Remove 'misleading' ads, NCPCR tells Bournvita

VIVEAT SUSAN PINTO
Mumbai, April 26

WITHIN WEEKS Of a food blogger flagging high sugar content in health drink Bournvita, the National Commission for the Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR) on Wednesday asked the brand's parent firm Mondelez India to withdraw all misleading advertisements, packaging and labels on its product. The child rights body also asked the company in a notice to send a detailed explanation to the commission within seven days on the matter.

In a statement, a Bournvita spokesperson said that its claims were verified and transparent. "All ingredients have regulatory approvals. All the necessary nutritional information is mentioned on the pack for consumers to make informed choices," the spokesperson said.

The issue first came to the fore on April 1, when Revant Himatsingka, a food blogger and influencer, had uploaded a minute-long video criticising Bournvita for misrepresenting

SUGAR ROW

■ In a notice, the National Commission for Protection of Child Rights asked Bournvita to send within seven days a detailed explanation or report to apprise the panel on the matter the nutritional value of its product on its packaging.

The video was widely shared, with over 1.2 million in views, which led to a legal notice from Mondelez India. Himatsingka, deleted the video from all platforms after being served the legal notice by the company on April 13. By then, the issue had triggered a wider debate on social media on the nutritional value of food products, with the Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI) saying that it had taken note of the issue.

The NCPCR, on the other hand, said that its notice to Mondelez India was prompted by a complaint it had received which said that Bournvita was promoting itself as a health drink, even as it contained a high percentage of sugar and other substances that could impact a child's health.

"The commission in this regard observes that the product manufactured by your company is misleading the customers through its product packaging and advertisements. The commission observes that your product's labelling, packaging, display and advertisement claims are misleading for the general public. The product's labeling and packaging also fails to acknowledge the correct information regarding the contents used in the Bournvita health drink," NCPCR said in its notice to the company.

EXPLAINER

INDIA'S INTERESTS IN EQUITY OIL

The 'equity oil' issue got highlighted recently, after India faced the double whammy of spike in oil prices following the decision by Opec+ nations to cut production and Russia's Rosneft stating it will give dividends, not equity oil, to India. For India, which imports 87% of its oil needs, equity oil is key a energy-security tool. Manish Gupta takes a look

India's equity-oil investments

ONGC Videsh (OVL), the overseas arm of India's Oil and Natural Gas Corporation (ONGC), has the biggest stakes in foreign oil fields, particularly in Russia, Brazil and Mozambique. OVL has stakes in 33 oil and gas projects in 15 countries — Azerbaijan (two projects), Bangladesh (two), Brazil (two), Colombia (five), Iran (one), Iraq (one), Libya (one), Mozambique (one), Myanmar (six), Russia (three), South Sudan (two), Syria (two), UAE (one), Venezuela (two) and Vietnam (two).

The company, as per its website, adopts a balanced portfolio approach and maintains a combination of producing, discovered, exploration and pipeline assets. Other Indian companies like Oil India, BPCL and IOCL have also made investments in a few countries, including Sudan, the UK and Peru. These are both equity and debt investments.

What is equity oil?

EQUITY OIL is the share of oil production that an investor is entitled to receive based on their ownership stake in an oil field. If a company owns a 20% stake in an oil field which produces 100,000 barrels of oil per day, the company is entitled to receive 20,000 barrels of oil per day as its share of production. It ensures availability and reduces uncertainty. Equity oil helps a country secure a reliable supply and partially protects it from geopolitical risks in terms of oil supply. Energy security is a major concern for India, and investing in oil assets abroad is a strategic move to ensure oil availability and support the country's economic growth. India started investing in oil assets abroad in the 1990s. Some of these earn dividends, while other investments are for equity oil.

Why India needs equity oil

WITH LIMITED DOMESTIC oil reserves and falling production, India is the world's third-largest oil importer, which makes it vulnerable to fluctuations in global oil prices and supply disruptions. Ironically, since 2015, when Prime Minister Narendra Modi exhorted stakeholders to reduce import dependence, domestic crude oil production has fallen by about 19%—from 35.9 million tonne in FY15 to 29.2 million tonne in FY23.

Import dependence, instead of falling from 77% in 2015 to 67% by 2022 as Modi had wished, shot up to 87% in FY23. And, the import bill rose 30% to nearly $147 billion in FY23. No new oil blocks were awarded in most part of the last decade. State-run ONGC, India's largest oil and gas producer, hasn't made any major recovery after the drying up of Bombay High as higher dividends constrain its cash reserves and capex.

How effective has equity-oil strategy been

THOUGH THE STRATEGY is sound, it is yet to prove beneficial for the Indian oil sector. Investments in equity oil do secure long-term crude oil supplies for the country and reduce India's dependence on the volatile international oil markets, at least for the amount of oil under agreement in equity deals. However, considering the country's total requirement, these investments are quite low and are far from having any meaningful stabilising effect on India's energy security.

India's biggest equity-oil investor, OVL, gets six million barrels whereas the yearly requirement is about 235 million tonne. Apart from the investments being small, there are other factors such as geopolitical risks, unstable oil prices, and operational challenges.

At times, India has been elbowed out by the Chinese in acquisition of these assets. A decade ago, India lost to China in Kazakhstan, on the giant Kashagan oil-field—India was looking to buy a 8.4% stake from ConocoPhillips. Generally, these resource-rich hot spots have high geopolitical risks.

India's investments in Sudan and Venezuela have faced political instability and sanctions affecting the supply of oil. Now, the assets in Sudan and Russia are facing challenges.

530 Indians evacuated from Sudan

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, April 26

TWO MILITARY TRANSPORT aircraft of the Indian Air Force (IAF) evacuated over 250 Indians from Sudan after a naval ship rescued another 278 citizens from the strife-torn country. The total number of Indians evacuated so far from Sudan stands at around 530, according to official data.

Under its evacuation mission 'Operation Kaveri', India has set up a transit facility at Jeddah and all the Indians have been taken to the Saudi Arabian city after their evacuation from Sudan.

The first batch of 278 Indians were evacuated by Indian Navy's frontline ship INS Sumedha on Tuesday. Hours later, the first C130J heavy-lift transport aircraft of the IAF landed at Port Sudan to bring back more Indians. It was followed by evacuation by another C130J. According to external affairs minister S Jaishankar, the first C-130J aircraft brought to Jeddah 121 passengers while the second plane evacuated 135.

"A second C-130 flight reaches Jeddah bringing 135 passengers from Sudan. Operation Kaveri moving steadily forward," he tweeted. India has set up a control room in the Saudi Arabian city of Jeddah to facilitate evacuation of Indians from Sudan. Minister of state for external affairs V Muraleedharan has reached Jeddah to oversee the evacuation mission.

From Jeddah, India is set to bring back the Indians home in military transport aircraft of the IAF. Sudan has been witnessing deadly fighting between the country's army and a paramilitary group for the last 12 days that has reportedly left around 400 people dead. India stepped up its efforts to evacuate the Indians from Sudan as a 72-hour truce was agreed to between the Sudanese army and the paramilitary Rapid Support Forces (RSF) following intense negotiations.

Jaishankar on Monday announced launch of the mission 'Operation Kaveri' to bring back the stranded Indians from Sudan that has been witnessing fierce fighting following a power struggle between the regular army and a paramilitary force.
