PP-15 pullback complete, final verification awaited

'Slight Delay' In Overall India-China Disengagement, Physical Confirmation 'Likely To Be Over Today'

Rajat.Pandit@timesgroup.com

New Delhi: India and China on Monday "virtually" completed the troop disengagement process because the final agreement at Patrolling Point 15 in the Gogra-Hot Springs area of eastern Ladakh, which India hopes will set the stage for further negotiations on the more crucial face-offs at the strategically located Depsang Plains and Demchok.

The phased manual pullback of troops from the stand-off site at PP-15 near the Kurgam Khilab, with dismantling of the area and the creation of a "no-patrol buffer zone", was initially slated to be fully completed by Monday.

Sources, however, said there has been a slight delay in the overall disengagement process because the final physical verification is still to be carried out by the two sides. "It should be completed by Tuesday," a source said.

The buffer zone at PP-15 will be the fourth one to be established in the over 28-month-long military confrontation with China in eastern Ladakh. The earlier zones, varying from 3 km to almost 10 km, came up at PP-14 (Gaban Valley), PP-2A (Gogra Valley), Pungtso, Tso-Kalash Range region after troop engagements at those face-off sites.

Army chief General Manoj Pande after flying an Apache attack helicopter in the Ladakh sector on Sunday.

A major concern is that the buffer zones have largely come up in what India claims to be its territory, putting a stop to troops withdrawing westwards to their permanent Dhan Singh Thapa post between Finger 2 and "Finger 3" (mountainous spurs) in the Ladakh sector.

Chinese troops withdrew from "Finger 4" to its Sirirap positions east of Finger 2 and "Finger 3" in the Ladakh sector. In effect, Indian troops can no longer patrol around 10-km stretch in "Finger" area now, though Indian maps show the line of actual control runs north to south of "Finger 3".

Moreover, China now has flatter flyover to de-escalate the major face-off at the Depsang Plains, where its troops have been actively working. Indian patrols around 18 km inside what India considers its own territory since April-May 2020.

Echoing these concerns, ex-Army chief General VP Malhotra said there is a need to make much of the disengagement at PP-15 because it is just "a tiny step" after the encroachments by the PLA in an area of around 10 km. China continues to maintain that LAC was illegally crossed by the PLA in 2020. The creation of buffer zones is also no guarantee that PLA will not transgress thereafter.

French foreign minister to visit India this week

'Slight Delay' In Overall India-China Disengagement, Physical Confirmation 'Likely To Be Over Today'

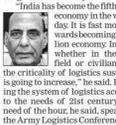

New Delhi: French foreign minister Catherine Colonna will visit India this week to strengthen bilateral cooperation in a range of areas, including defence and counter-terrorism, including on designation of terrorists in the UN Security Council, while reaffirming France's "unwavering" commitment to the Indo-Pacific and determination to work with India to find common solutions to global disorders. This will also be her first bilateral meeting with her Indian counterpart S. Jaishankar.

"Their talks will cover the gamut of our bilateral strategic partnership, regional and global subjects of common interest, and coordination on issues under consideration at the United Nations Security Council," which France and India are currently chairing," said Colonna, adding she will also meet NSA Ajit Doval, new

Creating civil-military fusion to fight security challenges, says Rajnath

Times News Network

New Delhi: The government is taking steps to create a robust, secure, supply and self-reliant logistics system, with the requisite civil-military fusion, to effectively deal with future security challenges, defence minister Rajnath Singh said on Monday.

India has become the fifth-largest economy in the world to date. It is fast moving to become a superpower. India's economic growth is becoming a global phenomenon. In future, whether in the battle field or civilian sector, the criticality of logistics sustenance is going to increase," he said. Reforming the system of logistics according to the needs of 21st century is the need of the hour, he said, speaking at the Army Logistics Conference here.

General Manoj Pande said that one of the important lessons from Russia-Ukraine war is that the pace, intensity and reach of military operations rely on strength, agility and capacity of logistics support. "Wars aren't fought between militaries alone; they remain a whole nation endeavour. We test national resilience and stretch the nation's resources and capacities. The Russia-Ukraine conflict, which has already passed the half-year mark, is an apt example," he said.

"While military infrastructure will continue to meet the immediate and specific demands of the armed forces, it is the civil-military fusion with the support of Indian industry that shall provide the bulk of the execution and sustenance of future operations," Gen. Pande said. The minister on his part, said the government has prepared important policies in order to integrate logistics in the country and make it self-reliant. "This includes emphasis on infrastruc-
