IndianOil gets new Finance Director

Sandeep Kumar Gupta has taken over as Director (Finance) on the Board of Indian Oil Corporation (IndianOil), IOCL said.

Earlier, he occupied the roles of Executive Director (Corporate Finance) at IndianOil's corporate office and was also functioning as the CFO and chief risk officer in-charge of Corporate Accounts, Treasury, Investment Appraisal and Risk Management, said the firm in its release.

A commerce graduate and Chartered Accountant by qualification, Gupta has over 31 years of work experience in IndianOil, besides handling a diverse gamut of financial and accounting functions at IndianOil's refinery units in north, west and north-east India for over two decades, stated the release.

Gupta's tenure in various capacities during the last decade witnessed major events demanding his contribution, viz., two volatile global oil price cycles, depressed refinery margins, reviews of pricing mechanism, deregulation of petrol/diesel, transition to IndAS, unprecedented ECBs, maiden buy-back of shares, etc, it added.

Easing price war not helping Uber

◆ Ride-hailing firm loses $5 bn, shares hit
◆ Costs rose 147% in the quarter, revenue growth too slowed

| Agency |
Chennai, Aug 9:

Uber Technologies Inc has reported a record $5.2 billion loss and a revenue that fell short due to a slowdown of its ride-hailing business. The firm's shares dipped six per cent as a consequence.

The company said a price war in the United States was easing and that an important measure of profitability topped its target, but slowing revenue growth raised questions about Uber's ability to expand and fend off competition, said a Reuters report.

Uber's second-quarter net loss, widening from a loss of $878 million a year earlier, included $3.9 billion of stock-based compensation expenses related to its IPO earlier this year and nearly $300 million in 'driver appreciation' related to the stock sale, it said.

Uber reported that revenue growth slowed to 14 per cent to $3.2 billion and fell short of the average analyst estimate of $3.36 billion. The company's core business, ride-hailing, grew revenue only two per cent to

Uber's second-quarter net loss, widening from a loss of $878 million a year earlier, included $3.9 billion of stock-based compensation expenses related to its IPO earlier this year

$2.3 billion, while food delivery Uber Eats grew 72 per cent to $595 million.

According to the report, analysts on average were expecting $15.80 billion. But gross bookings, a measure of total value of car rides, scooter and bicycle trips, food deliveries and other services before payments to drivers, restaurants and other expenses, rose 31 per cent from a year earlier to $15.76 billion.

However, Uber is keeping less money per car ride, stated the report. The amount passengers spent on trips

EXPECTATION VS REALITY

* Uber's adjusted loss before items including interest, tax, and stock-based compensation more than doubled to $656 million. But it was better than it had expected, Uber said.

* Gross bookings for the year would be $65 billion to $67 billion, it said, in line with Wall Street's target of $65.9 billion.

* Its monthly active users have risen, touching 99 million globally. This was an increase from 93 million at the end of the first quarter and 76 million a year earlier.

rose 20 per cent while the amount Uber kept after paying its drivers increased just four per cent, it said.

On the other hand, Uber's costs rose 147 per cent to $8.65 billion in the quarter. The firm had also increased its spending on research and development sharply.

Chief Executive Officer Dara Khosrowshahi said the competitive environment was starting to rationalise and had been 'progressively improving' since the first quarter. 'This year would be the peak for investment and losses would lessen in 2020 and 2021,' he said.

'While we will continue to invest aggressively in growth, we also want it to be healthy growth, and this quarter we made good progress in that direction,' CFO, Nelson Chai said in a statement.

Affordable housing to remain dominant segment in realty

| NT Bureau |
Chennai, Aug 9:

Indian residential real estate is expected to surge and almost double from the current stock of 1.5 million units in top cities by end of next decade, said a report.

Affordable housing will remain the dominant segment in the coming years with a total of one crore PMAY (U) units to be delivered by 2020, said a report by Credai and CBRE.

It was released in Tel Aviv recently during Credai's 19th Annual International Convention, NATCON 2019.

Increasing millennial and generation Z population is expected to account for 77 per cent of the overall working population in India by the same year, the report said.

According to the report, the number of households is expected to surge with close to 386 million households and almost 40 per cent of Indians being urban residents by 2030.

Demand will remain concentrated in the affordable segment and will gradually shift towards the mid-end segments, it added.

The scale of development, the report said, is likely to change as developers are expected to venture into integrated townships, theme-based townships, developments linked to economic activity and even self-sustaining mini townships/cities, Moneycontrol reported the report as saying.

As per the report, India is projected to have a $9 trillion economic opportunity by 2030, wherein the per capita income could touch $5,625 for a population of about 1.5 billion and required annual spending on infrastructure will touch seven to eight per cent of the GDP.

'India continues to remain a high-priority market for its long term growth potential as is evident from the increased investment flows in the last few years. Government's $5 trillion mission and vision of a 'New India' imply that top industries contributing to our economy like real estate need to usher in transformative measures which can help shape these goals,' said president, CREDAI, Satish Magar.

Lanxess sales reduced

| NT Bureau |
Chennai, Aug 9:

Specialty chemicals company Lanxess has announced that its EBITDA pre-exceptionals declined only slightly by 1.4 per cent to EUR 286 million.

The firm said it is on track despite the weaker economy and geopolitical uncertainties and can look back on a stable second quarter.

Due in particular to the weak demand from the automotive industry, sales volumes declined in the engineering materials and specialty additives segments, said Lanxess in its release.

In addition, earnings were burdened by a weak chrome ore business, but this development was nearly offset by the company's stable portfolio and advantageous exchange-rate effects, especially from the strong US dollar, it added.
