Margins of online travel operators plunge

To woo customers amidst the pandemic, players forced to offer discounts, cashbacks

FORUM GANDHI

Mumbai, December 11 Margins for online travel operators (OTAs) have come down by 30 per cent as they have had to offer discounts, cashbacks and flexible travel booking to overcome the slump in tourism due to the pandemic.

In order to attract customers to travel, industry players like EaseMyTrip, ClearTrip, Make-MyTrip, SOTC, ixigo, and Thomas Cook among others have had to offer discounts as much as 50-60 per cent. Even hotels like ITC Hotels have launched a '100 per cent back' campaign. Players like Thomas Cook, which focus on complete packages, have had to partner with key domestic carriers and hotels for deals.

"Our teams have been able to contract discounted rates across key partners and we've been able to pass on the benefit to customers to give fillip to demand - with attractive value add-ons and discounts ranging from 10-20 per cent as compared to last year," said Rajeev Kale, President & Country Head - Holidays, MICE, Visa, Thomas Cook (India) Ltd.

Along with this, it has negotiated special flight-inclusive deals with the added benefit of flexibility of date changes and this is seeing a very encouraging uptick.

Yet, it hasn't been able to use its inventory more than 65 per

In the airline segment, Both ClearTrip and EaseMyTrip said that the travel industry's margins or commissions are driven by volumes. ClearTrip's Head of Corporate Strategy Aditya Agarwal said that "20 per cent of the margins are linked to volumes

As travel regulations continue to evolve, travellers are willing to wait it out BLOOMBERG which have nosedived this fiscal.

India is anyway a low cost carrier driven market, so margins are slimmer anyway, this along with lower volumes is a double whammy for the industry players."

Volume-driven industry

Currently, for MakeMyTrip and Cleartrip hotel bookings for the Christmas and New Year period stand at one-third during the same period last year. As statewise travel regulations continue to evolve, travellers are willing to wait it out and firm up their bookings within a week or less from the travel date. The hotel segment is anyways deep discounting driven, according to Agarwal. A Mckinsey report on the travel industry in September explained that the OTAs have highly variable cost structures, which allow them to respond quickly to market downturns and preserve profitability better than other industries. However, it is a known fact that the travel industry is a volume-driven, margin led industry.

While they can control the costs of marketing, it cannot control the volumes because on a year-on-year basis according to industry data, travel has recovered only 25-30 per cent.

EaseMyTrip's co-founder and CEO, Nishant Pitti, explained that the OTA, usually has two types of models: Contract based model for five stars, where upfront inventory is purchased, and a commission-based model.

In both these segments, Pitti's OTA has had to offer higher value to the hotel players. For some hotels, EaseMyTrip has had to purchase an advance deposit for a hefty amount.

"We have given an advance deposit for ₹50 lakh or crore instead of purchasing inventory from the hotels. This gives us the ability to utilise the inventory at our convenience, and we

able as consumerisation takes place. Days of building mega boardrooms or having mulget a better discount from hotels." In the flat-price model, which usually applied to standalone hotels, EaseMyTrip has been able to get the "the base hotel prices at a 30 per cent lower rate to us, compared to last year. This discount can be passed on to the customers," he explained.

McKinsey's report

McKinsey's report said that in the future, OTAs might consider moves across the value chain. "Suppliers have long been working to limit their dependency on the desirable volumes OTAs provide a gateway to. In this new world order, though, OTAs might be stretching their thinking in finding ways to secure room inventory (or airplane seats and cars, for that matter). Effectively splitting the commission. independent hotel owners might also get better returns from using an OTA brand for their hotel," McKinsey's report stated.

BSNL's telecom licence extended for 20 years RAJESH KURUP

Mumbai. December 11

The Department of Telecommunications (DoT) has extended the validity of Stateowned Bharat Sanchar Nigam Ltd's (BSNL) Unified Access Service Licence (UASL) by another 20 years, enabling the telecom operator to continue offering services across the country.

