Sommunication to the launch of Sputnik and, much later, Iridium becoming the first global satellite phone network with coverage for the entire planet, satcom has fascinated several generations around the world. In India, satellite phones were banned in the wake of the Mumbal terrorist attack of 2008, whose perpetrators were found to be using them. However, several companies are getting ready for a new wave of satellite communication in the country, a wave that will make broadband internet accessible in the remotest corners. On the way, there are questions. Will satellite communication emerge as the new ground for disruption in the Indian telecom universe?

Is the core battle between the big two telecom companies — Reliance Jio and Bharti Airtel — now spilling over to what was considered a fringe area till recently? What kind of competition will the

What kind of competition will the international biggies, such as Amazor and SpaceX, give to the satcom play of businesses promoted by Sunil Mittal and Mukesh Ambani? The answers to these questions are likely to hinge on one thing: The mode of distribution of airwaves for satcom. Will it be administered allocation at a fixed price or an auction of spectrum, a scarce natural resource acquired by terrestrial telcos at an exorbitant price. That is the issue that has kept a promising sector hanging fire for some time.

Two ends of the spectrum

After a back and forth between the Department of Telecommunication Department of Telecommunicatio (DoT) and the Telecom Regulatory DOT) and the Telecom Regulatory Authority of India (Trai) since 2021, the satcommatter is reportedly with the highest authorities in the government now to decide on whether it should be ar auction or administered allocation or administered allocation or administered allocation of airwaves. The much-awaited Trai recommendation, where spectrum distribution will be the biggest headline point, could follow in November.
The game of spectrum allocation has

The game of spectrum allocation has been upped with the traditional telcos steering the satcom show. Both Bharti Group-backed OneWeb, which is in par-tnership with French satellite major Eutelsat, and Reliance Jio have secured the licence from DoT for the satcom service. The international challengers, including Amazon's Project Kuiper and SpaceX's Starlink Satellite, are yetto get the licen-ce. Though Trai issued the consultation ce. Though Trails sued the consultation paper on satellite communication in April 2023 and the process of consultation ended in June 2023, the regulator has kept the stakeholders in suspense for four months. When Business Standard approached Reliance-Jio and Bharti Airtel, who are on the opposite sides of the spectrum, literally, neither commented on the matter. The third in cumbent telco, Vodafone Idea, which shares Jio's view that spectrum for satcom must be auctioned, did Idea, which shares Jio's view that spect-rum for satcom must be auctioned, did not comment either. But the spokesper-son of Paris-headquartered Eucles at Group, which is London-based One-Web's partner, Iold Business Standards: "We firmly believe that both Trai and the government will take a rational view and assign the satellite spectrum administra-tively only, as is done globally." He added that satellite communication had the that satellite communication had the potential to bridge the digital divide by covering the uncovered and ren areas, while serving the country disaster, mantime and detence needs.

Explaining why an auction won't work in the case of satcom, the Eutelsat executive said satellite spectrum was a shared and non-exclusive resource and multiple satellite players could share the same spectrum, unlike the usage of terrestrial spectrum, where exclusive terrestrial spectrum, where exclusive allocation was necessary.

There are many voices similar to Eutestar 5 in the reply to the Trai consultation paper on sacrom. Out of 64 responses by companies, analysts, non-profit organisations and individuals, 48 are against the process of spectrum auction, citing global norms and infeasibility of bidding in satrom. Only 13 favour an auction, and three have not stated a clear position.

Besides Bharti Airtel and One Web, all satellite companies, space associations, broadband and IT lobby groups, international majors with interest in this area, as well as companies like Larsen & Toubro and Hughes have gone against the auction route. the auction route

ISSUES AT STAKE

- Feasibility of assignment of spectrum for space communications on exclusive basis
- The appropriate frequency bands needed for satellite gateway links and user links
- Whether spectrum in higher bands such as C, Ku and Ka should be assigned
- Provisions applicable for new entrants or entities which couldn't acquire spectrum earlier

WHAT IS THE GMPCS LICENCE?

The Global Mobile Personal Communication by Satellite (GMPCS) system provides transnational, regional or global coverage from a constellation of satellites accessible with small and easily transportable terminals. The Department of Telecommunications (DoT) gives out the licence to operate GMPCS services in licensed service areas for a period of 20 years, subject to security approvals.

method. Probably the strongest voice in favour of auctions, Jio has consistently argued that spectrum assignment rules for networks offering competing services are uniform and fair. "Auctioning satellite spectrum therefore emerges as the sole viable strategy to guarantee a balanced comp-etitive landscape amongst competing providers," the company said, Opposing the other camp's argument, it has said exclusive grant of spectrum through ineother camp is argument, it has said exclusive grant of spectrum through auction will not prevent satellite earth station gateways from accessing the complete band.

