Do dams really cause floods

EDITORIAL

caused that unprecedented floods in Kolhapur and Sangli districts has now receded but the repercussions will surface for long time. The massive loss of life and property and damage to crop in the field has devastated people residing there. There was lot of criticism on government machinery which was unaware of the grave situation in the store and that criticism has substance. The state government and administration had not enough boats to carry people safer places from the villages inundated in the two districts. The state government has declared economic assistance and it is being provided to the flood affected people. All the media and political leaders have targeted the government and administration on the issues of lack of mechanism to help flood affected and seriousness on the part of ministers. These are right issues but another very important issue was sidelined by all. That is the blunder and irresponsible behavior of dam officials. Madhavrao Gadgilis a reknown expert on the subject of dams and western Ghats ecology. He has pointed out that, the officials entrusted for Radhanagri and Warna dams in Kolhapur and Sangli districts have made irremissible blunder by not releasing water from the dams at proper time. When there was a forecast of very heavy rains by meteorology department, the officials should have released water from the dams as both the dams were full of capacity. But, they neglected this important fact and it caused a very severe flood in South Maharashra. Had the officials shown some sensitivity and released the water when the dams were flowing to full capacity, the loss of life and property would have been much less. There has been total neglect of the blunder of dam officials on whom responsibility of floods should be fixed. But, the criticism has only concentrated on the government failure about gauging the seriousness of situation. Of course, there is another angle for this blunder. The nineteen seventy eight security rules are in force for the releasing the water and according to it, when the dam is filled to its eighty to eighty five percent capacity, the water is released and it happens only at the time of heavy rains. This naturally compounds the problem of floods more grave. The rules are not logically coherent with the forecast of meteorology department. But, the officials can't escape from their blunder in the name of rule. They should have applied minds and took the decision to release the water before actually heavy rains started. Gadgil has pointed precisely this mistake. Now, the government should appoint a committee to investigate the actual causes for the flood situation in the two districts and fix the responsibility. There should also brought change in the rules. The government has done many things after this flood. Initially it has shown apathy towards overall flood situation. But, after realizing that this apathy may cause electoral prospects of saffron combine in the coming assembly elections, suddenly the government felt urgent need to take measures. The affected people are being provided the immediate financial help and many sops are declared for them. Now Maharashtra cabinet on Tuesday decided to demand economic assistance of above six thousand crores to the centre for the rehabilitation of affected people in the state. Will the help arrive the earliest depends upon the importance of Fadanvis in Delhi. Presently, is seems he is not in the good book of Union Home minister Amit Shaha. The latter made aerial survey of flood affected regions in the districts of Kolhapur and Sangli, he was accompanied by Karnatak chief minister BS Yediyurappa and not Fadanvis. This shows how centre is giving importance to Maharashra chief minister. This the insult to Fadanvis but he is helpless here. But, this indicates Maharashtra will not be given help as demanded and immediately. This is a severe blow to the state. Because, the damage is extremely heavy and the amount demanded is already insufficient. The government should keep a watch that, when it receives the help, it is reaching to really needy people. Otherwise the government officials and the local goons are the real beneficiaries of this money. Fadanvis has the responsibility to see that, the help is reaching out to real needy and flood affected people. Government has many challenges ahead and it has to overcome it. Will it be possible for the CM to complete successfully this task, the time will tell. The basic point is dams are causing floods. So what should be our position for dams? The releasing water from Almatty dam in Karnataka has caused floods in Maharashtra. There are many interstate dams that may cause floods
