Russia spars with EU and US at meeting on EU-UN cooperation

RUSSIA SPARRED WITH the European Union and the US at a UN meeting Thursday that highlighted the strained relations between Moscow, Brussels and Washington.

Estonia, which holds the Security Council presidency this month, organised the meeting to focus on cooperation between the United Nations and the 27-nation European Union, inviting its foreign policy chief Josep Borrell to speak about the relationship and challenges to peace and security.

The council meeting came just ahead of this weekend's summit of the Group of Seven major industrialised nations which Russia was ousted from in 2014 — and next week's first meeting between US President Joe Biden and Russia's President Vladimir Putin, which comes as relations between Washington and Moscow have sunk to a post-Cold War low.

Borrell told the council in a virtual address that the Covid-19 pandemic "has underscored the fragility of our hyper-globalised and interdependent world." "The demand for multilateral solutions is much greater than the supply," he said, pointing to "more divisions, more free-riding and more distrust than the world can afford."

"We need global cooperation based on agreed rules because the alternative is the law of the jungle, where problems don't get solved," he said.
