next year New Delhi: The Union environment ministry will next year have a unified portal for clearances--wildlife, forest, and coastal regulation zone--for infrastructural projects to ensure ease of doing business, officials aware of the matter said. Three independent panels of the ministry currently consider these clearances separately. Union environment secretary RP Gupta said a form for all clearances will be available and applicants need to submit uniform information based on which the panels will assess the environmental impact of projects. "Our approvals should not be a hindrance to any infrastructure or development project. It should be approved quickly or disapproved at the earliest. This is part of the reforms we are bringing in for ease of doing business. The portal will be up by mid next year and will be of great benefit to us and to project proponents." Gupta said a policy was being drafted to ensure monitoring of projects, which have been granted clearances. The ministry last month issued guidelines to speed up environmental
