'Hindutva is not divisive, not anti-Muslim RSS will abide by the Supreme Court judgment on Ayodhya'

VADODARA: On the heels of BJP's political dominance, an attendant quest is to understand how RSS locates its ideology in 21st century India. How does it now view emotive issues such as Ram Janmabhoomi movement and uniform civil code (UCC) from its position as the ideological anchor of the ruling party? Sunil Ambekar, a pracharak in RSS and the national organising secretary of its students wing ABVP, has tried to articulate the organisation's current views through a book which details its world view. He speaks to Indrajit Rai on issues old and new: Is Hindutva essentially anti-Muslim?

Hindutva concerns like Ram Janmabhoomi temple, cow protection, UCC and Article 370? Let's wait for the Supreme Court judgment on Ayodhya. We have waited so long for the court verdict to build the Ram temple in Ayodhya. The RSS will abide by the SC judgment. What if the SC verdict is not in favour of making a Ram temple? Whatever happens will be within the constitutional framework. We will explore all constitutional means to build the Ram temple. What about 'Yeh thoh kewa jhanki hai, Kashi, Mathura baaki hai (Ayodhya was just a glimpse).
