Trump, Biden woo Hindus in US

Hinduism is the 4th largest faith in the US, representing 1% of the population

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA Washington, August 19

IN A SIGN of the growing political prominence of Hindus in America, the Trump and Biden campaigns are wooing this small religious minority community like never before.

Hinduism is the fourth largest faith in the US, representing approximately one per cent of the US population in 2016.

While the Trump campaign promises that re-electing President Donald Trump will "reduce obstacles to religious freedoms" for Hindus in America, the rival Biden campaign on Tuesday said former vice president Joe Biden has made "great progress to increase access to the Hindu faith community priority."

For the first time in an American presidential election, the Trump Campaign on August 14 announced the formation of the "Hindu Voices for Trump."

Two days later, prominent Hindu leader Neelima Gonsul participated in an interfaith service to kick off the Democratic National Convention, which the Biden campaign said was another sign of the growing political prominence of Hindus in America.

The details of the new coalition of the Trump Camaign to woo the Hindu-American community in the US is expected to be announced during the Republican National Convention next week.

"Hindus for Trump honour contributions by millions of Americans of Hindu faith," said the campaign which has taken a lead ahead of the Biden campaign.

"The inclusive economy, commitment to building up US-Indian relations, and fierce support for religious liberties for all is unmatched. Re-electing President Trump will reduce obstacles to religious freedoms for Hindus in America," asserted the Trump campaign.

Biden, who on Tuesday was officially nominated as the Democratic presidential nominee, "has made outreach to the Hindu faith community a priority," South Asians for Biden, a political platform, said.

Biden has shown key insight into the issues affecting the Hindu community, it said. Over the weekend, the Biden campaign released the platform for Indian-Americans, which addresses several key concerns of the Hindu community.

Notably, Biden proposes stiffening penalties for hate crimes committed in houses of worship, such as temples, and increasing the security grants available to such houses of worship.

He has also pledged to make the prosecution of hate crimes a priority for his Department of Justice, the campaign said.

Australia touts vaccine deal as virus flare-up subsides

REUTERS Sydney/Melbourne, August 19

AFRESH OUTBREAK of infections in Australia's coronavirus hot zone of Victoria eased further on Wednesday, while the country agreed to secure a potential COVID-19 vaccine that it plans to roll out cost-free to citizens.

Australia has signed a deal with British drug-maker AstraZeneca to produce and distribute enough doses of a potential coronavirus vaccine for its population of 25 million, Prime Minister Scott Morrison said on Tuesday.

Should he be in a position for the trials to be successful, we would hope that this would be made available early next year. It can't be done sooner than that, great, Morrison said on Wednesday.

All Australians will be offered doses, but a medical panel will determine the priority list of vaccine recipients.

Former US diplomats slam Trump for dividing country

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA New York, August 19

AMERICA'S TWO FORMER top diplomats have slammed President Donald Trump for dividing the country, with one of them calling his foreign policy record a "blooper reel" while asserting that the US deserves a president who is not a laughing stock around the world.

John Kerry, the former secretary of state, said on Tuesday at the virtual Democratic National Convention that Trump inherited a growing economy and a peaceful world.

"Like everything else inherited, he bankrupted it. When this president goes overseas, it isn't a goodwill mission, it's a blooper reel. He breaks up with our allies and writes love letters to dictators," Kerry said, making a reference to Trump writing to North Korean leader Kim Jong-un.

"After he does that, a president who is looked up to, not laughed at," he said.

Emphasising that Democratic nominee Kamala Harris Biden knows that even the United States of America needs friends on this planet, Kerry strongly criticised Trump for isolating the US on the world stage.

Before Donald Trump, we used to talk about American exceptionalism. The only thing exceptional about the incoherent Trump foreign policy is that it has made our nation more isolated than ever before.

Joe Biden knows we aren't exceptional because we built a country that we're very exceptional because we do exceptional things."

He will stand up to our adversaries with strength and experience. They will know when someone is bluffing. They will know when someone is bluffing. They will know when someone is bluffing. They will know when someone is bluffing.

In a scathing attack on Trump, former secretary of state Colin Powell said America today is a divided country and "we have a president doing nothing in his power to make it the way we keep it that way."

"Joe Biden will be a president we will all be proud to salute. With Joe Biden in the White House, you will never doubt that he will stand with our friends and stand up our adversaries — never other way around."

"How will our diplomats and our intelligence community, not the flattery of dictators and despots. It will make this job to know when someone is bluffing. They will know when someone is bluffing. They will know when someone is bluffing. They will know when someone is bluffing."

Powell said Biden will restore America's leadership in the world and restore the alliance in which Trump did the right thing because of the dangers that threaten the nation.

Ex-first woman Hillary returns to DNC championing women in politics

ASSOCIATED PRESS Chicago, August 19

AFTER MORE THAN four decades in public life, Hillary Clinton will return to the Democratic National Convention to cement her legacy as a champion of women in politics.

Clinton, who lost the presidency to Donald Trump in 2016 despite winning the popular vote by a narrow margin, is a complicated figure in American political culture.

