Covid-19 Third Wave Unpredictable Says AIIMS Chief Randeep Guleria

New Delhi : AIIMS Director Randeep Guleria said here on Saturday that the country might not see a third wave of coronavirus disease but it largely depended on people following Covid Appropriate Behaviour. Talking to reporters at the Gitam Institute, where he received the Foundation Day Award in recognition of his services, Guleria noted that the only unpredictable part was how the virus behaved. "But I don't think that we will see a third wave which will be as bad as the second wave," he observed. Referring to apprehensions that the possible third wave could infect children more, the AIIMS chief pointed out that children would be "more susceptible" because they were not being vaccinated. "The general feeling is that adults are getting vaccinated, children are not being vaccinated and therefore if there is a new wave it will affect those who are more susceptible," he noted. More than 50 per cent of children have already been infected as per the sero survey and have antibodies, Guleria pointed out. But, he added, hopefully there would be a (anti-Covid) vaccine for children also coming up in another month or two. Then children would also start getting vaccinated. He said the vaccines were still effective as far as severe disease was concerned. "Vaccines are helping in preventing severe disease and death from Covid-19. Infections are still happening but those infected are predominantly those who have not been vaccinated. That's why we are saying more and more people need to get vaccinated," he added. "Those getting infected even after vaccination, what we call breakthrough infection, are predominantly getting milder infection. So vaccines are effective in giving protection from severe disease," he noted. Guleria, a renowned pulmonologist, was presented the Gitam Foundation Day Award that carried Rs 10 lakh and a citation. Gitam Institutions chairman M Sri Bharat presented the award and felicitated Guleria on the occasion.

Puducherry: Covid lockdown extended till 31 August; govt yet to decide on reopening schools

Puducherry : The Puducherry government on Sunday extended the existing lockdown till August 31. The lockdown will have restrictions as were adopted so far and the night curfew would be in force from 10.30 p.m. to 5 a.m the next day, it was stated. Religious places would be open till 9 p.m. with restrictions. Essential services would be permitted which included the sale of milk and medicine. Meanwhile, Lt Governor Tamilisai Soundararajan told reporters that the government would take a decision on reopening of schools after obtaining a report from the Education department.

"I have asked the department to go into the question of reopening institutions and once the report is available a decision would be taken after August 20 on reopening schools," she said. Lt Governor's call on Covid Puducherry Lt Governor Tamilisai Soundararajan on Saturday called for sustained and coordinated efforts to drive away the Covid-19 pandemic from the country. In her message on the eve of the 75th Independence Day, Soundararajan said Prime Minister Narendra Modi has established a record by promoting 'self reliant economy'. Calling upon the people to put in joint efforts to create a disease free, hunger free and prosperous India, she said the nation had fought successfully to ensure that the foreign rule was driven away from the soil of the country. "We should gear up and put up a similar fight to drive away pandemic so that people would live a prosperous life," the Lt Governor said extending her greetings to the people of Puducherry, Telangana and Tamil Nadu. Chief Minister N Rangasamy highlighted the growth of the nation through the visionary approach of the Prime Minister. He said the territorial government had put in zealot efforts to protect people against the pandemic. Ministers, leaders of political parties and legislators were among those who greeted the people on the eve of Independence Day.

Centre Considering Using MGNREGA to Counter Ill-effects of Climate Change: Giriraj Singh

New Delhi : Union minister Giriraj Singh on Saturday said the Centre is mulling to use MGNREGA scheme to strengthen infrastructure and counter the ill-effects of climate change. Under the scheme, he said, apart from growing fruit trees on panchayat land, ponds will also be dug out.

These ponds will be used for water conservation, he told reporters here. The rural development minister said the Mahatma Gandhi Employment Guarantee Act (MGNREGA) scheme has also helped in increasing the income of women through self-help groups. On building strong infrastructure facilities, he said panchayat bhavans are being constructed with a contribution of Rs 10 lakh from MGNREGA funds and Rs 10 lakh by the government.

New National Hydrogen Mission to make India global hub of green hydrogen

New Delhi, (Hindusthan Samachar) : Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Sunday announced from the ramparts of Red Fort, setting up of a National Hydrogen Mission to make India the new global hub of Green Hydrogen. In his address on the 75th anniversary of Independence, PM Modi said that to be self reliant, it is necessary for the country to be independent in the field of energy. That is why today India has to take a resolution that we will make India independent in the energy sector before 100 years of independence. He said, "Whatever India is doing today, the biggest goal that is going to give India a quantum jump is the green hydrogen sector. Today I declare National Hydrogen Mission by swearing Tricolor.?"
