Show of solidarity even as Lebanon braces for protest

ASSOCIATED PRESS Beirut, August 8 SENIOR OFFICIALS FROM the Middle East and Europe started arriving in Lebanon on Saturday in a show of solidarity with the tiny country that suffered a deadly blast this week which caused large-scale damage to the capital Beirut. The visits by the head of the Arab League and the European Council president come as the country braced for large anti-government protests amid popular anger against Lebanon's political leadership. The country's ruling class, made up mostly of former civil war-era leaders, is blamed for widespread corruption, incompetence and mismanagement that contributed to Tuesday's explosion. The blast killed 154 people, wounded more than 5,000 and laid waste to the country's largest port and nearby areas. The explosion of thousands of tons of ammonium nitrate stored at the port, apparently set off by a fire, was the biggest in Lebanon's history and caused an estimated $10-15 billion worth of damage, according to Beirut's governor. It also left hundreds of thousands of people homeless. The blast came at a time when Lebanon is passing through its worst economic and financial crisis in decades making it difficult for many people who had their properties damaged to fix them. Documents that surfaced after the blast showed that for years officials had been repeatedly warned that the presence of 2,750 tons of ammonium nitrate at the port posed a grave danger, but no one acted to remove it. Officials have been blaming one another since the explosion and 19 people have been detained including the port's chief, head of Lebanon's customs department and his predecessor. "We will support Lebanon through all available means," Ahmed About Gheit, the secretary-general of the 22-member Arab League told reporters after meeting President Michel Aoun on Saturday morning.

Profit up 87% at Buffett's firm but virus slows businesses

ASSOCIATED PRESS Omaha (US), August 8

WARREN BUFFETT'S COMPANY reported an 87% jump in its second-quarter profit as the value of its investment portfolio increased with the stock market, but it took a roughly $10 billion write down on the value of its aircraft parts manufacturing business because of the economic impact of the coronavirus pandemic. Berkshire Hathaway said Saturday that it earned $26.3 billion, or $16,314 per Class A share, during the second quarter.

That's up from $14.1 billion, or $8,608 per share, a year ago. Berkshire said it cut the value of its Precision Castparts unit because of how much the pandemic has hurt air travel and businesses that support that airline industry. Buffett has long said Berkshire's operating earnings offer a better view of quarterly performance because they exclude investments and derivatives, which can vary widely. By that measure, Berkshire's operating earnings declined 10% to $5.5 billion, or $3,420.48 per Class A share, as most of its businesses were hurt by restrictions related to the coronavirus pandemic. That's down from $6.1 billion, or $3,754.83 per share. The analysts surveyed by FactSet expected operating earnings per Class A share of $3,182.06. Berkshire was holding nearly $147 billion cash and short-term investments at the end of the second quarter, but Buffett did use $5.1 billion during the quarter to repurchase Berkshire shares. Buffett also found a way to use more of that cash after the quarter ended. First, he agreed to buy Dominion Energy's natural gas pipeline and storage business for $4 billion and take on $5.7 billion of Dominion debt. Then Buffett's company bought roughly $2.1 billion worth of Bank of America stock in late July and early August to give it control of 11.9% of the bank's stock. Berkshire Hathaway owns more than 90 companies, including BNSF railroad and insurance, utility, furniture and jewelry businesses. The company also has major investments in such companies as Apple, American Express, Coca-Cola and Bank of America.

Canada says it will impose retaliatory tariffs on US imports

ASSOCIATED PRESS Toronto, August 8

CANADA'S DEPUTY PRIME Minister said that the country plans to impose 3.6 billion Canadian ($2.69 billion) tariffs on US imports in response to President Donald Trump saying the US is reinstating a 10% import tax on Canadian aluminium. Deputy Prime Minister Chrystia Freeland said on Friday the tariffs will match the US ones dollar-for-dollar. Canada is considering imposing a tariff on dozens of products, including golf clubs, bicycles, refrigerators, washing machines, tripods, sports equipment like bats and hockey sticks and embossed aluminium cans for beverages. Trump originally imposed the tariffs on aluminium imports in 2018. He then lifted them last year on Canadian and Mexican metals to smooth the way for the US-Mexico-Canada Agreement, which replaced the North American Free Trade Agreement. The new pact took effect July 1 and was expected to bring stability to North American trade. The new tariff spat comes after the US in 2018 imposed a 25% duty on steel and a 10% duty on aluminium. Canada responded with tariffs on hundreds of US products such as ketchup, coffee, strawberry jam and whisky before the two countries dropped their efforts and agreed to the new North American free trade deal. Trump said that he was re-implimenting tariffs because there was a surge in aluminium exports from Canada to the US in recent months, but industry organisations dispute that claim. Aluminium imports from Canada rose sharply from February to March but have since levelled off and dropped 2.6% from May to June, according to the Aluminium Association trade group.

Huawei: Smartphone chips running out under US sanctions

ASSOCIATED PRESS Beijing, August 8

CHINESE TECH GIANT Huawei is running out of processor chips to make smartphones due to US sanctions and will be forced to stop production of its own most advanced chips, a company executive says, in a sign of growing damage to Huawei's business from American pressure. Huawei Technologies Ltd, one of the biggest producers of smartphones and network equipment, is at the centre of US-Chinese tension over technology and security. The feud has spread to include the popular Chinese-owned video app TikTok and China-based messaging service WeChat. Washington cut off Huawei's access to US components and technology including Google's music and other smartphone services last year. Those penalties were tightened in May when the White House barred vendors worldwide from using US technology to produce components for Huawei. Production of Kirin chips designed by Huawei's own engineers will stop September 15 because they are made by contractors that need US manufacturing technology, said Richard Yu, president of the company's consumer unit. He said Huawei lacks the ability to make its own chips. "This is a very big loss for us," Yu said on Friday at an industry conference. China Info 100, according to a video recording of his comments posted on multiple websites. "Unfortunately, in the second round of US sanctions, our chip producers only accepted orders until May 15. Production will close on September 15," Yu said. "This year may be the last generation of Huawei Kirin high-end chips." More broadly, Huawei's smartphone production has "no chips and no supply," Yu said. Yu said this year's smartphone sales probably will be lower than 2019's level of 240 million handsets but gave no details. The company didn't immediately respond to questions Saturday. Huawei, founded in 1987 by a former military engineer, denies accusations it might facilitate Chinese spying. Chinese officials accuse Washington of using national security as an excuse to stop a competitor to US tech industries. Huawei is a leader among emerging Chinese competitors in telecoms, electric cars, renewable energy and other fields in which the ruling Communist Party hopes China can become a global leader. Huawei has 180,000 employees and one of the world's biggest research and development budgets at more than $15 billion a year. But, like most global tech brands, it relies on contractors to manufacture its products. Earlier, Huawei announced its global sales rose 13.1% over a year ago to 454 billion yuan ($65 billion) in the first half of 2020. Yu said that was due to strong sales of high-end products but gave no details. Huawei became the world's top-selling smartphone brand in the three months ending in June, passing rival Samsung for the first time due to strong demand in China, according to Canalys. Sales abroad fell 27% from a year earlier. Washington also is lobbying European and other allies to exclude Huawei from planned next-generation networks as a security risk. In other US-Chinese clashes, TikTok's owner, ByteDance Ltd, is under White House pressure to sell the video app. That is due to fears its access to personal information about millions of American users might be a security risk. On Thursday, President Donald Trump announced a ban on unspecified transactions with TikTok and the Chinese owner of WeChat, a popular messaging service.
