National Education Day honours Maulana Abul Kalam Azad

Every year, India celebrates National Education Day on November 11. It is to commemorate the birth anniversary of Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, the first Union Education Minister of India. He was a freedom fighter, scholar and eminent educationist and was a key architect of Independent India. Azad was responsible for setting up apex education bodies like AICTE and UGC. In 2008, India's Ministry of Human Resource Development declared that his birthday would be nationally recognised as Education Day.

Covid-related plastic waste flows into oceans, Asia biggest source

India's Mihir Metkar played key role in Moderna's vaccine

AGENCIES
Beijing

Researchers want tech breakthroughs for better collection, classification, treatment and recycling of toxic materials at the earliest

According to an alarming study, more than eight million tonnes of pandemic-associated plastic waste has been generated globally, with more than 25,000 tonnes entering the global ocean. Data from the start of the pandemic in 2020 through August 2021 showed that most of the global plastic waste entering the ocean is coming from Asia, with hospital waste representing the bulk of the land discharge.

The study, published in the journal Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, highlighted that most of the global plastic waste from the pandemic is entering the ocean from rivers, with Asian rivers accounting for 73 per cent of the total discharge of plastics. The top three contributors are the Indus, Shatt al-Arab, and Yangtze rivers, which discharge into the Persian Gulf, Arabian Sea, and East China Sea. On the other hand, European rivers account for only 11 per cent of the discharge, with minor contributions from other continents. While most of the pandemic-associated plastics are expected to settle on beaches and the seafloor, a smaller amount will likely end up circulating or settling in the Arctic Ocean. This, according to researchers, appears to be a "dead-end" for plastic debris transported into it due to ocean circulation patterns.

"When we started doing the math, we were surprised to find that the amount of medical waste was substantially larger than the amount of waste from individuals. A lot of it was coming from Asian countries, even though that's not where most of the Covid-19 cases were," said Amina Schartup, an assistant professor at Scripps Oceanography. "The biggest sources of excess waste were hospitals in areas already struggling with waste management before the pandemic; they just weren't set up to handle a situation where you have more waste," Schartup added.

To quantify the impact of the pandemic on plastic discharge from land sources, a team of researchers at Nanjing University's School of Atmospheric Sciences and University of California San Diego's Scripps Institution of Oceanography used a newly developed ocean plastic numerical model. It was built based on Newton's laws of motion and the law of conservation of mass. It shows that about 80 per cent of the plastic debris that transits into the Arctic Ocean will sink quickly, and a circumpolar plastic accumulation zone is modelled to form by 2025. The Arctic ecosystem is already considered to be particularly vulnerable due to the harsh environment and high sensitivity to climate change. The researchers said that the potential ecological impacts of exposure to accumulated Arctic plastics add another layer of concern.

To combat the influx of plastic waste into the oceans, the authors called for global public awareness of the environmental impact of personal protection equipment (PPE) and other plastic products. They hope for the development of innovative technologies for better plastic waste collection, classification, treatment, and recycling and manufacturing of more environmentally friendly materials in the near future.

Moderna has identified a scientist of Indian origin as the primary contributor to its Covid-19 vaccine. A filing by the company for its patent application for the coronavirus vaccine using the revolutionary RNA technique listed Pune-educated bioinformatics scientist Mihir Metkar as the "first named inventor", a designation that usually recognises the primary contributor to the invention.

He is also listed as one of the inventors in two other Covid-19 vaccine patent applications by Moderna to the US Patent Office. Moderna's is of the new class of vaccines that use messenger RNA (mRNA) that cause the body to create some proteins similar to that in the Covid-19 virus and trigger the body's immune system to make antibodies that will fight the coronavirus if it invades the body.

(Conventional vaccines use either dead viruses or parts of them or a modified version of the gene of a different virus.) Metkar's identification as the "first named inventor" is in the document filed by Moderna to dispute the US government's National Institutes of Health (NIH) assertion that its scientists should also be credited as inventors of the vaccine. It was developed in collaboration with the company and with $1.53 billion provided by the administration of former President Donald Trump under the Operation Warp Speed programme to quickly produce vaccines.

Vladimir Presnyak and Guillaume Stewart-Jones are listed after Metkar in the original application for the patent.

Global warming 'unprecedented' since last ice age: Study

NEW YORK: The current global temperatures on Earth are unprecedented in the last 24,000 years, since the last ice age, according to a new study. In the study, a team from University of Arizona created maps of global temperature changes for every 200-year interval going back 24,000 years. The results showed that the main drivers of climate change since the last ice age are rising greenhouse gas concentrations and the retreat of the ice sheets.

