The formation of a panel of three wards has created a political dilemma for the winning corporators in the last elections.The three candidates have a headache as to which seat to get elected from and which party to field.The panel system has benefited the political party while the smaller parties and independent candidates have suffered. Since a ward wants to elect 3 members, the ruling and opposition parties will field 3 candidates from their own party, making it difficult for independents and party, making it difficult for independents and smaller parties to find 3 candidates.
