Hopeful of consensus on 5 key trade issues: Goyal

Says there are realities on which consensus is not possible

SHREYA NANDI
Jaipur, 23 August

Amid continued differences in positions on the Russia-Ukraine conflict, India is hopeful of a consensus among the Group of Twenty (G20) nations on the five key trade and investment issues that countries have been deliberating since the beginning of the week in Jaipur.

"There is a possibility of a 'good outcome document'," Commerce and Industry Minister Piyush Goyal said, adding that there are realities on which consensus is not possible.

In the past, the G20 Foreign Ministers' Meeting, two meetings of the Finance Ministers and Central Bank Governors Meeting, as well as the Energy Transition Meeting in July, ended without a joint communiqué due to diplomatic tussles between the West and Russia over the war in Ukraine.

"We are confident that tomorrow (Thursday) and the day after the ministerial meeting, we will come up with a concrete, actionable agenda that will help the world withstand any future shocks," the minister told reporters.

The two-day G20 Trade and Investment Ministerial Meeting, starting Thursday, is being held in Jaipur. The meeting was preceded by the fourth and final Trade and Investment Working Group meeting under India's G20 Presidency on August 21-22.

Government officials told Business Standard that even as the meeting of the officials from all the G20 nations has been making good progress, uncertainty continues regarding whether there will be a joint communiqué at the end of the ministerial meeting on Friday, considering past trends. During the working group meetings that started in March, five priority areas were identified: trade for growth and prosperity, resilient trade and global value chains (GVCs), integrating micro, small, and medium enterprises (MSMEs) into world trade, logistics for trade, and World Trade Organization reforms.

"We have been able to come up with significant consensus among member

Goyal meets WTO DG, France, UAE counterparts on sidelines of meet

Commerce and Industry Minister Piyush Goyal on Wednesday met with World Trade Organization (WTO) Director-General Ngozi Okonjo-Iweala, who emphasised rules-based, open, inclusive multilateral trading systems. The meeting took place on the sidelines of the Group of Twenty meet and also comes ahead of the WTO's 13th Ministerial Conference, scheduled to take place in Abu Dhabi in February next year. "During WTO's inception, the thought was that decisions should be made keeping in mind the principle of common but differentiated responsibilities, which means that countries should be given responsibilities according to their growth potential," said Goyal. Besides, it is important to revive the dispute settlement mechanism that has been dysfunctional for several years. The minister also held bilateral meetings with his counterparts from Brazil, France, Switzerland, the United Arab Emirates, and Bangladesh. Goyal is also expected to hold talks with UK Trade Secretary Kemi Badenoch, European Union's Executive Vice President and Commissioner for Trade Valdis Dombrovskis, United States Trade Representative Katherine Tai, Minister of International Trade, Export Promotion, Small Business and Economic Development in Canada Mary Ng, among other key ministers.

countries, invoking a Jaipur 'Call for Action'. It will help promote the industry, the MSME sector, upgrade the global trade helpdesk, and bridge information gaps for MSMEs to help them expand their business and trade," said Goyal.

There have also been deliberations on formulating high-level principles for the digitalisation of trade and trade facilitation since technology has profoundly impacted the way cross-border trade is undertaken.

In this regard, India has been advocating for a paperless trading system to further reduce transaction costs, make smaller shipments more cost-effective, and enable the internationalisation of operations at a lower cost.

G20 nations also aim to remove bottlenecks that impede the integration of MSMEs in international trade. Furthermore, as 70 per cent of the world trade occurs through GVCs, the trade and investment working group has been deliberating on developing a mapping framework that could make GVCs resilient towards future shocks.

'We are committed to conclude CECA talks by end of this year'

Australia's Assistant Minister for Trade TIM AYRES is in India for the ongoing Group of Twenty (G20) trade and investment ministers' meeting and the Business 20 Summit later this week. In an edited interview with Shreya Nandi, Ayres discusses the trade agenda for the G20 meeting, carbon tax, and ongoing bilateral free trade talks. Edited excerpts:

How are the India-Australia Comprehensive Economic Cooperation Agreement (CECA) talks progressing? When can we expect the agreement to be finalised?

Australia and India have resumed negotiations for a CECA. Five rounds of meetings have taken place since the Australia-India Economic Cooperation and Trade Agreement entered into force on December 29, 2022. Australia remains committed to concluding a CECA later this year.

Will Australia push for market access in dairy and other farm products under CECA? What are Australia's other key demands?

As a significant producer of high-quality agricultural goods, Australia is collaborating with India to improve market access for its farmers and food industries. We understand that agriculture is a vital industry for India, but we are advocating that Australia's reliable and high-quality produce can play a pivotal role in improving India's food security and boosting its food processing sector.

India recently imposed curbs on the imports of laptops, tablets, personal computers, etc. How does Australia view this?

Australia is not a major exporter of these goods, and I don't anticipate that these licensing requirements will significantly impact the Australian industry. All World Trade Organization (WTO) members have an obligation to ensure that their regulations are transparent, applied in a non-discriminatory manner, and are not excessively trade-restrictive to achieve legitimate objectives.

Increasingly, countries have been considering imposing a carbon tax and similar levies such as the Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism by the European Union (EU). What are Australia's views on this?

Australia firmly believes that trade and investment are integral to addressing climate change. We are actively exploring and pursuing multilateral and plurilateral solutions to climate-related trade issues.

We are working with the European Commission to mitigate the impact of the EU's Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism on Australian businesses. We are encouraging the Commission to avoid intricate and costly regulatory and compliance requirements for the industry and instead continue to work through multilateral fora like the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development and WTO to support global approaches.

If trade-exposed industries relocate primarily due to different levels of climate ambition, this carbon leakage undermines climate action, affecting trade and investment and jobs.

As part of recent consultations with the industry to ensure our largest emitters contribute to play their part in meeting our 2030 climate targets, the Australian government has committed to reviewing the risks of carbon leakage, particularly for the cement and steel industry, and developing policy options for Australia.

We will closely consult with our international partners, including India, to understand their perspectives on these issues. We must create the right environment for trade and investment in low-emissions-intensive goods and the services that support them.

What are Australia's key proposals for WTO reforms under the G20 Trade and Investment Ministerial?

The G20, under India's Presidency, can play a crucial role in providing continuous political support for WTO reform to spur reform discussions underway in Geneva, in advance of the WTO's 13th Ministerial Conference next February. Specifically, Australia aims to see the G20 lend its support to fixing the dispute settlement system.

The 13th Ministerial Conference is rapidly approaching, necessitating the generation of momentum and focus on delivering reform outcomes.

Amid a diplomatic tussle between the West and Russia over the war in Ukraine, do you anticipate a joint communiqué at the end of the G20 trade ministers' meeting?

G20 trade and investment ministers are convening during a period of global complexity, marked by geo-strategic competition, disruptions to global markets, and threats to food and energy security.

Australia will continue to work with partners to reiterate our condemnation of Russia's illegal and immoral invasion of Ukraine. We are deeply concerned about the global ramifications of Russia's war, exacerbating fragilities in the global economy and trading system. This includes Russia's termination of the Black Sea Grain Initiative and attacks on Ukrainian agricultural infrastructure, which are driving up food prices and impacting the most vulnerable.

Australia has cooperated closely and constructively with India as the Chair, along with other G20 members, to establish policy consensus across G20 ministerial meetings. Despite these challenges, we will strive for a joint communiqué at the G20 trade and investment ministers' meeting. India has our firm support in this endeavour.