Further, the study published in the journal Nature also showed that the magnitude and rate of warming over the last 150 years far surpassed the magnitude and rate of changes over the last 24,000 years.

Rapidly evolving species tend to become history

AGENCIES
London

Researchers at the University of Bristol have found that fast evolution can lead to nowhere. In a new study of lizards and their relatives, Dr Jorge Herrera-Flores of Bristol's School of Earth Sciences and colleagues has discovered that 'slow and steady wins the race'.

The team studied lizards, snakes, and their relatives, a group called the Lepidosauria. Today there are more than 10,000 species of lepidosaurs, and much of their recent success is a result of fast evolution in favourable circumstances. But this was not always the case.

Herrera-Flores explained, "Lepidosaurs originated 250 million years ago in the early Mesozoic Era, and they split into two major groups, the squamates, on the one hand, leading to modern lizards and snakes, and the rhynchocephalians on the other, represented today by a single species, the tuatara of New Zealand. We expected to find slow evolution in rhynchocephalians, and fast evolution in squamates. But we found the opposite."

"We looked at the rate of change in body size among these early reptiles. We found that some groups of squamates evolved fast in the Mesozoic, especially those with specialised lifestyles like the marine mosasaurs. But rhynchocephalians were much more consistently fast-evolving," said Dr Tom Stubbs, a collaborator.

"In fact, their average rates of evolution were significantly faster than those for squamates, about twice the background rate of evolution, and we really did not expect this," said Dr Armin Elslser, another collaborator.

Elslser added, "In the later part of the Mesozoic all the modern groups of lizards and snakes originated and began to diversify, living side-by-side with the dinosaurs, but probably not engag-

A study of lizards and their relatives by researchers at the University of Bristol says the fast-evolving species are more likely to go extinct as compared to those who evolve slowly ing with them ecologically. These early lizards were feeding on bugs, worms, and plants, but they were mainly quite small." Prof Mike Benton added, "After the extinction of the dinosaurs, 66 million years ago, at the end of the Mesozoic, the rhynchocephalians and squamates suffered a lot, but the squamates bounced back. But for most of the Mesozoic, the rhynchocephalians were the innovators and the fast evolvers. They tailed off quite severely well before the end of the Mesozoic, and the whole dynamic changed after that."

This work confirms a challenging proposal made by the famous paleontologist George Gaylord Simpson in his 1944 book 'Tempo and Mode in Evolution'. He looked at the fundamental patterns of evolution in a framework of Darwinian evolution and observed that many fast-evolving species belonged to unstable groups, which were potentially adapting to rapidly changing environments.

Found: A novel molecule that can combat Covid-19

AGENCIES/Washington
A simple RNA molecule jumpstarts the immune system's 'first responders' to viral infection and can even eradicate the SARS-CoV-2 virus in mice with chronic cases of COVID-19, a new Yale School of Medicine study found.

The molecule, known as SLR14, is a simple, easy to manufacture loop of RNA that can trigger the production of interferons, a group of proteins produced by immune cells that are key to the body's innate, or initial, response to infection.

Multiple studies have shown that COVID-19 patients who produce high levels of interferons have far better outcomes than those for whom interferon levels are low during the early days of infection.

Treated mice also responded well to numerous variants of SARS-CoV-2, the virus that causes COVID-19, including the Delta variant, currently the predominant strain of the virus in the United States, according to the new report published on November 10 in the journal Experimental Medicine. If clinical trials in humans confirm the efficacy of SLR14, the relatively inexpensive compound could help reduce COVID-19 cases in low-income countries where vaccine availability is limited, the researchers say. It can also provide important benefits for immunocompromised individuals who are not able to create sufficient levels of antibody-producing B cells and virus-killing T cells.

"SLR14, therefore, holds great promise as a new class of RNA therapeutics that can be applied as antivirals against SARS-CoV-2," said Akiko Iwasaki, the Waldemar Von Zedtwitz Professor of Immunobiology and Molecular, Cellular, and Developmental Biology at Yale and corresponding author of the paper.

Males more at risk of diabetes than females

New Delhi: With almost 77 million people living with diabetes, India is often referred to as the diabetes capital of the world, and a report says that males are more at risk of diabetes while females are more prone to being pre-diabetic.

Prediabetes is a serious health condition where blood sugar levels are higher than normal, but not high enough yet to be diagnosed as Type-2 diabetes. The new report by SRL Diagnostics analysed a total of 21, 88,761 samples of HbA1c - a test to gauge glucose levels - from January 2017 till September 2021 in India. In the study, the percentage of males (46 per cent) testing positive for diabetes was found more than females (37 per cent).
