EARLY BELLS FOR SCHOOLS IN CITY AMID HEATWAVE

Schools taking precautions, curbs on outdoor activities

MUSAB QAZI / Mumbai

With the city simmering under boiling temperatures, schools are taking a number of measures to keep students safe from the scorching heat.

A few schools in the city and suburbs have reduced the school hours so that the children reach home early. While some schools are conducting sports and other outdoor activities in the morning, others have moved them indoors. The teachers are also urging the students to stay hydrated.

The city has been witnessing sweltering weather since the India Meteorological Department (IMD) declared a heatwave a month ago. For the last few days, the maximum temperature hovered around 36°C, though unseasonal rains brought some respite to the city on Wednesday.

Sulochanadevi Singhania School in Thane has shortened the school day from the usual 8 AM - 3 PM to 8 AM - 1 PM. Similarly, starting this week, students at Campion School in Colaba are returning home at 12:30 PM instead of 2:30 PM.

"Our exams are over and we have resumed classes, but the school is running half-day for all the grades. The children get back home for the lunch. The younger students will soon get their summer vacation," said Revathi Srinivasan, Principal, Sulochanadevi Singhania School.

The schools are also limiting outdoor activities to prevent dehydration and heat stroke. "We are not allowing students to venture outside the school building. The sports and other activities are also taking place indoors," said Angela Almeida, Principal, Tilak Global School, Navi Mumbai.

Meanwhile, the Convent of Jesus and Mary School in Fort has allotted the first hour of school for sports and cultural activities. "We have a 'zero period' from 8 AM to 9 PM, where students partake in various activities. While we are running the school according to the regular schedule, we may bring it down to half day soon," said the school Principal Sister Flory Fargose.

The schools said that barring a few stray cases of headaches and vomiting, they haven't seen any heat-related ailments among kids. "Awareness has been created among the students to keep themselves hydrated through the day during summer to make up for the loss of body fluids due to sweating... They are allowed to take water breaks more frequently or sip water from their bottles when they are thirsty in class," said Madhu Wadke, Principal of Gopi Birla Memorial School at Malabar Hill.

No coercion behind Chandrakant Patil's speedy degree: MU

STAFF REPORTER / Mumbai

Mumbai University has found itself amid yet another controversy as members from YuvaSena, a student faction, alleged that varsity provided a speedy duplicate degree to Higher Education Minister Chandrakant Patil after his original document went missing. The group alleged that the MU catered to the minister in a day while the regular students have to wait for a period of months to get the same document.

Pradeep Sawant, a former MU senate member, further claimed that the minister skipped the necessary step of filing an online application for the certificate's copy. "The minister passed out from Siddharth College affiliated to Mumbai University in 1980 and had taken his Convocation Certificate in 1987. He managed to acquire a copy of the certificate within a day on March 23, 2023, while other regular students have to file online applications and wait for several months to obtain their certificate," said Sawant.

Responding to the allegations, the Mumbai University released an official statement on the same evening saying, "MU's older degrees were created manually and were not sent out for printing. These are prepared at the university itself and old degree formats are ready with us, where the details are only entered manually. The university has faced no pressure from Chandrakant Patil or his office."

IAS officer Ashwini Bhide shares her journey as a UPSC aspirant

MEGHA CHOWDHURY / Mumbai

Ashwini Bhide is an IAS officer whose accomplishments serve as an example to thousands of UPSC aspirants. An IAS officer who is best known for her work on the Aqua Line, or popularly known as Mumbai metro Line 3.

In an exclusive interaction with the Free Press Journal, Ashwini Bhide highlighted how she went from being a young woman from a tiny town to being an IAS official.

Nobody can stop one from achieving success once they make a decision and begin taking organized steps, Ashwini told the FPJ.

What inspired you to become an IAS officer?

Although I joined the Indian Administrative Services 27 years ago, my journey began when I was a young child. I came from a very small town, studied in the vernacular rural medium school but dreaming of becoming an IAS officer was something completely out of bounds for the students in that area. But despite having no information about what the sector is, I chose to pursue a path that was not trodden by many. Following two or three years of preparation, I passed the UPSC exam in 1995, and took first place among the female candidates, something I had never anticipated. I believe that nobody can stop one from achieving success once they make a decision and begin taking organized steps.

How should one crack the most competitive exam of India?

Earlier, the Internet was not a thing and availability of information was the main restriction for us. The candidates only used information found in books or publications which also was very hard to get hold of.

However, in the present era, numerous online materials and support are available. There is no dearth of information or awareness. The only thing they have to do now is choose wisely and study the exam pattern properly and see where exactly the focus has to be. One needs to have their own specific approach and must work very hard as there is no rule to it. Understand the nature of the exam, understand the nature of the service.

How should an aspirant prepare to face the UPSC interview?

The primary goal of that interview is to discover your true personality. Make no false statements. Instead, focus on your strengths. Consider going in-depth with them. Be prepared for any question. And if there are any flaws or problem areas, be honest about them. Your interview partner does not want you to provide a perfect response to every query, but they do want you to be open and honest. Your interviewer will judge you on a combination of your knowledge, mannerisms, and level of self-expression.

If a candidate doesn't crack UPSC, what next?

Be prepared for it and always have a Plan-

B. Get a professional degree from a college of your choice, and create a backup plan in case, because despite your best efforts, you may fail the exam. However, this does not imply that you are incapable of passing the exam.

This is a really complex, truly competitive exam, so lakhs of people appear for that and the suits are very limited. So naturally only a few people will get selected. So it doesn't talk about your inability to clear it.

The second thing, which you need to emphasise is that the journey is more important than the outcome, because the journey of reaching your goal of preparing for your basic exam is so comprehensive, it actually changes your personality completely. You become a better person. And that is why, even if you fail in the exam, you haven't actually failed. Instead, you have come shining out of that whole grilling process and that would take you to places.
