Companionship that comes on four legs

Krishna is now looking old. He and his elder brother guard our private road. His brother looks far worse. Recently, my friend took a bet with me that Krishna was only five years old. To resolve the bet, we consulted the person who we knew would have the exact age of the two dogs. He, now retired from an IT services major, told us he had been feeding the dogs for over 15 years. I won. Krishna is, in fact, 14 years old and his elder brother, 16. Most dog experts know that Indian street dogs live longer than their pampered brethren who reside in carpeted homes.

One of the reasons touted for the rise of dog ownership in the US has been the rise of single-person households and aged living as empty nesters. This could also be happening in India

There is definitely a pet market boom in the making. I started noticing new shops opening in many parts of Mumbai catering to pet lovers. There is even a pet store chain that has opened in the airport.

The size of the Indian pet care market is pegged at around $800 million. Pedigree dominates the pet foods market, thanks to its early entry and pioneering work in getting distribution into supermarkets and high-end general trade outlets. It is estimated that there are 19 million pets in India, most of them dogs (Business Today September 22, 2019).

How does this compare with other countries?

There were just about 35 million dog-owning households in the US in 2002. This number has jumped to 60 million in 2017 (HBR, September-October 2018). That's almost a doubling of the households in just 15 years. There are around 130 million households in the US, so more than 40 per cent of them have a dog or two. The US pet supply industry is valued at an amazing $15 billion. Interestingly, online sales of pet products hit $8.2 billion in 2018.

So we still have a lot of catching up to do if we compare our numbers to that of the US. But the Indian number is seeing rapid change. For instance, the pet care industry is growing at a compounded annual growth rate of 15 per cent.

What is driving the rapid growth of dog or pet-owning households in India? And what does the future look like for this sector? Will Covid have an impact?

The first trigger is the need for companionship. One of the reasons touted for the rise of dog ownership in the US has been the rise of single-person households and aged living as empty nesters. This could also be happening in India. And we can expect an increased desire for pets and dogs post-Covid.

The second trigger is probably the rise in the income levels of the top quartile of the Indian consumer class. As their income levels rise, their kids tend to attend better private schools. And having a dog at home becomes almost a part of the curriculum.

The third trigger could be the rise of support services that are on offer for a dog owner. There are professional dog trainers. There is the dog walker. Ready available dog food. While Covid has been a big blow to this industry, I see it bouncing back.

The fourth trigger is social media and the endless number of pictures that a dog lover tends to post on Facebook and Instagram. The social media triggers to those who are on the wall, unsure if they should take the plunge.

Finally, the trigger could be the joy of having someone at home who loves you with no strings attached. As a dog lover who lives in a house of five told me: "My Caesar is the only person in my house who loves me with total devotion." I am sure research will prove that dog-owning households face the Covid-19 isolation a lot better than those who do not have a loving pet at home.

Come to think of it, the reason that is missing from the above lists is the real reason dogs (Krishna and Brother) were originally domesticated by man. As a hunting companion. A protection against a human enemy. A warning of an approaching enemy.

PVR Cinemas eyes the bigger picture

With Covid-19 driving business to zero, India's largest multiplex player has raised ~300 crore to tide over the crisis

PAVANILAL
Mumbai, 11 August

Disrupted by lockdowns, multiplex theatres have been hit hardest with no business whatsoever. The cinema trade, largely in malls and standalone facilities geared for housing hundreds of people, is anathema to social distancing, and there is no possible alternative as in the case of hotels, which offer staycations and take-out dining, to keep revenue trickling in.

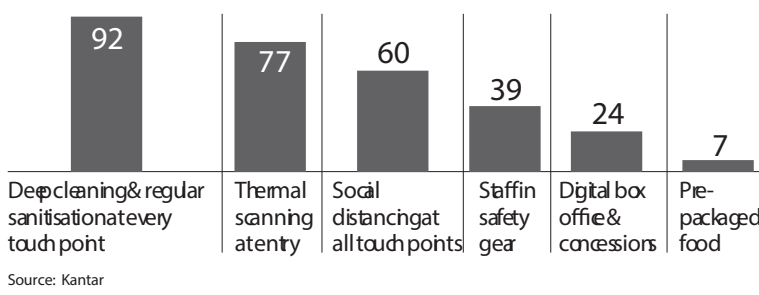

There is a sense that authorities may allow operators to start screening films post-September, around the time that big-budget films such as the Salman Khan-starrer Radhe, Sooryavanshi with Akshay Kumar are slated for release. But, with restrictions on seating.

