Int'l travel norms eased as cases dip

RUCHIKA CHITRAVASHI & ANESH PHADNIS
New Delhi/Chennai/10 February

With Covid cases declining, the current picture is that of optimism and caution, the government said as it considerably relaxed the restrictions on international travellers on Thursday, including no mandatory seven-day isolation or compulsory RT-PCR testing for fully vaccinated.

“We are below the first surge level, overall positivity is now below 5 per cent. Pandemic situation is optimistic, but this is not yet the time to be less vigilant. We cannot lower our guard,” V K Paul, member-health, NITI Aayog, and chairman of National Covid Task Force, said.

NEW GUIDELINES

- 14-day self-monitoring after arrival, against 7-day home quarantine
- Random sampling of 2% of international travellers from all countries on arrival
- Demarcation of countries 'at-risk' and other countries removed
- No need to wait for results after giving sample on arrival
- Option to upload full vaccination certificate instead of RT-PCR for 82 countries

14. The government has also removed the demarcation of countries 'at-risk' and other countries. With this, the requirement of giving samples on port of arrival and waiting till the result is obtained from countries 'at-risk' is done away with. Travellers will also have the option of uploading certificate of completing the full vaccination schedule, besides the RT-PCR report taken 72 hours before the journey. This facility is only available on a reciprocal basis to 82 countries, which includes the UK, the US, Canada, Australia, and Hong Kong.

While the UK has done away with the RT-PCR requirement for fully vaccinated Indian travellers, those travelling to the US or Canada will have to produce a negative report before boarding the flight. Full vaccination is mandatory for all foreign travellers to the US and Canada.

The health ministry said the new guidelines have been formulated taking a risk-based approach. “While monitoring the nature and spread of infection in the country and across the globe, vigilance is also given to the fact that economic activities need to be taken up in an unhindered manner,” the ministry said.

It said international travellers have to be tracked in a softer way but vigilance cannot be down. The government will continue to do random sampling of 2 per cent of international travellers from all countries.

Chink in Kerala's Covid control armour

High testing, rural-urban mobility, disbanded ground force reasons behind high daily caseload

SOHINIDAS, SHINE JACOB & ISHAAN GERA
Mumbai/Chennai/Delhi, 10 February

Kerala's much-acclaimed story of pandemic control seems to have turned weak on some counts in the final on-phase of Covid-19.

Even as new Covid cases are going down across the country, Kerala continues to report more than 20,000 of them a day.

Experts say tactical errors by the local government, higher rates of testing, and high mobility among rural and urban areas are some of the factors that have contributed to a slow reduction in the case count during the third wave.

The state, with 258,954 active cases, accounts for 32.75 per cent of the country's as on February 10. Maharashtra is a distant second — 10.98 per cent with 86,847 active cases now.

Kerala reported a peak positivity rate of 49.4 per cent during the third wave, much higher than the 24.7 per cent it checked during the second wave. Compared to this, with densely populated zones like Delhi (30.6 per cent) and even Maharashtra (23.4 per cent), which have fared better in terms of controlling the infection spread. The good news is, the positivity rate is on the decline now in Kerala — from 46.2 per cent on February 2, it has fallen to 32.3 per cent on February 9 (according to the Union health ministry data).

From 51,887 fresh daily cases on February 1, they dropped to 23,253 cases on February 9.

What went wrong during the third wave?

Kerala was an example of how it controlled the spread of the pandemic during the first wave. In 2020, tapping into its past experience of dealing with the deadly Zika and Nipah viruses, critics point out that lack of preparedness of the state machinery ahead of the third wave is blame.

“Opening schools right ahead of the third wave and allowing parties at a time when Kerala was not yet out of the Delta wave were mistakes. Moreover, they disbanded the Covid brigade a couple of months back without prior planning,” said S S Lal, a former official with the World Health Organization.

While some experts have said the higher population density is the reason behind higher transmission, Lal seems to disagree. “Opening schools right

A high rate of testing, bettering the national average, is also a factor contributing to Kerala's declining daily cases. Kerala does 3,691 tests per million people daily, much higher than the 829 of West Bengal or the 2,174 of Maharashtra.

Moreover, Kerala does a lot of antigen tests, which yield results within minutes. More than half the daily Covid tests done in the state are antigen tests. These are government has further slashed the test price to ₹100 (from ₹150) for antigen tests, and ₹350 for RT-PCR tests.

If the threshold for testing is lower, more people would get tested, and the number of infections captured will be higher. If Kerala is testing more, it is a surprise. It is also reporting higher numbers,” said Reddy.
