FEARS OF BEIJING SPYING ON AMERICANS

US Bill to Bar Apple, Google Apps that Accept Digital Yuan

Washington: Republican senators want to bar US app stores including Apple and Google from hosting apps that allow payments to be made with China's digital currency, amid fears the payment system could allow Beijing to spy on Americans.

The bill, unveiled Thursday and first reported by Reuters, states that companies that own or control app stores "shall not carry or support any app in app stores(s) within the United States that supports or enables transactions in eCNY." It is sponsored by Senators Tom Cotton, Marco Rubio and Mike Braun.

According to Cotton's office, digital yuan could provide the Chinese government with "real-time visibility into all transactions on the network, posing privacy and security concerns for American persons who join this network."

The Center for a New American Security, a Washington, DC-based think tank, said in a January 2021 report that China's digital currency and electronic payments system was "likely to be a boon for CCP surveillance in the economy and for government interference in the lives of Chinese citizens," noting that "transactions will contain precise data about users and their financial activity."

The move comes after WeChat, a messaging and payment application owned by China's Tencent with over 1.2 billion users, announced it would begin supporting the currency earlier this year. Alipay, the hugely popular payments app owned by Jack Ma's Ant Group, also accepts the digital currency.

Both apps are available in the US. Apple and Google App stores, however, do not accept the digital currency. Apple Inc., Alphabet Inc's Google, Ant Group and Tencent did not respond to requests for comment. —Reuters

UK Opens 2nd Probe into Google Ad Tech Dominance

London: The UK competition watchdog on Thursday opened a second investigation into Google's unfair practices in ad tech, following the launch of a probe into Google and Meta's 'Jedi Blue' agreement.

The Competition and Markets Authority (CMA) is investigating whether Google has broken the law by restricting competition in the digital advertising technology market. Advertising technology intermediation, also known as the 'ad tech stack,' is a complex set of services which facilitate the sale of online advertising space between sellers (publishers, like online newspapers and other content providers) and buyers (advertisers).

In 2019, UK advertisers spent around 1.8 billion pounds on this kind of online advertising. Google has strong positions at various levels of the ad tech stack, charging fees to both publishers and advertisers, the CMA said. —IANS
