Cummins India reels from structural headwinds

Up to 45% of its revenues at risk due to draft electricity Bill

Mumbai, 26 October

he Cummins India stock has been under pressure over the last months, shedding 12 per cent, on worries that the draft electricity Bill, which focuses on uninterrupted power supply and bringing down the use of diesel gensets (DGs), could risk about 40-45 per cent of revenues.

Though no impact is expected in the near term, the move to cleaner fuels/renewables will shrink the firm's addressable market.

The Draft Electricity (Right of Consumers) Amendment Rules 2021 is at an early stage, but it highlights the government's intention of reducing emissions. "In view of the increasing pollution level particularly in the metros and large cities, the Distribution Licensee shall ensure 24x7 uninterrupted power supply to all the consumers, so that there is no requirement of running the diesel generating sets," says the draft.

With the policy asking consumers to shift to renewables over the next five years and temporary power connections for construction site users within 48 hours to reduce DG usage, there could be a secular decline for suppliers of DGs such as Cummins India.

Say Priyankar Biswas and Neelotpal Sahu of Nomura Research, "The draft electricity rules reinforce our view of structural challenges to dieselbased power; challenges emerge for diesel gensets and engines in back-up power and construction in addition to headwinds existing on Railways routes and shifting to electric term. However, this does take locomotives. Though this is a limited impact in the near term due to the draft Bill.

The Railways, too, is gradually phasing out diesel

Analysts at Motilal Oswal Research say no material

Some brokerages, believe the impact might be lower than expected thanks to lower emissions going ahead. One reason for this is the shift to newer standards such as CPCB IV+ to be implemented by July 2023. It requires a shift to electronic engine platforms and use of selective catalytic reduction. This will reduce pollution to Kotak Institutional Equities. The brokerage also highlights that genset sales of Cummins grew at a healthy 12 per cent in North America between FY14-19, reflecting their relevance as an insurance against grid failure. Technology development by Cummins' global parent is another reason that analysts believe will make the firm better placed than others during both the transition to the new pollution norms and the shift to cleaner fuels.

Say analysts at IIFL Securities, "While the five-year suggested timeline (shift from DG sets to cleaner energy sources) is unrealistic, directionally, it opens the market for hybrid and hydrogen-based solutions, where Cummins is heavily invested."

Improving power supply would be a negative for the company, but analysts at Oswal Research Motilal believe it is a potential exports story, though the upsides on this count are better captured in the unlisted entity of the parent company. The company fails to impress as a proxy to domestic capex, they add.

The recent correction has taken the stock to price levels prevailing two months ago. Investors should await clarity on the draft Bill as well the pace of the company's shift to cleaner energy solutions.

Don't just go by mid, small-cap returns

Avoid going 'overweight' as they tend to decline sharply during corrections

SARBAJEET K SEN

Mid- and small-cap funds have outperformed large-cap funds in the current bull run, generating category average returns of 73.3 per cent and 89.8 per cent, respectively, over the past year, compared with 53.9 per cent for large-

Experts say, however, that investors should not be guided by past returns alone, but instead by asset allocation when deciding whether to tilt their portfolios towards largecaps, or towards mid- and small-caps.

Be prepared for turbulence

The macroeconomic environment is set to witness a sea change. Last year's low base effect will not be available performance. Bhan, deputy chief investment officer, equity investments, Nippon India Mutual Fund, "Equity markets worldwide have rallied significantly over the past year-and-a-half on expectations of a strong economic rebound. They have also been supported by policy measures, lower interest rates and liquidity. But economic revival is being accompanied by rising inflation, posing a challenge to the prevailing environment of easy liquidity and lower rates. Any fasterthan-expected normalisation could impact sentiment."

Higher risk in small-caps

Fund managers feel investors

tious about the small-cap space. While past returns look very attractive, they carry huge risks. "Small-caps are generally illiquid. Even small inflows or outflows can result in sharp movements in the prices of these stocks. The strong rally of the past 18 months indicates some froth in small-cap valuations. Investors should tread cautiously in this space," says Sorbh Gupta, fund manager, equity, Quantum Asset Management Company

Bhan agrees. "After the recent rally, any negative news flow could impact the smallcap universe quite sharply," he says. Historically, according to him, cycles in the small-cap space have tended to be sharp > and investors need to follow a prudent asset allocation strategy to deal with their large swings.

Large-caps are safer

When the stock market turns volatile, or in a rising interest rate envi-According to Sailesh Raj ronment, mid- and small-cap stocks tend to be affected more than large-caps. In 2018, the large-cap fund category, on an average, declined 0.8 per cent, but mid-caps fell 10.5 per cent and small-caps 16.3 per cent. The worst performing mid-cap and small-cap fund had declined 17 per cent and 28.5 per cent, respectively. Most investors will find it difficult to stomach such volatil-

Get sub-asset allocation right

Investors with low risk appetite should stick to large-cap funds alone and avoid the mid- and small-cap space.

"Long-term investors may have a 70:30 mix between large-cap funds arge-cap funds and mid/small-cap funds," says Agrawal. The exact mix, he adds, should vary depending on the investor's risk appetite.

Rebalancing and maintaining a long investment horizon can help you navigate any possible volatility in the near future. "Review and rebalance your portfolio every six months and have a time horizon of at least five years in your equity investments,' says Gupta.
