Banks cling to cash as transfer boom shrinks system liquidity

SUBHADIP SIRCAR
Mumbai, May 30

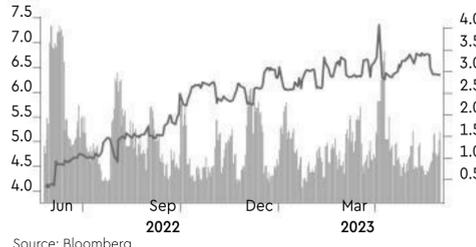

BANKS WERE AWASH with liquidity during the pandemic — now, they're seeking to hang on to as much of it as they can. Lenders are finding they need increased access to funds to cater for wider usage of around-the-clock real-time cash transfers. At the same time, tighter monetary policy has sucked money out of the financial system.

Two payment modes in particular have led the surge in online transfers. One is the Reserve Bank of India's Real-Time Gross Settlement (RTGS) that became 24 hours a day in December 2020 and allows customers to instantly transfer cash from one bank account to another. The other is the National Electronic Funds Transfer (NEFT), which has a two-hour settlement.

"The concept of excess liquidity is changing as with a such large deposit base of banks, a 500-billion rupee surplus is tantamount to deficit liquidity," said B Prasanna, group head for global market sales, trading and research at ICICI Bank. "Banks are keeping a liquidity cushion as because of RTGS, NEFT there can be unanticipated demand for cash. This also caused skewness of liquidity among banks."

The RBI should aim to keep surplus liquidity of ₹1-1.5 trillion available if it wants to ensure there are enough funds in the financial system, Prasanna said. India's banks currently have to maintain a cash-reserve ratio at the RBI of 4.5% of their net demand and time liabilities — that is funds available on demand or at a certain maturity date, calculated on a fortnightly basis. They also have to keep a minimum daily level. Any excess cash on top of that is parked in the central bank's Standing Deposit Facility at the end of the day.

Cash crunch

Signs of a sustained cash crunch became evident from the middle of April, when a key overnight rate held well above the RBI's benchmark repurchase rate and even occasionally surpassed the emergency lending rate of 6.75%.

That suggested banks were holding back to lending to one another in order to keep their hands on cash. They instead allowed their funds to be automatically swept into the central bank's deposit facility at a lower rate at midnight, with more than ₹1 trillion parked in the SDF window each day during that period.

Brent plunges 4% on supply worries

STEPHANIE KELLY
New York, May 30

OIL PRICES FELL by about 4% on Tuesday on concerns about whether the US Congress will pass the debt ceiling pact and as mixed messages from major producers clouded the supply outlook ahead of the OPEC+ meeting this weekend.

Brent crude futures fell $3.09, or 4%, to $73.98 a barrel by 11:03 am EDT (1503 GMT). US West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude was down $2.84, or 3.9%, from Friday's close to $69.83 a barrel. There was no settlement on Monday because of a US public holiday.

Some hard-right Republican lawmakers said they might oppose a deal to raise the debt ceiling. President Joe Biden and Republican House of Representatives Speaker Kevin McCarthy remained optimistic the deal would pass.

Biden and McCarthy forged an agreement over the weekend and it must pass a divided US Congress before June 5, the day the Treasury Department says the country will not be able to meet its financial obligations, which could disrupt financial markets.

"The big elephant in the room is the continued drama over the debt ceiling," said Phil Flynn, an analyst at Price Futures Group. "Until we get the votes, the market is going to be on edge."

RBI pledge

The RBI sought to address the situation, with governor Shaktikanta Das saying last week policymakers will take steps to ensure adequate liquidity in the banking system, without specifying any target level.

A number of factors have recently emerged that have brought overnight rates down from their peak, at least temporarily.

The RBI paid out dividends to the government, about ₹2.2 trillion of bonds matured between May 17 and 20, and speculation has grown that the withdrawal of the nation's highest value note will leave banks with surplus cash. The interbank call rate was at 6% on Tuesday.

Still the underlying factors suggest the cash crunch is far from over. "The total liquidity that the system is going to need at any point of time has increased," said Aditya Bagree, head of trading for India and South Asia at Citigroup. "If I know a client can dial out money anytime, I need to have that excess liquidity with me, and every bank similarly will keep that excess liquidity. So, the neutral liquidity in the system is going to be higher than earlier." —BLOOMBERG

Gold claws back as dollar, yield weaken

DEEP KAUSHIK VAKIL
May 30

GOLD BOUNCED BACK from early losses on Tuesday, as the dollar pulled back and Treasury yields slid on wider market optimism about the US debt ceiling deal.

Spot gold rose 0.9% to $1,960.55 per ounce by 11:51 am EDT (1551 GMT), after hitting its lowest since March 17 earlier. US gold futures gained 0.8% at $1,959.80.

The dollar eased 0.1% from 10-week highs, making bullion cheaper for holders of other currencies, while benchmark 10-year Treasury yields hit a one-week low.

Along with these positive elements, "you could also see some fund managers squaring up positions at the end of the month, taking profits on their short positions and buying back," said Jim Wyckoff, senior analyst at Kitco Metals.

"In the near term, gold prices are going to trade sideways to lower until we see a fresh catalyst."

Returning from a long US weekend, traders were also assessing Friday's strong US economic data that bolstered the case for further monetary policy tightening to curb inflation.

While earlier worries on the US debt deal had supported prices, repricing of the Federal Reserve's rate hike path was keeping gold pressured, Saxo Bank's head of commodity strategy Ole Hansen said.
