CCI to finish Google Play Store probe in 60 days

The Competition Commission of India (CCI) told the Karnataka High Court on Wednesday that it will take 60 days to complete the ongoing investigation against Google.

At the hearing, additional solicitor general (ASG) N Venkataraman, appearing on behalf of the competition watchdog, made the submission that its investigation arm director general (DG) has given an assurance for the same.

Google had filed a writ in Karnataka HC on December 27 seeking more time to respond to the queries from CCI regarding the investigation on the use of Google's Play Store payment system for in-app purchases and paid apps.

Sijo Kuruvilla George, executive director, Alliance of Digital India Foundation, said "Google's consistent attempts throughout have been to implement their mandatory Play Store billing policy and to also delay or evade any anti-trust indictment. By conveying to the court that the CCI is expected to complete the probe in 60 days, it has checkmated Google's attempt to delay the overall anti-trust investigation by exploiting legal challenges."