She's despised by many Republicans and viewed warily by some progressives who are increasingly assertive in shaping the modern Democratic Party.

But four years after she made history as the first woman nominated for president by a major party, Clinton will not be on the other end of the legacy: the millions of women inspired by her in 2016 who marched, ran for office and have become a powerful force in taking on President Donald Trump. Her presence Wednesday night comes as Sen. Kamala Harris becomes the first Black woman to accept a spot on an inaugural presidential ticket and Richard Blumenthal, the first openly gay man, is set to be sworn in as governor of Connecticut.

That's expected to send a message about staying in the fight to women across the country for whom 2016 was a turning point, said Cecile Richards, chief of Planned Parenthood, which formed in 2019 to train and mobilise female activists. "The fact that she hasn't given up, I think, has encouraged a lot of women to not give up," said Richards, the former president of Planned Parenthood.

"I think there's an important role she has to play in saying, 'Oh, she's getting up every morning and doing this work and we can, too.' I think it's an important message that you just got to take yourself off and keep going." After Trump's selection, mil-

Clinton turned out for women's marches and women ran for office in record numbers, helping Democrats take control of the US House in 2018.

A record number of women, including Harris, sought this year's Democratic presidential nomination.

And the number of women running for the House and the US Senate set a record again this year, as did the number of women of colour running, according to the Center for American Women and Politics at Rutgers University. "Since 2016 we've seen these waves of women stepping up" at all levels of government, said Adrienne Shoppshire, president of BlackPact, a national organisation that mobilises Black voters.

"You have this presidential nomination, when things are really different," Shoppshire said. Clinton, a "trailblazer" who made a way for other women while enduring attacks dating from her time as first lady in the 1990s to her 2016 losses, affects a campaign in which Trump did the right thing because of the dangers that threaten the nation.

A WeChat ban could hurt many in America, not just in China

ASSOCIATED PRESS Washington, August 19

FOR MILLIONS OF PEOPLE in the US who use the Chinese app WeChat, it's a lifeline to friends, family, customers and business contacts.

That lifeline is now under attack by an executive order from President Donald Trump that could ban the app in the US as early as mid-September, potentially severing vital relationships.

"It's the first thing I check in the morning," Sha Zhu, a Chinese-American in Washington, says of WeChat. "It's how she talks to her mother and old friends from China, which she left in 2008, and how she communicates with her colleagues as a public relations manager for a Chinese-owned consulting company. It's where she stores Chinese currency in her virtual wallet."

Most important, it's where she keeps videos and audio clips of her father, who died four years ago.

In China, WeChat, or Weixin as it's known, is critical infrastructure — texting, social media, cab-hailing, payments and more, all wrapped into one app.

Many Chinese businesses don't even take credit cards anymore, just WeChat. It has over a billion users, over Tencent says, mostly in China. Mobile app firms have varying estimates for US downloads — in the range of 19 to 26 million.

For people in the US, WeChat has less functionality than it does in China. But it connects immigrants and students from China to their past and to each other. Chinese restaurants in the US use it to take orders. Business people in the US use it to take orders. Business people in the US use it to take orders.

Trump postpones trade talk with China; no rescheduling on cards

NO NEW HIGH-LEVEL trade talks have been scheduled between the United States and China but the two sides remain in touch about implementing a Phase 1 deal, White House Chief of Staff Mark Meadows told reporters aboard Air Force One on Tuesday.

US President Donald Trump earlier told reporters during a visit to Yuma, Arizona, that he had postponed an August 13 review of the trade agreement signed with China in January, given his frustration over Beijing's handling of the coronavirus pandemic.

"I postponed talks with China. You know why? I don't want to deal with the new," Trump said during a briefing on construction of a border wall with Mexico. "What China did to the world was not even thinkable. They could have stopped (the virus)!"

Meadows said the review, mandated as part of the trade agreement with China, had not been rescheduled, but US Trade Representative Robert Lighthizer ran a regular contact with his counterpart in China about fulfilling its commitments. There are no rescheduled talks — at this point," Meadows told reporters. Ambassador Lighthizer continues to have China's imports of US farm and manufactured goods, energy and services are well behind the pace needed to meet a first-year target increase of $77 billion over 2017 purchases. On Friday, the US Department of Agriculture reported the sale of 126,000 tons of soybeans to China, marking the eighth consecutive week-day with the largest sale to Chinese buyers. Crude oil sales have also increased.

It's an example of how the ruling Communist Party, once wary of private entrepreneurs, is now supporting technology companies that have come under attack from the Trump administration, including SenseTime, Future Technology Co, Tencent Holdings Ltd and ByteDance Ltd, parent of TikTok. The company has pledged to spend $1.4 trillion to develop its own tech industry and overtake the US in key sectors.

In the case of artificial recognition, concerns about privacy are taking a backseat while the country militantly traces and tracks contacts.

Chinese authorities have succeeded by using laws and technologies that govern the US. When a cluster of Covid-19 patients flared up in northeastern China, the government installed sensors to guard the city's subway and public transit. The sensors adopted by Beijing allow
