In role reversal, Russia may source weapons from N Korea

A FRIEND IN NEED. Kim pledges continued support to Putin's Ukraine war

Associated Press
Seoul

North Korea's Kim Jong Un vowed "full and unconditional support" for Russia's Vladimir Putin on Wednesday as the two leaders isolated by the West held a summit that the US warned could lead to a deal to supply ammunition for Moscow's war in Ukraine.

The meeting, which lasted over four hours at Russia's spaceport in the Far East, underscores how the two countries' interests are aligning: Putin is believed to be seeking one of the few things impoverished North Korea has in abundance: stockpiles of aging ammunition and rockets for Soviet-era weapons. Such a request would mark a role reversal from the 1950-

UNITED IN ISOLATION. Russian President Vladimir Putin and North Korea's leader Kim Jong Un at a launch pad during their meeting at the Vostochny cosmodrome in Russia.

53 Korean War, when Moscow gave weapons to support Pyongyang's invasion of South Korea, and in the decades of Soviet sponsorship of the North that followed.

The decision to meet at the Vostochny Cosmodrome, Russia's most important launch centre on its own soil, suggests Kim is seeking Russian help in developing military reconnaissance satellites.

WARTIME SUPPORT

In opening remarks, Putin spoke of the Soviet Union's wartime support for North Korea and said the talks would cover economic cooperation, humanitarian issues and the "situation in the region."

Kim, in turn, pledged continued support for Moscow, making an apparent reference to the war in Ukraine.

"Russia is currently engaged in a just fight against hegemonic forces to defend its sovereign rights, security and interests," he said.

"The Democratic People's Republic of Korea has always expressed its full and unconditional support for all measures taken by the Russian government, and I take this opportunity to reaffirm that we will always stand with Russia on the anti-imperialist front and the front of independence," he said.

The US has accused North Korea of providing Russia with arms, including selling artillery shells to the Russian mercenary group Wagner. Russian and North Korean officials deny such claims.

Qantas illegally sacked workers during Covid, rules Australia court

Press Trust of India
Canberra

Qantas Airways lost its challenge to a court ruling on Wednesday that the Australian flag carrier had illegally fired 1,700 baggage handlers, cleaners and other ground staff at the height of pandemic travel disruptions.

Seven High Court judges unanimously rejected Qantas' appeal against a Federal Court full-bench decision. That court upheld a Federal Court judge's ruling that the sacking of Qantas staff at 10 Australian airports in 2020 was illegal.

The ruling is another major blow for the airline which Australia's consumer watchdog is suing for more than A$250 million for allegedly selling thousands of tickets mid-2022 for flights that already been cancelled.

X is a habitual non-compliant platform, government tells Karnataka High Court

Reuters
New Delhi

The Union government has told a court that Elon Musk's X is a "habitual non-compliant platform" and for years has not followed many orders to remove content, undermining the government's role, according to a legal filing reviewed by Reuters.

The remarks were contained in an August 24 non-public filing by the IT Ministry to the Karnataka High Court, which is set to hear a challenge brought by the social media platform over a government fine in coming days.

Neither X nor the IT ministry responded to Reuters' request for comment.

Formerly known as Twitter, X has an ongoing legal tussle with Prime Minister Narendra Modi's administration over what New Delhi alleges is non-compliance with content removal orders. In June, Karnataka's High Court fined the platform ₹50 lakh and said it had not complied with many blocking orders without any plausible explanation. Twitter challenged that ruling to a higher bench in the court and argued New Delhi could be emboldened to block more content and broaden the scope of censorship. In its 28-page filing, the IT Ministry said X's challenge should be thrown out, arguing the company had in the past also unblocked some accounts - which government ordered to be blocked - without its knowledge. By doing so, X undermined "the role of the government in democratic setup", the filing added.

Drug-makers lukewarm to developing vaccines for new Covid-19 variants

PT Jyothi Datta
Mumbai

Vaccine-makers in the country seem to be tepid in their response to circulating SARS-CoV-2 variants, even as other parts of the world authorise variant-specific vaccines or vaccinate their elderly.

This week, the United States Food and Drug Administration authorised the emergency use of updated mRNA Covid vaccines from Moderna and Pfizer, to protect against an Omicron-variant reported to be dominant in the region. And the United Kingdom has started rolling out boosters for its elderly. Indian vaccine-makers told businessline that they were tracking the coronavirus-linked developments in other parts of the world, but details shared by them were limited.

VACCINE ADAPTATION

"Bharat Biotech (BB) is actively developing Covid vaccines against newer variants. The company is closely tracking variants of concern to determine their impact and potential prophylactic mitigations," a company spokesperson said.

Another vaccine-industry representative added no vaccines were being made by SII, since there was no demand. However, the representative said the vaccine-maker could step-up production, if there was a spike in cases and boosters/precautionary doses were required.

"It's like chasing variants," says Dr Raman Gangakhedkar, former head of epidemiology and communicable diseases at ICMR, on tweaking vaccines to keep pace with a virus that will mutate to survive. Since vaccines do not stop the infection, he called instead for surveillance on Covid-linked mortality to understand if the circulating strain was severe.

Public health expert and epidemiologist Chandrakant Lahariya also did not advocate another dose.