"A seating occupancy of less than 50 per cent would make it unviable for the exhibition industry to open," says Ajay Bijli, founder and promoter of PVR Cinemas, which has close to 30 per cent market share of the organised screen business. PVR is the largest film exhibition company in India, and operates 845 screens at 176 properties in 71 cities (India and Sri Lanka), and sells around 100 million tickets a year. Other large players include Inox and Cinepolis.

Bijli points out that the seating capacity of 30 or 40 per cent, which has been bandied about in industry circles, would be too low a threshold. "Certain aspects of cheaper seating needs to be reconsidered. For instance, it would be unreasonable able to make a family of four living together to sit in over seven seats," he adds.

In a bid to cope with the current distress, PVR Cinemas issued a special rights offer that was oversubscribed and recently raised ~300 crore. The company, which had debt of around ~780 crore as of FY 2020 (on revenues of ~3452.23 crore) will now be able to tide over initial monthly losses of about ~40 crore for the next 12 months, says Ankur Periwala, senior analyst-media sector, Axis Capital.

"What we are witnessing now is a blip in the long-term structural growth story because of the under penetration. The structural propensity to consume is on the uptick," he says. India has some 9,500 cinema screens but only 35 per cent of those are in the multiplex format, as opposed to upwards of 75 per cent in developed markets. In the US, for instance, there are close to 40,000 big screens, he says, and most of them in the multiplex mode.

The pressure on the industry is weighing down on more than just PVR Cinemas. According to a Covid-19 report by KPMG on entertainment and media, the highest impact has been on events, films and TV, medium impact on radio and animation, and lower impact on print, online gaming and OTT (over the top) platforms.

According to a letter by the Multiplex Association of India to the central government, the industry directly hires close to 200,000 employees, and salaries form a large chunk of the operating expenses in addition to rent and electricity. A PVR spokesperson confirms that their rentals have been renegotiated. "Our development partners have extended deep discount on occupancy costs post re-opening until the end of the financial year."

To bring viewers back, PVR will do away with the physical box office for ticket sales for the short term. Tickets will be sold online. It is also going to set up standard hygiene processes for visitors and employees and recently tied up with Reckitt Benckiser to use antiseptic sanitiser brand Dettol when it opens, and even have points of sale for safety gear, and mandate frequent deep cleaning everywhere on its premises.

Will drive-in theatres replace the multiplex? "We are in the process of building one at the Jio Center in Bandra Kurla Complex in Mumbai," says Bijli. "Being a novelty, scaling up could have some challenges like the availability of infrastructure within the cities, violation of decibel level in residential areas. Having said that, drive-in theatres cannot replace multiplexes." According to consumer research by Kantar, the inclination to see films come to life on the big screen hasn't petered out. About 61 per cent of respondents expressed a desire to frequently visit cinemas post-lockdown with the intent being higher among males and consumers younger than 25 years of age.

But beyond the obvious surge in OTT film consumption through online platforms like Amazon Prime Video, Netflix and Hotstar, the lion's share of production houses and entirely distributed comes from selling films to multiplexes. This means that at least in the short to middle term, the entire industry is hinged on the opening of theatres soon.

The trend extends globally as well, which is why international releases such as the latest James Bond movie are expected to be launched in theatres only in November this year.

KPMG's report states that the out-of-home entertainment format will see risk aversion linger and until then, cash preservation, innovations in the delivery model and stronger analytics to pick the best content would be top priorities. However, don't discount the "pent up demand" among some sections of the population that could offer respite, it said. After all, "there is no substitute to watching James Bond speeding in an Aston Martin, dodging whizzing bullets, saving the damsels in distress, throwing the anti-hero off the cliff on a 100-foot screen with a 120,000 watt sound system bringing it to life," adds Bijli. Much like the title of the upcoming Bond film, the industry truly well understands that this is No Time to Die.

