A SEQUENTIAL IMPROVEMENT IN EARNINGS EXPECTED

IT companies may see modest rebound in Q1

PADMINI DHRUVARAJ Bengaluru, July 3

IT FIRMS ARE poised for a modest rebound in earnings during the April-June quarter, on the back of a large deal ramp-up and moderation in discretionary spending cuts. The period is also seen as a seasonally stronger quarter.

According to Motilal Oswal, the industry is set to experience "sequential improvement in a seasonally strong quarter" despite a challenging backdrop marked by significant cuts in discretionary spending in previous quarters. This period could signal the end of what has been described as the "brutal winter of discretionary spend cuts", the brokerage said in its preview report.

Industry growth projections

For FY25, major players like HCLTech and Tata Consultancy Services (TCS) are expected to see revenue growth in the range of 5-7% in constant currency terms, contingent on the recovery in the flow business and renewed discretionary spending by clients. Mid-tier companies, especially those with strong pre-GenAI spending in data engineering, are also expected to perform well.

According to Motilal Oswal, while verticals such as banking financials and communications have faced pressures, recent deal wins should accelerate growth, particularly benefiting companies like Infosys. The firm forecasts a revenue growth of -0.5% to +2.0% strength and deal ramp-ups."We forecast moderate growth rate improvement...led by seasonal strength, large deal ramp-up and reducing intensity of cuts in discretionary programs," they said in a report.

Margin outlook, deal wins

Margins are expected to remain largely stable. The balancing act of deferring wage hikes against visa costs and the recovery of lost volumes will likely result in a slightly negative bias for Q1 FY25, cautioned analysts. ICICI Securities predicts an average margin expansion of 19 basis points sequentially for the sector.

> based telecom mega have been missing," the brokerage firm said in a report.

Impact of GenAI

Nomura points out that GenAI adoption is gaining momentum and is set to improve demand for cloud services and data standardisation. This technological advancement is expected to be a significant aid for the sector moving forward, especially in enhancing service delivery and operational efficiencies.

"GenAI adoption is likely to gain steam in the next 12-18 months and could improve demand for cloud services and data standardisation," the brokerage said in a report.

GenAI's role extends beyond mere technology adoption; it influences strategic decision-making across the IT sector. Companies are increasingly integrating AI into their service offerings, focusing on both cost efficiency and innovative solutions. This shift is expected to create new revenue streams and reshape client relationships, especially in domains heavily reliant on data insights and automation.

Infosys and TCS are set to lead the pack among large-cap companies. Motilal Oswal predicts robust quarter-on-quarter growth for Infosys, expecting a 2.0% increase in constant currency terms, while TCS is forecasted to see a 1.6% growth.

In contrast, HCLTech is expected to face challenges, with a projected decline of 2% in revenue growth, largely due to productivity gain sharing in a significant deal. "HCLT's 2% decline is already baked in, as guided last quarter," ICICI Securities said.

Mid-tier IT companies like Persistent and Coforge are expected to show strong performances, driven by niche capabilities and strategic deal ramp-ups. Persistent is anticipated to lead with a 5% quoarter-on-quarter revenue growth, particularly strong in the healthcare vertical.

Coforge, while expected to have a slower quarter at around 1.5% growth, remains a strong player due to its diversified portfolio.

EDTECH PLATFORM PHYSICS Wallah (PW) is seeing a sharp uptick in the number of female students enrolling for its upskilling courses. As per PW, there has been a jump of 162.5% to 21,000 female students in 2023-24, from 8,000 in 2022-23, in the upskilling courses. The total enrolments in these two years stood at about 0.1 million.

PW Skills offers nearly two dozen new-age courses such as data analytics, data science, UI/UX design, DevOps and cloud computing, BFSI (banking, financial services & insurance), and programming languages (such as C++, Java, Python), full-stack development, etc. Almost all these courses have seen a sharp jump in female student enrolments.

For instance, in the data analytics course, the overall female student enrolments stood at 48% in 2023-24 followed by 41% in DevOps and cloud computing, 36% in BFSI. The data shows that women aged 23-28 are mostly opting for these courses. PW Skills said that a majority of female students enrolling for upskilling courses belong to tier-2 and 3 cities in Maharashtra, Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Bihar and Karnataka.

Ashish Sharma, chief business officer at PW Skills, said the democratisation of skill development is empowering more women to enhance their career prospects."There are significant gaps in the skilling market from the employability point of view. These gaps include hard and
