US launches mass expulsion of Haitian migrants from Texas

AP ■ DEL RIO (US)

The US is flying Haitians cramped in a Texas border town back to their homeland and blocking others from crossing the border from Mexico in a massive show of force that signals the beginning of what could be one of America's swiftest, large-scale expulsions of migrants or refugees in decades.

More than 320 migrants arrived in Port-au-Prince on three flights Sunday, and Haiti said six flights were expected Tuesday.

In all, US authorities moved to expel many of the more than 12,000 migrants camped around a bridge in Del Rio, Texas, after crossing from Ciudad Acuña, Mexico.

The US plans to begin seven expulsion flights daily on Wednesday, four to Port-au-Prince and three to Cap-Haitien, according to a US official who was not authorized to discuss the matter publicly.

Flights will continue Tuesday but authorities may add El Paso, the official said.

The only obvious parallel for such an expulsion without an open country to seek asylum was in 1992 when the Coast Guard intercepted Haitian refugees at sea, said Yael Schacher, senior US advocate at Regional Studies focused on the history of US asylum law.

Similarly large numbers of Mexicans have been sent home during peak years of immigration but over land and not so suddenly.

Central Americans have also crossed the border in comparable numbers without being subject to mass expulsion, although Mexico has agreed to accept them from the US under pandemic-related authority in effect since March 2020. Mexico does not accept expelled Haitians or people of other nationalities east of Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras and El Salvador.

When the border was closed Sunday, the migrants initially found other ways to cross nearby until they were confronted by federal and state law enforcement.

An Associated Press reporter saw Haitian immigrants still crossing the river into the US about 1.5 miles (2.4 kilometers) east of the previous spot, but they were eventually stopped by Border Patrol agents on horseback and Texas law enforcement officials.

As they crossed, some Haitians carried boxes on their heads filled with food. Some removed their pants before getting into the river and carried them. Others were concerned about getting wet.

Agents yelled at the migrants who were crossing in the waist-deep river to get out of the water. The several hundred who had successfully crossed and were sitting along the river bank on the US side were ordered to the Del Rio camp. "Go now," agents yelled. Mexican authorities in an air-

"We need food for every day," Jean said, but my kids can't," said Jean, who had three daughters, ages 2, 5 and 12. He was waiting on the Mexican north to the US. It was unclear if he made it back across and to the camp.

Mexico said Sunday it would also begin deporting Haitians to their homeland. A government official said the flights would be from towns near the US border and the border with Guatemala, where the largest group remains.

Haitians have been migrating to the US in large numbers from South America for several years, many having left their Caribbean nation after a devastating 2010 earthquake.

After jobs dried up from the 2016 Summer Olympics in Rio de Janeiro, many made the dangerous trek by foot, bus and car to the US border, including through the infamous Darien Gap.

Six flights were scheduled in Haiti on Tuesday — three in Port-au-Prince and three in the northern city of Cap-Haitien, said Jean Negor Bonheur Deha, Haiti's migration director.

The rapid expulsions were not the first. In a pandemic-related authority adopted by former President Donald Trump in March 2020 that allows for migrants to be immediately removed from the country without an opportunity to seek asylum, President Joe Biden exempted unaccompanied children from the order but let the rest stand.

Shooting at Russian varsity leaves 6 dead

AP ■ MOSCOW

A student opened fire on Monday at a university in Russia, leaving six people dead and 28 hurt, before being shot by police and detained, officials said.

Beyond saying that he was a student, authorities offered no further information on his identity or possible motive.

During the attack, students and staff at Perm State University took refuge in rooms, and video posted on Russian news sites showed some students jumping out of second-story windows.

In some footage, a black-clad, helmeted figure could be seen firing on a campus sidewalk crisscrossed by a large, barrel-armed weapon. Russia's Investigative Committee, the country's top body for criminal probes, said the gunman fired a smoothbore hunting weapon. That could indicate he used a shotgun.

The Investigative Committee said six people were killed, revising down its earlier figure of eight dead. No explanation was given for the change.

A police unit was the first to reach the scene, and the suspect opened fire on them, according to the Interior Ministry. He was wounded when police returned fire and then was disarmed, the ministry said. The gunman also was armed with a knife, it said.

Although firearms laws are strict in Russia, many people obtain permits for hunting weapons. News reports cited officials as saying the suspect had a permit for a pump-action shotgun, although it was not clear if it was for the weapon used.

Despite the firearms regulations, mass shootings take place. In May, a gunman opened fire at a school in the city of Kazan, killing seven students and two teachers, with a registered weapon. A student at a college in Russia-annexed Crimea killed 20 students and himself in 2018.

Hindu family in Pak tortured for fetching water from mosque

PTI ■ ISLAMABAD

Fetching drinking water from a mosque in Pakistan's Punjab province landed a minority Hindu community in trouble as some people tortured and held them hostage for "violating the sanctity" of their place of worship, a media report said on Monday.

Alam Ram Bheel, a resident of Punjab's Rahimyar Khan city, was picking raw cotton along with his other family members, including his wife, in a field.

Bheel said outside the family went outside a nearby mosque to fetch drinking water from a tap, some local landlords beat them up, the Dawn newspaper reported.

When the family was returning home after unloading the raw cotton, the landlords held them hostage at their dera (outhouse) and tortured them again for "violating the sanctity" of the mosque, it said.

The police did not register a case as the attackers were related to a local parliamentarian from the Pakistan Muslim League (PML) party, Bheel said. Protesting the police apathy, Bheel held a sit-in outside the police station along with another clan member Peter Iqbal Bheel.

