Investors in for long winter amid oil & gas perfect storm

Present-day output cut insignificant to move needle on oil prices, but output cuts may push up prices: Analysts

NIKITA WASHIHT
New Delhi, 6 September

The oil and gas sector is going through a perfect storm, with investors eyeing a cold winter. On Monday, the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries (Opec) and its allies (Opec+), led by Russia, agreed to cut output by 100,000 barrels per day (bpd) for October.

This will amount to 0.1 per cent of global demand, and is aimed at bolstering prices that have slid on fears of economic slowdown. It reverses an increase in supply by a similar amount last month.

While analysts said the current output cut is insignificant to move the needle on oil prices, they cautioned that more output cuts in future may push oil prices higher, impacting India in the long run. "The key takeaway from the Opec+ meeting is that the group is ready to cut output to support prices. In the event of any sharp slowdown in the global economy, Opec+ will step up its effort to push prices," said Dayanan Mittal, research analyst, JM Financial Institutional Securities.

According to government estimates, every $1 per barrel increase in crude oil price impacts India's current account deficit (CAD) by around $1 billion since the country meets over 85 per cent of its crude oil demand via imports. V K Vijayakumar, chief investment strategist at Geojit Financial Services, meanwhile, remained hopeful that India may be able to finance CAD of 2.5 per cent on the back of robust foreign portfolio investments — as long as oil prices hold at current levels. He suggested investors stay away from both upstream and downstream oil com

Soaring gas prices

European gas prices skyrocketed as much as 30 per cent higher on Monday, with the benchmark gas price surging as high as €272 per megawatt hour, after Russia said one of its main gas supply pipelines to Europe — Nord Stream 1 — would stay shut indefinitely.

Nearer home, spot liquefied natural gas (LNG) prices in Asia touched a record high of $70 per metric tonne British thermal unit (mmBtu) last week — a threefold increase in three months.

Given the ballooning global prices, analysts at ICICI Securities see downside risks to margin estimates for listed players for the rest of 2022-23 (FY23). "Assuming a high spot LNG price range of $40-45 per mmtBtu for the second half (H2) of FY23, and limited options to pass through in the absence of any petrol/diesel price hike, the earnings before interest, tax, depreciation, and amortisation (Ebitda) per standard cubic metre of gas for Indraprastha Gas (IGL)/Mahanagar Gas (MGL) can reduce 20-38 per cent; for Gujarat Gas (GGL), it can rise 35 per cent in FY23. For GAIL (India), Gujarat State Petronet (GSPN), and Petronet LNG, lower volumes and/or higher costs can reduce Ebitda by 6-20 per cent," said ICICI Securities.

The average gas costs for city gas distribution (CGD) players remained muted in the January-March quarter of 2021-22 and increased 25 per cent quarter-on-quarter in the first quarter of FY23 amid reduction in domestic gas allocation over the past six months and record rise in spot LNG prices over the same period.

CGD companies have raised compressed natural gas (CNG) prices by 50-70 per cent since October 1, 2021. Analysts said a further hike in domestic gas price to $10 per mmtBtu for H2FY23 might push CGD companies to hike CNG price by another 25 per cent, or about ₹20 per kilo, which will erode the competitiveness of CNG and impact near-term volume growth/margin.

ICICI Securities has a 'buy' rating on IGL, MGL, GGL, GAIL (India), and GSPN, and a 'reduce' rating on Petronet LNG.

JM Financial, too, maintains 'buy' on IGL and MGL due to robust pricing power and steady volume growth story. "Notwithstanding high spot LNG price posing a risk to GGL's margin/volume, we reiterate 'buy' on the stock as we expect its volume growth momentum to sustain in the medium to long term, led by rise in gas use by industrial consumers," observed the brokerage.

Lacking discipline to stay invested? Retirement funds are a good option

Others should invest in pure equity and debt funds, or go for EPF and NPS

SANJAY KUMAR SINGH

The retirement fund category has 25 funds with total assets under management (AUM) of ₹16,775 crore. The largest funds in this category are from UTI, HDFC, and Nippon India. The latest entrant is Union Asset Management Company (AMC).

According to the Securities and Exchange Board of India's (Sebi) circular of October 2017, retirement funds fall under the solutions-oriented schemes category. Sebi's only stipulation for them is that they should have a lock-in for five years, or until retirement, whichever comes earlier.

These funds have widely varying asset allocation. Some are pure equity funds with equity allocation above 90 per cent. Others are akin to hybrid funds, with equity allocation ranging from 18.8 to 82.5 per cent.

Enforce discipline

According to Association of Mutual Funds in India (Amfi) data, only about 46 per cent of Indian equity mutual fund investors stay invested beyond two years. The majority tend to bolt at the first sign of a market downturn or underperformance by the fund.

The compulsory lock-in can help such investors. "Due to the five-year lock in, the investor is forced to stay invested for this period, allowing his money sufficient time to grow," says G Pradeepkumar, chief executive officer, Union AMC.

Such labelled products also lead to mental slottting. "Investors who put money in a labelled fund are less likely to use it for other purposes," says Arun Kumar, head of research, Fundsindia.com.

Stuck with an underperformer

The five-year lock-in can, at times, be problematic. "The investor could get stuck in an underperformer fund for a long period," says Vaibhav Porwal, co-founder, dezerv.

These funds are also expensive. "Their regular plans tend to have high expense ratios," says Deepesh Raghav, founder, PersonalFinancePlan, a Sebi-registered investment advisor. Most of the regular plans have an expense ratio above 2 per cent, with the maximum going up to 2.69 per cent.

Besides the five-year lock in, there is little to distinguish these funds from open-end pure equity or hybrid funds. In terms of performance, too, it is hard to separate them. "Of the 25 retirement funds, 15 have been in existence for less than three years, so it is difficult to gauge their performance yet. However, their one- and three-year rolling returns are not very different, compared to equivalent hybrid or flexi-cap funds," says Porwal.

Since they are active funds, the investor faces the risk of faulty security selection by the fund manager. They also don't receive any special tax benefit.

These funds also don't offer many of the features that a dedicated retirement product, such as the National Pension System (NPS), does.

"In NPS, you are locked in until retirement (with only partial withdrawals allowed under special circumstances) to ensure forced saving for retirement. Here, the lock-in is for five years only, so the money could be used for other purposes. NPS has compulsory annuitisation which ensures an income stream for life. Here there is no such compulsion. Also, in NPS, either the investor controls the asset allocation or it is automatically determined by his life stage."

In a mutual fund, the asset allocation can't be changed inside one fund. In a retirement fund, the investor doesn't control the asset allocation. The asset allocation does not depend on the age of the investor either. It is the same for a 28- or a 58-year-old. And if the investor uses a second fund to manage asset allocation, switching between these funds would result in a tax liability. NPS doesn't have such issues.

Should you invest?

Investors, especially those who are new to equities and lack the discipline to stay invested for the long-term, could benefit from the lock-in in these funds.

Those who have an advisor to hold them, or have the necessary discipline to stay invested amid volatility, can build their retirement portfolios using a mix of equity and debt funds (also Employees Provident Fund and NPS).

Those who choose to invest in these funds must do a lot of due diligence, given the long lock-in. "Ensure that the fund's equity portfolio has a decent track record and check the debt portion for credit and duration risk," says Kumar.
