'Gas-based power purchase obligation will help revive ailing units'

Gas-based plants provide best option for grid balancing, part-load efficiency: MoPNG

RISHI RANJAN KALA

The Ministry of Petroleum and Natural Gas (MoPNG) has suggested an obligatory purchase mechanism, along the lines of the Renewable Purchase Obligation, for reviving gas-based power plants. The installed capacity of gas-based power plants is around 25 GW, of which almost 12 GW is idle.

In its reply to the Parliamentary Standing Committee on Petroleum & Natural Gas, the Ministry pointed out that with increasing share of renewable energy, gas-based power plants provide the best option for grid balancing due to faster generation ramping up rates, low technical minimum level of operation and high part-load

The report is on the action taken by the government on recommendations in the 11th report of the panel. The action taken response was received on July 14, 2022.

Around 500 GW of RE energy is proposed to be installed in the country in coming years. RE is highly dependent on weather and comes with inherent challenges like seasonality, reliability, diurnal variations resulting in the need of grid balancing, MoPNG said.

The Ministry said that findings of study by CEA, CERC, MoP and POSOCO highlight the importance/benefits of gas-based power in integration of RE capacity.

Besides, natural gas-based plants are much cleaner in respect of environmental norms including particulate matter, SOx, Nox and CO2 emissions compared to coalbased power plants and RE-Gas Power bundle is likely to be cleaner than RE-Coal power bundle.

"Suitable peaking power policy for using RE-gas bundled model is required for nudging utilities to purchase RE-gas power to serve customers 24x7. For example, cost of externalities of coalbased power plants may be considered in merit order dispatch and gas-based power purchase obligation can also support reviving gas-based power plants," the Ministry suggested.

Further, there may be a possibility to operationalise gas-based power plants using domestic MDP gas from diverse areas, including gas from CBM fields, which is accessible at a competitive price or by envisaging any scheme similar to power

The Committee recommended that gas marketing PSUs like GAIL and Petronet LNG can explore the supply of gas to encourage the possibility of gas-based hybrid power plants to aid and accelerate India's RE transition.

RE + Gas Power Hybrid

The Parliamentary Standing Committee on Energy in a report placed in Parliament on January 4, 2019, observed

Suitable peaking power policy for using RE-gas bundled model is required for nudging utilities to purchase RE-gas power to serve customers 24x7, the Ministry said that gas based capacity can be utilised for peak energy demand. Such plants can help balance the grid by maintaining uninterrupted electricity supply, especially when solar plants shut down in the evenings and coal based plants take time to ramp up.

Natural gas is among the cleanest burning hydrocarbons. As per the US EIA, coal emits about 211.06 pounds of CO<sub>2</sub> per million British thermal units (mBtu) of energy, while natural gas emits 116.65 pounds of CO<sub>2</sub>.

Feasibility

A senior government official said that while gas is a better option compared to coal, there are issues related with availability of cheap gas.

"At present, international prices are around $41-43 per mBtu, which is among the highest. It will make generation costlier. Already half the gas-based capacity is idle due to high prices. Also with the current geopolitical scenario, LNG prices are not expected to weaken in the near future and with winters approaching, Europeans are scouting for gas. At present, it is not a cheap alternative," he explained.

India imports about half of its natural gas requirement as liquefied natural gas (LNG), of which around twothirds is through long-term contracts and the rest is spot, another official said. "Gaspower can compete with coal for around $10 per mBtu rate, beyond this it is not economically viable. Although coal prices are higher in global markets, it is still preferred over gas," he explained.

According to CareEdge, coal prices of South African thermal coal, a global benchmark, crossed its all-time high price of around $200 per tonne (in October 2021) and peaked at around $300 in April 2022. In May 2022, the global benchmark prices

Growing 10-fold, fintech market may touch $1 trillion in AUM by 2030: Report

Lending to drive growth of fintech market, followed by payments, wealthtech and insurtech

KR SRIVATS New Delhi, August 9

India's fintech sector, the third largest in the world, is expected to grow ten fold this decade, and touch assets under management (AUM) of $1 trillion between lending, asset management and insurance by 2030, according to a new report from Chiratae Ventures and EY India.

As of 2021, the total AUM of Indian fintech market (excluding payments) was about $102 billion. Payments landscape alone is expected to touch transaction volumes of $100 trillion by 2030.

Spurt in digital lending

This report —$1 trillion India Fintech Opportunity - highlighted that fintech sector revenues (including those from payments space) is estimated to grow to $200 billion by 2030 from about $18 billion in 2021. Much of the growth in the fintech sector will be driven in the digital lending market, $515 billion in book size by and traditional lenders have to ive. "I don't think fintechs will

The report projects digital lending revenues to grow to 2030, from a level of $38 billion in 2021, the report noted.

Digital lending revenues have been projected in the report to grow to $105 billion by 2030 from $8 billion in 2021. Digital lending growth will be driven on the back of customised segment-specific solution, according to the report. In 2021, digital lending clocked more than $1 billion in investments.

Home to 21 fintech unicorns (out of 2100+ fintechs), India is now being recognised as one of the largest fintech ecosystems.

Evolving marketplace

The report said that co-lending is likely to evolve as a marketplace model that assists lending partners in mitigating their risk exposure.