Bhart I Enterprise Chairman Sunil Mittal has petitioned the government that since satellite spectrum is required only in limited areas, and also since the business is not orine to make hillions of that since satellite spectrum is required only in limited areas, and also since the business is not going to make billions of dollars of revenue, it should be allocated. When asked about the Supreme Court order of 2012 mandating auction of spectrum while cancelling several 20 licences granted through first-come-first-served basis, the Eutelsat spokesperson said the court did not mandate auction as the sole method in every case. The SC verdict was in the context of arbitrary grant of terrestrial spectrum for exclusive usage, he reasoned, adding that "satellite spectrum is non-exclusive by its very nature and hence the SC order cannot be extrapolated to satellite spectrum". To press its point that spectrum auction has not been successful globally in satellite communication, L&T said in response to the Trai consultation paper auction has not been successful globally in satellite communication, L&T said in response to the Trai consultation paper that numerous nations had encountered setbacks. It said: "As an illustration, the UK government's auction of the 2.3 GHz and 3.4 GHz spectrum for 5G services in 2018 failed to generate bids from prominent mobile operators."

Comparable instances of unsuccessful auctions had been witnessed in countries including Australia, Germany and Switzerland, L&T pointed out. "These failures can impede the timely implementation of satellite services, fostering uncertainty for both service providers and users."

An early believer in satcom, Bharti Enterprises Chairman Sunli Mittalhad told this newspaper a few months ago that an India launch would be toughif the government decided on auction of spectrum for satcom. More recently, One-Web announced its tie-up with Eutelsat, signalling that perhaps things were moving.

HDFC Bank puts levers to reverse stock slackening

From here on, analysts believe behemoth will improve performance

eakness in HDFC Bank's net interest margin (NIM) may have bottomed out in the July-September quarter (Q2 FY24), analysts said September quarter (QZ FYZ4), analysts said on Tuesday, as most of the merger-related one-time adjustments have been completed. The bank, they believe, should be able to grow from here on, allowing the stock to reverse its underperformance.

"The weak NIM print was not unexpected given the merger and regulatory impact caused by the incremental cash reserve ratio (I-CRR) of 5-10 basis points (has) for the quarter. The regulation on Its possible of the production of the producti reserve ratio (I-CRR) of 5-10 basis points (bps) for the quarter. The regulation on I-CRR, however, has now been withdrawn, which should result in it reversing in Q3 FY24," said analysts at Kotak Institutional Equities. During the recently-concluded quarter, the lender reported NIM of 36 per cent on interest earning assets (IEA), and 34 per cent on total earnings assets.

The management, however, expects marcins to normalise gradually

The management, however, expects margins to normalise gradually.

Analysts believe the best approach to forecast NIM trajectory would be to compare the loan yields and cost of funds differential with ICICI/Axis Bank. Then, build he NIM convergence cycle based on the growth trajectory for the bank and re-pricing of the erstwile HIPOC LID borrowings.

However, as these variables are challenging to forecast the estimates are ing of the erstwnier LIDE-LIG borrowings. However, as these variables are challenging to forecast, the estimates are unlikely to be accurate. Nonetheless, analysts at Prabhudas Lilladher expect NIM to improve from 3.66 per cent in Q2 FY24 to 3.77 per cent in Q4 FY24.

"Overall, FY24 earnings performance would be muted, given the sharp fall in NIM in Q2. However, according to our calculations, about 43 per cent of erstwhile HDFC Ltd's liabilities (high-cost) are expected to be replaced by FY26. This should translate to NIM improvement from 3.57 per cent to 3.72 per cent to wer FY24-2.67, they said in a result review report.

Meanwhile, the more-than-expected contraction in HDFC Bank's NIM led to slight hit on core-operating profit at $22,700 crore for the quarter, while cost-income ratio stood at 40.4 per cent (down 240 bps quarter-on-quarter or Q-o-Q).

"We expect sequential improvement in HDFC Bank's core earnings momentum as NIMs recover gradually. We believe that current valuations adequately capture the merger-related pangs. At the bourses, shares of HDFC Bank climbed 1.8 per cent intraday before closing 0.77 per cent higher. On the other hand, the benchmark BSE Sensex gained 0.39 per cent.

The stock, however, has underperformed the market by delivering returns of +8.2 per cent/-5.5 per cent over the past 3 months/6 months/one year. This is against the Sensex's return of -0.2 per cent/10.87 per cent/10.87 per cent, respectively, during the period.

Going ahead, analysts believe that sustained RoA / return on equity (RoE) growth, stable management, and valuation comfort make it a good bet over the medium-to-long term. The long-awatted listing of HDB Financial Services should be another catalyst for the stock, they said.