Peter, also a member of the district peace committee, said that they approached ruling PML lawmaker Javed Warraich who helped them lodge a case on Friday. Peter requested other members of the district peace committee to call an emergency meeting over the issue but they did not take the matter seriously, the report said.

PTI's south Punjab minority wing secretary general Yohidster Chohan said that incident was in his knowledge but due to the inaction of a ruling party MP, he preferred to stay away.

District Police Officer Asad Sarfaraz said he was looking into the matter.

UN chief warns China, US to avoid new Cold War

AP ■ UNITED NATIONS

Warning of a potential new Cold War, the head of the United Nations implored China and the United States to repair their "completely dysfunctional" relationship before problems between the two large and deeply influential countries spill over further into the rest of the planet.

UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres spoke to The Associated Press this weekend ahead of the UN's 76th annual General Assembly, a gathering of world leaders — a convening dimmed by COVID-19 concerns and contentiousness across the planet.

Guterres said the world's two major economic powers should be cooperating on climate and negotiating more robustly on trade and technology even given persisting political fissures about human rights, economics, online security and sovereignty in the South China Sea.

"Unfortunately, today we only have confrontation," Guterres said Saturday in the AP interview.

"We need to re-establish a functional relationship between the two powers," he said, calling that "essential to address the problems of vaccination, the problems of climate change and many other global challenges that cannot be solved without constructive relations within the international community and mainly among the superpowers."

Two years ago, Guterres warned global leaders of the risk of the world splitting into two rival geopolitical and military strategies would pose "dangers" and divide the world. Thus, he said, the founding relationship must be repaired — and soon.

"We need to avoid it all cost," he said that would be different from the past one, and probably more dangerous and more difficult to manage," Guterres said. The so-called Cold War between the Soviet Union and its East bloc allies and the United States and its Western allies began immediately after World War II and ended with the breakup of the Soviet Union in 1991.

It was a clash of two nuclear-armed superpowers with rival ideologies — communism and authoritarianism on one side, capitalism and democracy on the other.

The UN chief said a new Cold War could be more perilous because the Soviet-US antipathy was clear, rules and boundaries were conscious of the risk of nuclear destruction. That produced back channels and forums "to guarantee that things would not get out of control," he said.

"We need to avoid everything in more fluid, and even the experience that existed in the past to manage crisis is no longer there," Guterres said.

He said the US-Britain deal to give Australia nuclear-powered submarines so it could conduct operations in the Asia "is just one small piece of a more complex puzzle... This completely dysfunctional relationship between China and the United States."

ISIS terrorists claim attacks on Taliban

The extremist Islamic State group has claimed responsibility for a series of deadly bombings targeting Taliban vehicles in eastern Afghanistan. The claim, published late Sunday on the militant group's media arm, the Amaq news agency, signals a growing threat to the Taliban by their long-time rivals.

At least eight people, including several Taliban fighters, were killed in the attacks on Sunday and Saturday in the provincial city of Jalalabad, an IS stronghold.

The Taliban seized control of Afghanistan in a blitz campaign last month, overturning the capital of Kabul while US, and NATO were in the final phase of withdrawing their troops. AP

'Hotel Rwanda' hero sentenced to 25 years on terror charges

AP ■ KIGALI (RWANDA)

The man who inspired the film 'Hotel Rwanda' was convicted of terrorism offences Monday and sentenced to 25 years in prison in a trial that human rights watchdogs and other critics of Rwanda's repressive government have described as an act of retaliation.

Paul Rusesabagina, credited with saving ethnic Tutsis during Rwanda's 1994 genocide and a recipient of the US Presidential Medal of Freedom, boycotted the announcement of the verdict after saying he didn't expect justice in a trial he called a "sham."

The US resident and Belgian citizen was convicted on nine charges including the formation of an illegal armed group, membership in a terrorist group, financing a terror group, murder and abduction.

Canadians vote in pandemic election that could cost Trudeau

AP ■ TORONTO

Canadians began voting on Monday in an election that threatens to knock Justin Trudeau from power. Trudeau gambled on an early election in a bid to win a majority of seats in Parliament.

Polls indicate Trudeau's Liberal Party is in a tight race with the rival Conservatives. It will likely win the most seats in Parliament, but still fall to get a majority, forcing it to rely on an opposition party to pass legislation.

Polling stations opened first in the Atlantic coast province of Newfoundland.

Trudeau made a remarkably stark error in judgment, said Robert Borner, a professor of Canadian history and international relations at the University of Toronto. "Trudeau entered the election leading a stable minority government that wasn't under threat of being toppled."

The opposition has been relentless in accusing Trudeau of calling the early vote — two years before the deadline — for his own personal ambition.

US announces new international travel system

Only fully vaccinated individuals to be allowed

Washington: The US on Monday announced a new international travel system under which fully vaccinated individuals would be allowed to enter the country beginning in November.

This essentially lifts the travel ban that the US had earlier enforced. Former president Donald Trump had imposed a blanket ban on foreign travel from entering the US at the start of the coronavirus pandemic in early 2020.

China previously said the system would require for nationals to be vaccinated, to prove they're vaccinated, and then to go to the testing and contact tracing regimens, he said.

"That's right, for (fully) vaccinated travellers it is not required to be a quarantine going forward," he said in response to another question.

Nearly six billion Covid-19 vaccines have already been administered globally, he said, adding that the US is leading the effort to get even more shots and arms across the world. PTI
