TECH TALK

5G trials to start very soon: Prasad

Aim is to produce 1 bn mobile phones, 50 m products like laptops, tablets in next 5 years, he adds

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, December 15

IT AND TELECOM minister Ravi Shankar Prasad on Tuesday said the much-awaited trials for 5G technologies will commence soon, a step that will speed up implementation and fuel the expansion of services like e-payments, e-commerce, e-learning, driverless cars and robotic surgery to name a few.

Emphasising the government's focus to become a global hub for electronic manufacturing, the minister said the aim is to produce 1 billion mobile phones, 50 million smart TVs and 50 million products like laptops and tablets in the next five years.

"We have tried to leverage India's digital ecosystem to reflect upon governance in all the sectors. 4G is working here and for 5G, we are going to start trials very soon," Prasad said at an event organised by Department for Promotion of Industry and Internal Trade (DPIIT) and industry body, CII.

"We are pushing electronic manufacturing in a big way. India must become a good centre of manufacturing as a part of the global supply chain. That is our focus. In the coming five years, India is determined to start producing annually 1 billion mobile phones, 50 million TV sets and 50 million IT hardware devices like laptops and tablets. That is our vision in electronic manufacturing. We want to scale big our digital economy in the coming five years to create a $1-trillion digital economy," he said.

Earlier during the event, telecom secretary Anshu Prakash said the country witnessed "massive growth" in the past 5-6 years in terms of expansion, penetration and use of mobile technologies.

On the government's future endeavours, he said: "We are soon coming out with production linked incentive (PLI) scheme for telecom products for which about ₹12,000 crore is earmarked. We want to unleash the potential of spectrum, remove bottlenecks, explore what new can be done with spectrum. We want to encourage wireline, internet base line, FTTH and FTTX connections. In the realm of 5G, we want to come out with meaningful applications".

Emphasising that the government wants to encourage manufacturing of telecom equipment in the country, Prakash pointed out "what is important in the PLI scheme on telecom is that we want more value addition, generate more IPRs, etc".

Cartelisation charge: SC upholds NCLAT clean chit to Ola, Uber

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, December 15

DOORS OF APPROACHING the Competition Commission of India (CCI) and appellate authority NCLAT must be kept "wide open in public interest" so as to subserve the "high public purpose" of the Competition Act 2002, the Supreme Court said on Tuesday.

The observation by the apex court came in its verdict on a petition challenging the order of the NCLAT which held that the informant had no locus standi to move the fair trade regulator, CCI, alleging anti-competitive conduct by app-based cab service providers Uber and Ola.

A bench headed by Justice RF Nariman noted the concurrent findings of the CCI and the National Company Law Appellate Tribunal (NCLAT), which had dismissed the plea and found that Uber and Ola do not facilitate any cartelisation or anti-competitive practices between drivers, and said there is no reason to interfere with these findings.

However, the bench set aside the NCLAT order regarding locus standi of the informant in approaching the CCI.

"Obviously, when the CCI performs inquisitorial, as opposed to adjudicatory functions, the doors of approaching the CCI and the appellate authority, ie, the NCLAT, must be kept wide open in public interest, so as to subserve the high public purpose of the Act," the bench, also comprising Justices KM Joseph and Krishna Murari, said in its 33-page judgment.

But Bench says doors of approaching the Competition Commission and NCLAT must be kept 'wide open in public interest'

During the arguments before the apex court, the advocates representing Uber and Ola had said concurrent findings of the CCI and the NCLAT on merits should be upheld as there was no question of any anti-competitive practice in the form of cartelisation.

Referring to the provisions of the Act and the 2009 Regulation, the top court noted they showed that "any person" may provide information to the CCI, which may then act upon it in accordance with the provisions of the Act.

"In this regard, the definition of 'person' in section 2(l) of the Act, set out hereinabove, is an inclusive one and is extremely wide, including individuals of all kinds and every artificial juridical person. This may be contrasted with the definition of 'consumer' in section 2(f) of the Act, which makes it clear that only persons who buy goods for consideration, or hire or avail of services for a consideration, are recognised as consumers," it said.

Referring to a provision of the Act, the bench said it would show that the law originally provided for 'receipt of a complaint' from any person, consumer or their association, or trade association and this expression was then substituted with 'receipt of any information in such manner and by the 2007 Amendment.

"This substitution is not without significance. Whereas, a complaint could be filed only from a person who was aggrieved by a particular action, information may be received from any person, obviously whether such person is or is not personally affected," it said.

Violence at Apple supplier fuels fears of further worker unrest

ANURADHA NAGARAJ
Chennai, December 15

THE RANSACKING of an iPhone manufacturer in Karnataka could be the first of many "flashpoints" involving local workers in the supply chains of major brands, researchers said on Tuesday, pointing to a lack of rights and recourse under new labour laws.

Thousands of contract workers in the country's tech hub of Bengaluru gathered on Saturday outside a factory owned by Taiwanese firm Wistron — a supplier for Apple — to demand unpaid wages and better working hours. As police arrived, the crowd turned violent and video from the scene showed people armed with rods and sticks smashing equipment and vandalising cars, causing up to $7.1 million in damage according to an estimate by the company.

The All India Central Council of Trade Unions (AICTTU) said the incident was a result of workers being subjected to "extremely exploitative sweatshop-like working conditions in gross violation of labour laws". The workers earned far less than the promised ₹22,000 monthly salary and were not paid wages for November, according to AICTTU, which said government officials and the management at Wistron had not responded to their complaints. "These workers are from very poor families and not getting their wages was pushing them to the brink," Clifton D Rosario, national secretary at AICTTU, said.

Six states have this year relaxed or suspended labour laws to help the industry recover from the coronavirus pandemic

Apple said on Monday it was sending staff and auditors to the site and was cooperating with police. Wistron said in a regulatory filing in Taiwan it "always abides by the law, and fully supports and is cooperating with relevant authorities". A labour department official in the state said the issue was being resolved and workers would receive their dues. The factory would reopen soon, he added.

Labour rights experts warned that worker unrest in the manufacturing hubs could rise as new laws, which were passed in September, deny labourers the right to strike or receive social benefits if working for smaller firms. "These flashpoints will continue," said PK Anand, a visiting researcher at the Delhi-based Institute of Chinese Studies, who works on labour issues in China and India. "It is the only way for workers to be heard in the absence of legal safeguards and proper grievance redress mechanisms," Anand told the Thomson Reuters Foundation over phone.

Further violence feared

Wistron has been making iPhones in India for nearly four years and its operation has been seen as a success story for the Centre which is looking to boost manufacturing under its Make in India slogan. Several major tech brands, including South Korea's Samsung Electronics and China's Xiaomi, have outsourced production to or set up factories in India in recent years.

Wistron's Narasapura factory employs about 1,300 permanent workers and at least 8,000 contract workers hired via various contractors.

Police said on Monday they had arrested 149 people over the violence, and were looking to find and arrest more perpetrators. Rosario of the AICTTU said many of the other workers were "petrified" and had switched off their phones to avoid contact.

While the Centre has said the new labour legislation would protect workers, six states have this year relaxed or suspended labour laws to help the industry recover from the coronavirus pandemic. The changes mean workers could face longer days and lower pay, and risk fueling more protests, according to researchers. —REUTERS
