India's expectations from COP29: focus on equity, finance, and adaptation

NOV 12 /--/ Outlining its core expectations from the COP29 in ways that respect the unique needs of countries. developing India on Tuesday said it is expecting carbon market mechanism without creating barriers to trade and a recalibration of climate finance under the new Goals. India and more than 190 other countries have gathered at this Azerbaijan capital for the climate negotiations, COP29, under United Nations Framework Convention on Change (UNFCCC). Highlighting India's approach, official sources emphasised the principle of Common but Differentiated Responsibilities (CBDR), underscoring that developed nations, as $historical\,emitters, should$ take the lead in mitigation efforts and climate finance. India's priorities at COP29 nations, especially for adaptation efforts, and ensuring a fair and equitable approach in all climate negotiations One of India's primary recalibration of climate finance under the New Collective Quantified Goal (NCQG), sources said. The NCQC, which expects rich nations to contribute climate finance annually for climate action projects in poor countries, is a prime focus area for COP29. India has been a advocate adequate and accessible finance that climate supports adaptation for vulnerable communities in the Global South, and the sources emphasised the need for COP29 to rebalance the focus of finance. climate envision COP29 as an opportunity to advance key issues that align with our national priorities," sources said, pointing to sustainable development, and resilience-building as core objectives.

While much attention has been on mitigation investments, India stressed that discussions at COP29 highlight adaptation needs for vulnerable communities, and finance must be adequate, predictable, accessible, grant-based, low-interest, and long-term. On carbon markets under Article 6 of the Paris Agreement, India hopes for establishment of market mechanisms that use carbon credits to incentivise low-carbon development without creating barriers to trade. sources said.

In a landmark decision on the first day of the global climate talks here on Monday, COP29 officially adopted the operational standards for a mechanism of the Paris Agreement under Article 6 setting the stage for a global carbon market. Article 6, balanced climate action, credits, allows countries to support for adaptation targets under the global adaptation goal, sources added.

Addressing loss and damage financing also remains high on India's agenda, with expectations for tangible commitments from developed countries to finance the adverse impacts of climate events vulnerable communities, the sources highlighted that any mechanism agreed upon at COP29 should prioritise technology transfer and closing financing gaps to the effective participation developing nations. India remains committed to engaging in collective climate action and calls on developed nations to intensify their climate goals and the COP29, officials said, represents a critical opportunity to uphold principles of equity and build pathways for inclusive and fair global climate solutions.

Legitimacy, credibility of UN must be preserved by updating it: India

UNITED NATIONS, NOV 12 /--/ India has cautioned against smokescreen efforts towards a "mere tinkering" of the existing UN Security Council framework, saying this could indefinitely postpone significant elements, such as expansion in permanent membership and addressing under-representation of Asia, Africa and Latin America to a "very distant future". These remarks were made by India's Permanent Representative to the UN Ambassador P Harish at the annual UN General Assembly plenary on 'Question of equitable representation on and increase in the membership of the Security Council' on Monday. He said that in spite of several decades of collective reiteration of the urgent need for the UNSC reform, it is disheartening that we have had no results to show in this regard since 1965, when the Council was last expanded in the nonpermanent category alone. The Council's membership was expanded from six 1965. Pointing to the nature of the process of the Intergovernmental Negotiations (IGN), Harish said 16 years since its inception, the IGN remains largelv confined to exchanging statements, speaking at, rather than with each other. No negotiating text. No time frame. And no defined end goal. India underlined that while it seeks real tangible progress in the IGN.

including with regard to the development of a new model' of reform of the Security Council as a precursor to text-based negotiations, Delhi urges caution on two counts.

Harish said the first is that the search for a minimum threshold of input from member states should not lead to an indeterminate period of waiting for them to present their model.

Further, development consolidated model based on convergences should not lead to a race to the bottom to trace the lowest common denominator. Convergences are not consensus! There is every danger that the search for such a lowest common denominator might be used as a smokescreen to attempt a mere tinkering of the existing framework of the UN Security Council and terming it as a major reform. Harish said. He cautioned that this could indefinitely postpone significant elements, such as expansion in the permanent category and addressing under representation of Asia Africa, Latin America and the Caribbean, to a very distant future. India also voiced concern that there is an argument pushed by a few select countries who favour the status quo'; of consensus'. They argue that even before beginning text-based negotiations, we must all agree on everything! Surely, we cannot have a more extreme case of putting the cart before the horse', Harish said. He noted that as a member of the Global South, India believes that representation' stands as the unassailable prerequisite for both effectiveness' of not just the Council, but the UN as a whole. Younger multilateral frameworks have been much more adaptive and nimbler on their feet. An example is the G20, which under India's presidency last year, welcomed the African Union as its member. This is proof that with political will, change is indeed possible, he said. He expressed hope that the UN member states work constructively to ensure a concrete outcome on UN Security Council reforms. An outcome that respects the sentiments of the elected members to 10 in majority through the time-The negotiations legitimacy and credibility of the UN must be preserved by updating it. That should indeed be our resolution for the UN's 80th anniversary, he said. India has been at the forefront of years-long efforts calling for reform of the Security Council, including expansion in both its permanent and nonpermanent categories, saying the 15-nation Council, founded in 1945, is not fit for purpose in the 21st Century and does not reflect contemporary geopolitical realities. Delhi has underscored that it rightly deserves a permanent seat at the horse-shoe table. India last sat at the UN high table as a non-permanent member challenges with Council members sharply divided on conflicts such as the Ukraine war and the Israel-Hamas conflict.

UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres has also noted that the United Nations had 51 Member when it was established nearly 80 years ago, and today it is made up of 193 nations. In his address to the UN's landmark Summit of the Future this September, Prime Minister Narendra Modi had emphasised that for global peace and development, reforms in global institutions are essential and underlined that reform is the key to relevance. World leaders had adopted by consensus the Pact of the Future in which they promise to the Security Council, recognizing the urgent need to make it more representative, inclusive, efficient, transparent. effective, democratic and accountable. UN officials have described the language in the Pact of the Future on the long-pending Security groundbreaking.

In the Pact of the Future, world leaders agreed to redress the historical injustice against Africa as a priority and, while treating Africa as a special case. improve the representation of the underrepresented and unrepresented regions and groups, such as Asia-Pacific and Latin America and the Caribbean. They also agreed to enlarge" the Security Council in order to be more representative of the current United Nations membership and reflective of the realities of the contemporary world. The speaks about intensifying efforts to find an agreement on the question of the categories of membership, taking into account the discussions held in the intergovernmental negotiations process.(PTI)

Mahdaoui imprisoned in 2017 after publicly throwing his support behind activists who led protests over social and economic inequities. He was sentenced to three years for not reporting to authorities that a Dutch Moroccan man had told him arms were being sent to the protesters. He later said he didn't report it because he didn't take the information seriously.

Morocco has in recent years been criticized for imprisoning journalists and activists known for criticizing the government.