"HDFC Bank has made a good beginning after the merger, and given the huge pace of capacity building, we believe there are levers in place to sustain this momentum in business growth. Margins are likely to recover gradully which there are levers in place to sustain this momentum in business growth. Margins are likely to recover gradually, which, along with improved operating leverage should improve return ratios. We expect HDFC Bank to deliver a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 18 per cent/20 per cent in loans/ deposits and a 21 per cent CAGR in earnings over FY24-26. These will translate into RoA/RoE of 2 per cent/17.4 per cent by FY36." said Mortial (Sway Brancial Services

Invest in multiple single-factor funds with 7 to 10-year horizon

Timing entry and exit in a single-factor fund is impossible

SANIAY KIIMAR SINGH & KARTHIK IFROME

Factor-based funds, also called smart-Factor-based funds, also called smart-beta funds, have done well year-to-date. Momentum-based factor funds have outperformed owing to high momentum in the equity market in recent times. The broad-based nature of the rally has helped the equal-weight strategy dowell. But before you decide to invest in these funds, understand how theywork.

What is a factor-based fund?

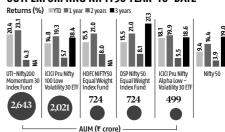

These are rule-based funds. A universe is defined and then a few filters (or criteria) are applied to it. The stocks obtained are ranked in descending order. Those that rank higher are given a higher weight in the factor index. By contrast, an index like the Nifty50 is a free float market capweighted index.

Says Sharwan Goyal, fund manager and head-passive, arbitrage and quant strategies at UTI Asset Management Company:
"This is an alternative way of index construction based on either fundamental (quality, growth, value) or market (momentum or low volatility)
head factors accommend to based factors, as compared to the traditional market cap the traditional market cap oriented factor."

He adds that the goal is to generate better returns or risk-adjusted returns than the parent index.
The Nifty 200 Momentum 30 Index, for instance, is derived from the Nifty 200. Stocks are selected on the basis of recent price momentum. "Those stocks that have performed better in the recent past get selected with the belief that momentum would newsite voice."

past get selected with the belief that momentum would persist going forward," explains Goyal. Over the long term, these indexes have beaten their parent indexes. The Nifty 200 Momentum 30 Index has generated significant alpha (aroun 56 per cent compounded annually) sin inception over the Nifty 200. Factors such selework active to the lower than 100 persists of the lower such as low volatility, quality, value have also shown better outcomes than broad market cap indices since inception

No human bias
Factor-based funds are rule-based. "No human bias is involved as happens in active funds," says Alekh Yadav, head of investment products, Sanctum Wealth.

Every fund manager also follows a particular style, which inevitably witnesses periods of underperformance. "When this happens, the fund manager comes under a lot of pressure. There is a lot of pressure. There is a lot current and the style. Such deviation can not sourci in a factor-based fund," occur in a factor-based fund,' says Arun Kumar, head of says-Artin Rumat, riestor says-artin Rumat, riestor ir assarch, Fundsindia.com. If an investor holds a factor-based fund for 7-10 years, there is bound to be a stretch, sometimes prolonged, when these funds drastically underperform a market cap-based index. The quality factor is underperforming currently and value had done so earlier.

Howto make them work for you In any given market environment, which may last for two to three years, some fac-tors do well and others don't. As market sentiments and economic cycles change, so do the outperforming factors. "Build a portfolio combining fourto five different factor-based funds and let them run for a 7-10-year timeframe," says Kumar. Adds Goyal: "Having some allocation to different complementary factors may bring down portfolio volatility by providing diversification, and improve portfolio performance over time." Combining momentum and low volatility, for instance, has worked historically.

What to watch out for

What to watch out for Figure out which factors have done well historically in the Indian market and hence deserve to be included in your port-folio. While some factor-based indexes may have given high returns historically, running a fund based on them may no be easy. Says Kumar: "The momentum strategy, which is high-churn, is difficult to implement once asset under manageser easy, says kunian. The moinement is strategy, which is high-churn, is difficult to implement once asset under management grows large. There is an impact cost." Any strategy that requires investing in illiquid stocks is also difficult to implement. These issues can create a gap betweenthe performance of the index and that of the fund. Most factor funds don't have a long track record, so investors cannot check longer tracking difference.

"When selecting factor-based funds, take into account fund size, churn, and liquidity of the stocks that need to be purchased," says Kumar. According to experts, most active large-cap funds may not be able to outperform their benchmarks. "A factor-based fund may be able to provide some alpha in this category," says Yadax, Kumara says investors who says Yadav. Kumar says investors w decide to blend four or five factors may include them in their core portfolio.
