Karthik honing skills in Mumbai to stay T20 fit

'Experience & not age counts in shortest format'

New Delhi, Feb 8: Dinesh Karthik is currently putting in the hard yards in Mumbai under the guidance of friend and mentor Abhishek Nayar, focussed on sharpening his finishing skills in the T20 format.

Not because the IPL auctions are around the corner. His plan is simple.

The 36-year-old, who last played for India in the 2019 ODI World Cup semi-final, is committed to playing the game for "another 3-4 years" and is determined to make a national comeback in the shortest format.

The motivation to play for India remains as strong as ever, says

Karthik who would also want his six-month old twin boys to see him playing at the highest level a couple of years down the line.

"T20s will be the starting point for me. Obviously with a tournament like the IPL, you play against the best in the world and you get an opportunity to showcase your skills.

As a middle-order batter I can try and create an impact," Karthik told PTI.

Before being dropped from the shorter formats in the aftermath of an ill-fated World Cup campaign, Karthik had done reasonably well as a finisher in T20s with the highlight being his last over heroics in the 2018 Nidahas Trophy final.

With India continuing to try out players for the middle-order in limited overs cricket, Karthik senses an opportunity.

Citing the examples of Shikhar Dhawan, who is 36, and Pakistan's Shoaib Malik and the recently-retired Mohammad Hafeez, who both have touched 40, Karthik said age is not a criteria for selection anymore.

It is all about form, fitness and experience.

"Age is definitely not the thing that a lot of normal people look at it (for India comeback). Shikhar Dhawan was the highest run getter (in ODIs in South Africa) and we are the same age." He also believes that in the shortest format one tends to get better with age.

"People tend to figure out, understand their body, the amount of cricket they can play and all of those reasons, like a big example was the way you know Shoaib Malik and Hafeez were able to contribute to Pakistan in the T20 World Cup," he added.

Strict COVID protocols helped smooth conduct of ATP Open

Pune, Feb 8:

A strict bio-bubble for the players, two separate dedicated hotels for officials and linesmen, 600 tests over 10 days and a drastically reduced workforce, were key factors in successful hosting of Tata Open Maharashtra, the organisers said on Monday.

Not a single main draw player got infection and no match was cancelled in the ATP 250 event, country's biggest tennis tournament.

The organisers say given the massive withdrawals witnessed at the India Open badminton tournament and the way Indian women football team was forced out of the Asian Cup, they certainly felt the pressure.

"These incidents happened and we were under pressure to deliver. But we were determined to pull it off. Now we can boast about an incident-free and successful event for the world to see and prove critics, who demean India most of the time, wrong," Sunder Iyer, Secretary of Maharashtra State Lawn Tennis Association (MSLTA), told PTI.

"The successful hosting of the event has given a positive message to the world about the reopening of the sports events. We don't need to cancel any sporting event, we just need to find a way to do it." "Not only this, the big message is that India can successfully host big tournaments," Iyer, who is also a AITA joint secretary, said.

Fans were also allowed in the stands during the last three days.

The MSLTA cut down the number of people working for the tournament to about 100-130, including housekeeping, security and logistics team as compared to usual 300 in the pre-COVID era.

The volunteers were also less in numbers - from 55-60 to 18-19.

"The players stayed in one hotel while we settled in another. A different hotel was dedicated to the balls men, the linesmen. Everybody working in the vicinity, near and around the players, who are in direct contact with each other, are all in the bio-bubble and were regularly tested. We carried out over 600 RAT tests and RTPCR during the last 10 days," informed Iyer.

The result was that one German player, who was in the qualifying event, and only 4-5 MSLTA officials contracted infection but no main draw player was affected.

The German player was replaced by an alternate and the officials were quarantined and isolated immediately.

Arjun makes main draw, Saketh out of Challenger

Bengaluru, Feb 8: India's Arjun Kadhe booked a slot in the main draw of the Bengaluru Open but Saketh Myneni exited the ATP Challenger tournament following a first round drubbing here on Monday.

Arjun, who entered the qualifying event as an alternate, knocked out Austrian Alexander Erlacher 6-3, 6-4.

In the main draw he is set to compete against Turkey's fifth seed Altug Celikbilek in the first round. Sasikumar Mukund, though, could not clear the Qualifiers, losing 3-6, 2-6 to Croatia's third seed Borna Gojo in the final round.

Saketh, who has been included in the Indian Davis Cup team as a reserve member for next month's tie against Denmark, lost the men's singles first round 1-6, 1-6 to Italy's Gian Marco Moroni.

