-ing nations, which provided targeted fuel subsidies to fish-ers, should be allowed to con-tinue to do so, it had argued. The introduction of labour issues in the fisheries negoti-ations by the US, through its proposal on transparency re-quirements for forced labour in fishing, is something that New Delhi is not comfortable with.

"There are a number of countries including India, Russia and China that have not supported the US proposal. While New Delhi totally supports labour rights, there are other forums to look at it and WIO may not be the best are other forums to look at it and WTO may not be the best organisation to take decisions on labour issues. We, it is a matter being pursued at the on-going fisheries negotiations; the source added. rganisation. This indicates that fish pop ulation is being depleted at a rate faster than it can be re-plenished and the trend needs to be reversed.