"In the future, we expect colending to emerge as a marketplace model that supports lending partners to mitigate work with each other. It has already started," TC Meenakshi Sundaram, Co-Founder and Vice-Chairperson, Chiratae Ventures, told BusinessLine.

The report highlighted that payments, digital lending, wealthtech, insurtech and neobanking will all be contributing to growth in the fintech space with Agri+Fintech and Prop+Fintech considered to be big bets. Also, new asset classes, crypto and NFTs will continue to attract investor interest.

Asked if he sees fintechs "eating" into the lending business traditional banks, which is expected to grow to their risk exposure. Fintechs Sundaram replied in the negat-be eating into traditional lenders' loan book. We see their coexistence. We are not believers that suddenly fintechs will come and take over the market," he added.

Agile regulators

Sundaram said that he was confident that regulators would keep pace with industry. "We expect them to be sometimes little ahead and sometimes little later. Later will be more in terms of protecting the end consumer. In last few years, regulators have become far more agile in terms of catching up with the requirements of the industry," he said. The report also highlighted that a lot of activity is expected to happen around wealthTech and insurTech. New sub-segments are going to be innovated by the fintechs with new class of products. A case in point being fractionalisation of investments to potentially serve the need of a new class of investors that is emerging

The report also said that Buy Now Pay Later (BNPL) has become mainstream, and is on an accelerated growth trajectory, emerging strong not only in B2C, but also B2B payments space. BNPL, which clocked GMV of $3 billion in 2021, is projected to have a GMV of $35 billion by 2026, according to industry estimates.

WEEKLY RUPEE VIEW

Rupee expected to stay within the range of 78.50-80 against dollar for a month

Strong FPI inflows can be a good buffer for INR

AKHIL NALLAMUTHU

BL Research Bureau The rupee (INR), which was at 78.72 a week ago, depreciated against the dollar (USD), and on Monday, it closed at 79.65. The drop was largely due to the gain in the dollar on the back of strong employment numbers, which kept the expectations of the Fed carrying out sharp rate hikes reasonable.

However, the downside in the Indian currency was limited because of the strong foreign inflows.

Latest data from NSDL shows that net Foreign Portfolio Investors (FPI) inflow in August so far is at a little over $2 billion.

Also, crude oil prices have been falling, supporting the local unit. The price of Brent crude futures, which was at $110 a barrel by the end of July, currently hovers around $98.

That said, the charts indicate that there is a high probability for the currency pair of USD-INR to stay in a range.

The dollar index (DXY), currently trading at 106, is expected to oscillate within the range of 105-107.50 in the near-term.

This will strengthen the case for the rupee to stay sideways.

Outlook

While the strong US employment numbers can provide strength to the dollar, substantial FPI inflows can act as a strong buffer against the downward pressure on the rupee.

This can lead to the USD-INR currency pair remaining in a range. The charts, too, indicate a possible sideways trend. Therefore, at least in the coming week, the rupee may stay within a price band, probably within 79-79.80.

Iranian satellite MOSCOW: A Russian rocket on Tuesday successfully launched an Iranian satellite into orbit. The Soyuz rocket lifted off as scheduled at 8.52 am (Moscow time) on Tuesday from the Russia-leased Baikonur launch facility in Kazakh stan. About nine minutes after the launch, it placed the Iranian satellite called Khayyam into orbit. It's named after Omar Khavyam, a Persian scientist who lived in the 11th and 12th centuries. Iran has said the satellite fitted with high-resolution camera will be used for environmental monitoring and will remain fully under its control. IANS

Nagasaki marks 77th anniversary of U.S. atomic bombing

70,000 people were killed during the nuclear attack on August 9, 1945

Associated Press

Tokyo

Nagasaki paid tribute to the victims of the U.S. atomic bombing 77 years ago on August 9, with the mayor saying Russia's war on Ukraine showed the world that another nuclear attack is not just a worry but "a tangible and present crisis."

Mayor Tomihisa Taue, in his speech on Tuesday at the Nagasaki Peace Park, said nuclear weapons can be used as long as they exist, and their elimination is the only way to save the future of humankind. Russia's invasion of Ukraine and threat of nuclear weapons use came only a month after it and four other nuclear powers pledged in a statement that nuclear war should never be fought, Taue noted.

at the Peace Park in Nagasaki on the 77th anniversary of the atomic bombing during WWII, on Tuesday. • AFP

"This has shown the world that the use of nuclear weapons is not a groundless fear but a tangible and present crisis," he said. The belief that nuclear weapons

can be possessed not for actual use but for deterrence

"is a fantasy, nothing more than a mere hope." As in Hiroshima, Russia and its ally Belarus were not invited to the memorial event in Nagasaki.

United States dropped the world's first atomic bomb on Hiroshima on August 6, 1945, destroying the city and killing 140,000 people. It dropped a second bomb three days later on Nagasaki, killing another 70,000. Japan surrendered on August 15, ending World War II and Japan's nearly half-century of aggression in Asia. Participants, diplomats from nuclear states, observed a moment of silence at 11:02 a.m., the moment the bomb exploded above the southern Japanese city on August 9, 1945.

week tried to roll back on Putin's warning, fears of a third atomic bombing have grown amid Russia's threats of nuclear attack since its war on Ukraine began in February. Russia last week shelled a Ukrainian city close to Europe's largest nuclear plant.
