offee Day Enterprises Ltd has appointed Malavika Hegde, the wife of founder of Coffee Day Global Ltd and Amalgamated Bean Coffee Trading Co. Ltd, late V.G. Siddhartha, as the chief executive officer, the company said on Monday. Hegde was a non-executive director of the company, and is the younger daughter of S.M.Krishna, former central minister of external affairs and former Karnataka chief minister.

Coffee Day also appointed C.H. Vasudhara Devi, Giri Devanur and Mohan Raghavendra Kondi as non-executive independent directors, it said in a filing with BSE.

The change in leadership comes amid the mounting losses posted by the Bengaluru-based firm, which is suspected to have prompted Siddhartha to take his life in July Devi's, Devanur's and Kondi's appointment will be affective from 31 December 2020 to 30 December 2025, subject to the approval of shareholders. "This intimation also fulfils the requirement of appointing a woman independent director pursuant to the Securities and Exchange Board of India's (Sebi's) Listing Obligations and Disclosure Requirements (Amendment) Regulations, 2018," Coffee Day said in the exchange filing.

CCD, which once did roaring business through its more than 500 outlets in India and overseas markets, has now plunged into debt, forcing the closure of several of its cafes that were thronged by youngsters and office goers. Siddhartha was one of the biggest names in the coffee industry and his Amalgamated Bean Coffee Trading Co. Ltd and Coffee Day Global Ltd had provided jobs to more than 100,000 people directly repay around ₹3,100 crore debts and dues. The group is facing an uphill battle against the rising number of legal cases against it.

A court in the coffee grow-The change in ing region of Chikkamagaluru leadership comes is presently hearing a case of cheating against Hegde and other senior executives of the mounting losses firm over non-payment of posted by the dues. The case is related to a Bengaluru-based complaint filed by K.Nandish, a coffee grower in Chikkamagaluru district of Karnataka, alleging that the group continues to evade paying him the dues totalling to over ₹45 lakh. Nandish has also alleged that representatives of the company do not even appear to attend the court he fifth round of negotiations between the government and the agitating farmers has failed. It is now clear that the agitation is likely to continue for some time. This is the first time in its six-year tenure that the National Democratic Alliance (NDA) government has faced such a siege of the national capital and such a challenge from farmers. No government or political personality is to blame for this impasse. This problem has been in the making since Independence.

The next round of negotiations is on 9 December. The conflict will end sooner or later, but will the problems that beset agriculture be solved? Will there be an end to agrarian poverty and farmer suicides?

During the famine of 1967, my father was posted in Mirzapur. I had started going to school and could discern a visible change taking place in the city. Tribals and villagers from nearby places used to come to the cities and big towns those days in search of work or food. However, they often went back empty-handed. Those who had the ability to lend a helping hand to them were themselves facing a crisis. Foodgrain, such as wheat, had become a rarity. The red wheat that was imported from the US was being distributed through ration shops. People were not able to access wheat in sufficient quantities, as a result of which the black market was flourishing.

During the visits to my ancestral village in later years I found that more than 90% of farmers were facing problems. With the growth in population and an increase in members in households, land holdings were getting smaller. The farmers were sticking to traditional crops. They had no one to advise them on how to change cropping patterns, which could benefit them financially. If the weather was conducive, life after the harvest was bearable. If not, they faced various adversities, the obvious one being the inability to provide for their families

Then the Green Revolution happened. India started growing more food than it needed. However, the distribution system did not improve enough to deal with this surplus. So, we had a situation where, on the one hand, the warehouses of the Food Corporation of India were bursting at the seams and, on the other, about 14% of the population did not get enough food to survive.

The farmer today does not get the right price for his crop and the consumer has to pay more than is required. It is time that we also looked at agricultural best practices from around the world.

faced such a siege of the national capital

There is no doubt that the agricultural scenario has to change. The question is how. We already have seen the sort of fear mongering we are witnessing today in the early 1990s. At that time, then Prime Minister P.V. Narasimha Rao and his finance minister Manmohan Singh brought about economic liberalization. Atal Bihari Vaj payee, George Fernandes and all other Opposition leaders and parties called this a conspiracy to sell India down the drain. There was unrest on the streets and in Parliament. The whole argument was that foreign companies would now come and enslave us as the East India Company had done during the British Raj. However, liberalization pulled at least 300 million Indians out of poverty. Coordination between the government, corporates and society improved. This helped set India on the path to becoming an aspiring economic superpower.

Many things changed for the better with liberalization. In the mid-1990s, it used to take hours on end to make a phone call from one city to another. Whenever we went abroad for reporting assignments, we spent an inordinate amount of time to send telex or fax messages to office. I wonder what would have happened had we faced a pandemic such as covid-19 back then. Today, if millions of Indians are able to save their jobs by working from home, they have the communications revolution to thank for.

Many such important meas-This is the first ures are the results of those 1991 reforms. time that the To get back to agriculture, NDA govt has let us look at the milk market. It does not have a minimum support price. The sector does not have special government protection for the purchase and sale of milk. Barring semi-government institutions such as Mother Dairy, most bulk buyers are from the private sector. The white revolution that Amul started in Gujarat through cooperatives has spread. Most primary milk sellers are from villages and own one to six animals per family. No corporate entity has affected their business.

This is not to argue in favour of mindless privatization. Most sugar mills in India are private. However, working hand-in-glove with corrupt government officials, the business is exploitative of farmers.

In such a situation, it is necessary that farmers' rights be not only strengthened but also that administrators should be forced to implement the rules strictly. At the same time, farmers must be encouraged to grow alternative crops for agro industries. We need to effect positive, inclusive changes in the agrarian sector in our quest to rebuild the economy in a post-covid world.