Prajesh Gunneswaran and Ramkumar

Ramanathan will open their campaign on Tuesday against Mathias Bourgue and Max Purcell respectively.

Rishi Reddy and S.D. Prajwal Dev have been given wild card entries into the main draw.

Yuki Bhambri and Divij Sharan will compete in the doubles as a team. Kadhe and Adil Kalyanpur have also entered as wild card entrants.

Garbage Hacker..!

The scream came from the bedroom, "Lizard?" I asked casually from the sitting room and found no reply, "Cockroach?" I shouted again, and again hearing no answer rushed to where the wife was, "What's wrong?" I asked.

"Look at this!" she screamed shoving the newspaper into my face, "look what it says!"

"Municipality to Check Garbage!" I read aloud, "So what's wrong?" I said, "They want to see if we're segregating our wet and dry garbage!"

"They can't do that!" screamed the wife again, "I won't be able to hold my head up in front of a municipal worker afterwards!"

"Because you're not segregating?" I asked, "You know, we should be a model family and do what the government asks us to do!"

"No! No! No!" screamed the wife, "because of what they'll think after they see our garbage!"

"I don't see anything wrong with our kachra," I said stubbornly.

"That's because you haven't seen the neighbor's!" said the wife defiantly.

"And you have?"

"Yes!"

"Why?"

"I wanted to see whether everyone brushes their teeth with Neem sticks like you do, and what kind of broken plates they throw out."

"And what did you find?"

"That they use toothpaste, and you should see the broken dishes thrown out, they look like they are from the Queen's cutlery collection!"

"And ours?"

"Steel plates don't break!" sobbed the wife.

"So what's the problem?"

"When the municipality sees no broken dishes they'll know we eat in steel plates!"

"So?"

"What will they ever think of me? And then they'll see the neem sticks! We have to buy new porcelain plates, and you should start using tooth paste!"

"That's impossible on a journalist's income!"

"So what do we do?" screamed the wife, "I have a reputation to keep, I'm ruined, and even if one municipal worker were to tell the ladies in my kitty party, I'm finished! Kaputi!"

"I've got an idea," I said with a smile, "that will save your reputation."

The wife came to visit me at the police lock up, "What happened Bob?" she asked.

"They caught me," I whispered.

"Who?"

"The municipal workers, they found me exchanging the neighbor's dustbin with ours this morning, now I've been booked!"

"What crime?" asked the wife fearfully.

"Garbage hacker..!" I said as she clasped her head in her hands and sobbed...!

Beijing Winter Olympics under 'daunting' bio-bubble

Beijing, Feb 8: Officially, the Beijing Olympics are taking place inside what organisers are calling the enclosed compound activity area.

That's a fancy way of saying a closed loop. You probably know it better as the bubble.

And bubbles are now part of the norm at major sporting events.

The premise of this bubble is simple: Keep those who passed multiple tests just to get access to the Olympics in, keep the rest of the world and, hopefully, COVID-19 out. It has worked for the National Basketball Association, the National Hockey League, Major League Baseball, Grand Slam tennis events, college sports, the rescheduled Tokyo Olympics that took place last summer and so much more.

Everyone inside the bubble is, in theory, virus-free when they get in and figure to have a chance to stay that way if the strict rules are followed. For a few, it hasn't gone to plan. Their Olympics ended before they could begin after a positive test. For most, it is working.

And for everyone, it is daunting.

Everyone's road to Beijing has been anything but ordinary, U.S. speedskater Brittany Bowe said.

The road after they get to Beijing is anything and close the gates for buses and other approved vehicles. When media centers at each venue close for the day, surfaces are sprayed with disinfectant and tested for the presence of virus.

There's no going for a walk around town, no shopping expeditions, no visits to local restaurants. And in case anyone forgets where they are and what the rules are, there are massive signs at just about every imaginable exit: "Please Stay Within The Enclosed Compound Activity Area." It's Olympics without friends and family, which is the hardest part, USA Luge slider Emily Sweeney said.

Letter to Editor

Sir,

The recent bizarre incident of the Chennai- Shencottah Silambu Express' engine coming into contact with some electric wires on the track near Arupukottai has caught the attention of all. First up, there have been no reports of casualties as such.

Here great wisdom dawned on the motorman to stop the train in the nick of time to avoid a train accident. Most importantly, some Indian Railways staff were pressed into service immediately afterwards, thereby fixing the problem by removing the entangled wires from the engine.

P. Senthil Saravana, Vazhavallan