We are in the process of building a drive-in theatre at the Jio Center in Bandra Kurla Complex in Mumbai

'India will have strategic autonomy'

Narendra Modi's self-reliant India campaign. The embargo on imports is planned to be progressively implemented between 2020 and 2025. SP SHUKLA, chairman-Mahindra Defence and Mahindra Aerospace, and chair-Defence Committee, FICCI, tells Shally Seth Mohile why the announcement is a significant step forward. The move, he points out, will give a boost to local manufacturing, be a huge employment generator and check currency imbalances. For companies like Mahindra, it opens up avenues to participate in defence procurement at a much larger scale. Edited excerpts:

What gives you the confidence that the thrust for Make in India with regards to import or is for real this time around? It has fizzled out in the past.

The push for Make in India is real. The confidence comes from the keeping aside of ~52,000 crore this year for domestic capital purchases. It can't be used for imports. This shows that the government is serious about promoting and procuring India-made defence equipment.

What does it mean for the Mahindra Group, given the expansive capabilities it has?

Mahindra is the only company to have a presence across all the segments in defence.

As a result, we are well positioned to participate in the areas that the embargo lists specifically. We already have strong capabilities in wheeled armoured vehicles, which we are manufacturing and exporting. Similarly, for torpedo and other naval equipment, we are the existing manufacturer.

Even for the air wing segment, we have partnership with the OEM's that should enable us to compete in the private sector. In the area of electronic systems, radar, surveillance and homeland security segment, too, we have excellent capabilities to participate in the upcoming opportunities.

How do we see the company accelerating to participate in this opportunity?

The embargo comes into effect on December 31, 2021. They (defence ministries) are now also separating the budgets for domestic procurements and imports. This is a very significant step forward. Based on the allocation for the two companies, we can plan where they should focus in the coming months. The breakup will help us understand which items top the priority of the armed forces—whether they will need it in the immediate future or in a few years from now. India needs clarity on the order of priority of procurement while firming up investment plans. So the new announcement helps very much.

Which segments has the company identified for a big play?

Our areas of focus are armoured combat vehicles, mine protected vehicles, torpedo defence systems, ultra-light howitzers, radar systems, composite components, and such. In the strategic partnership model of defence procurement, our joint venture agreement—combat helicopter, fighter air craft etcetera. Mahindra Defence has established capabilities and collaborations across land and naval systems, aerospace and defence electronics.

You said the move goes beyond business. So could you elaborate?

Yes, what I mean is, it will create many jobs for India. This will also reduce the foreign exchange outflow. So much for foreign exchange outflow happens on account of defence—we are one of the largest importers of defence equipment. The outflow creates current account imbalance by strengthening the dollar and weakening the rupee. A local defence substitution will ease the pressure on Indian currency.

Most importantly, with this move, the country will have strategic autonomy. That means, when the need arises, all suppliers within the country will step up and rise to the occasion to ensure the requirements are met. That is the strategic and supply chain flexibility the country must have.

Lastly, to be on the high table in the globalised world, a nation needs to be strong and self-sufficient in the field of defence.

শিলিগুড়ি, ১১ আগস্ট

দেশের জাতীয় পতাকা অবমাননা করে বিক্রি করা যাবে না তেরঙ্গা মাস্ক। এই দাবিতেই মঙ্গলবার শিলিগুড়ির বিভিন্ন বাজার ঘুরলেন শহরের এক স্বেচ্ছাসেবী সংগঠনের সদস্যরা।

প্রসঙ্গত, গোকলা-সাদা-সবুজ রঙ, তার মাঝে অশোকচক্র, বাজার ঘুরলেই এই আদলে মিলছে মুখের মাস্ক। তবে এই মাস্কের যৌথ অঙ্গিত রয়েছে শিলিগুড়ির বেশিকয়ে স্বেচ্ছাসেবী সংস্থার। তাদের বক্তব্য, এই মাস্ক বাজারে বিক্রি চললে না কারণ, মাস্ক ব্যবহারের পর তা সাধারণত ডাস্টবিনে ফেলে দেওয়া হয়।

শ্রদ্ধার সঙ্গে পালন করা হল শহিদ ক্ষুদিরাম বসুর প্রায়গ দিবস। এই দিনটিকে বাম ছাত্র-যুবরা আত্মবিলিাদ দিবস হিসেবে পালন করে থাকে। মঙ্গলবার ক্ষুদিরাম বসুর ১১৩তম আত্মবিলিাদ দিবসে রক্তদান শিবির, কমিউনিটি কিচেন, আলোচনাসভার আয়োজন করা হয়েছিল।