The licence was granted with retrospective effect from February 29, 2020. Following the issuance of the licence, BSNL will be able to provide mobile (2G, 3G and 4G), fixedline, satellite and other communication services, sources close to the development said.

Earlier on December 6, sources had told BusinessLine that the public service unit was expecting the government to extend its licence within a week of submitting a Performance Bank Guarantee (PBG) of ₹250 crore for the UASL.

BSNL had issued the PBG earlier this week, and as per expectations the order granting the extension was issued on Thursday, one of the sources said.

Under the licensing agreement, BSNL can also continue to provide National Long Distance, International Long Distance, very-small-aperture terminal (VSat) and the Public Mobile Radio Trunking Services services among others. The public sector unit had been using 900 MHz and 1800 MHz spectrum, and had sought the same bands across all its circles.

While the frequency allocated could not be immediately confirmed, sources said that BSNL is believed to have been given permission to use the same bands. BSNL's licence, which was awarded in 2000 for a 20-year period and got Government approvals for rolling out of services in 2002, had expired in February this year. While the operator continued to provided services without a licence, it was seeking an immediate extension of licence for another two years.

Demand for 4G

However, BSNL is yet to be allocated 4G spectrum, without which the PSU would find it difficult to offer quality services and retain high-value customers. The State-owned firm is already four years behind private operators in offering these services.

BSNL officials, who had a meeting with Telecom Minister Ravi Shankar Prasad on November 27, are also slated to meet Home Minister Amit Shah to apprise him of the importance of 4G in the revival of the beleaguered telecom company.

Amit Shah is the head of a seven-member Group of Ministers constituted to fast-track and oversee the implementation of revival plans of both BSNL and MTNL.

'Avaya is poised for double-digit growth this fiscal'

ABHISHEK LAW

Kolkata, December 11 Businesses, especially, small and medium enterprises (SMEs), are moving into a remote working environment with the cost of communications coming down. Adoption of cloud technologies has increased and the concept of 'home-office' has led to changed investment patterns across organisations, says Vishal Agrawal, Managing Director, India and SAARC, Avaya India.

The company, he says, is ready with both hardware and software solutions to cater to this "Covid-19-induced new normal". India continues to be amongst the top 10 markets globally for Avaya. In an interaction with BusinessLine. Agrawal talks about the India business, adoption of new technologies post Covid-19, and cost of communication infrastructure, among others. Edited excerpts:

two to three years. While we do not share country-specific turnover, India is a strategicallyimportant market for us and amongst the top 10 markets globally.

In terms of outlook, we believe that we are poised for double-digit growth for Avaya here for the current fiscal that began October 1. We see increasing demand for our cloudbased communication solutions across both larger organisations and small and medium businesses (SMBs). Avaya is also investing in hiring people, towards channel growth and bringing in products relevant to the Indian market.

Are organisations willing to make new investments in communications?

So will customerengagement patterns

Voice will always remain critical. But, it will get enriched with video-calling. Voice will come at a premium. Engagements will be through voicebots or chat-bots and such artificial intelligence will come into play.

There could be more machine to human interactions in segments like the service industry, for insurance premium renewals, for flight and hotel bookings, and so on. Many SMBs, which previously sold through human interactions, will look to adopt digital channels.

With increasing adoption of cloud technologies and software-based communication solutions, how is Avaya - once a pureplay hardware maker-changing its offerings?

As an organisation we have remained neutral. We can provide any solution in a multi-cloud set-up. What is working well for us, we constantly innovated and collaborated even with start-ups to bring in new solutions. We have made the transition and our solutions can pretty much work with any software or cloud system. Yes, we still do sell hardware servers and gateways. However, the software runs on hardware, and the latter, that include devices, will remain intact. Rather, devices will be high-end to provide communication experience to users. It will be something like mobile phones. As technology improved from 2G to 4G, people started upgrading to smartphones.
